KATO SAYS JAPAN WANTS ALL-ROUND NAVAL REDUCTION

Declares Delegation Goes Into Parley Willing to Cut the Eight-Eight Program.

NO DESIRE TO EXCEED US

SHIDEHARA IS CONFIDENT

Writes That an Agreement on Naval Limitation Ought to Be "Comparatively Simple."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—In a direct and authoritative declaration respecting the attitude of Japan toward limitation of naval armament, Admiral Baron Tomosaburo Kato, head of the Japanese delegation to the Washington Conference, declared today that Japan will not insist on carrying out her "eight-eight" program, but is ready to cut down this or any other part of her naval program to conform to any plan on limitation upon which the powers can or will agree.

Japan, he declared, wants to provide for her own national safety, but, nevertheless, stands ready to approach the subject of limitation of armament in a conciliatory and co-operative spirit and is willing to go as far as any other great naval power in the direction of limitation.

Admiral Baron Kato's statement respecting the attitude of his Government toward the limitation of naval armament constitutes the first and only authoritative declaration regarding Japan's attitude since the arrival of the Japanese delegation in Washington, more than a week ago. It was inspired by a publication in a New York newspaper this morning to the effect that Japan alone opposed the reduction of such naval programs as already have been initiated, and that Japan would not be willing to depart from her present building program known as the "eight-eight," which calls for the completion of eight new dreadnoughts and eight new battle cruisers by 1928.

Ready to Act With Other Powers.

The contrary is definitely the case," declared Admiral Baron Kato today during a conference with newspaper correspondents, "and the repetition of the statement is unwarranted in view of the fact that when the Washington conference was first proposed and at other times subsequently officials of the Japanese Government, including myself, have stated that Japan would not insist upon carrying out her present 'eight-eight' program, but is ready to cut it down in agreement with the powers concerned, provided the safety of Japan is assured."

Baron Kato went even further than this and declared that Japan will make any cut in her navy, including a cut in her eight-eight program, that is necessary to conform to any and whatever agreement the Washington conference can or will reach.

His statement respecting Japanese policy on limitation of naval armaments is certain to create a most favorable impression among the other delegations to the conference and is considered extremely important because of the position of Baron Kato in the Japanese Government and in Japanese political and naval affairs. He is not only the head of the Japanese delegation in Washington and its principal authoritative spokesman, but is also Japanese Minister of Marine and the ranking member of the Japanese Cabinet next to the Premier. As Minister of Marine he had the most important position in the Cabinet under the late Premier Hara, and representative Japanese in Washington, both official and journalistic, are generally of the opinion that if Admiral Baron Kato were now in Tokio instead of Washington he would have been made Premier in succession to the late Premier Hara.

Explains Attitude in Detail.

The circumstances under which Baron Kato's declaration of policy and attitude were made were both interesting and dramatic. In addition to issuing a brief prepared statement, he voluntarily supplemented it with an oral statement in which he went more into detail, and then subjected himself to interrogation by the newspaper correspondents.

Newspaper correspondents, American and Japanese, were notified that some character of statement might be issued at the headquarters of the Japanese delegation between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. When they had assembled, Admiral Baron Kato, accompanied by his Secretary-Interpreter, stepped into a room in which there were thirty Japanese newspaper correspondents and nearly as many American newspaper men. The Baron, through his Secre-

Hungary Agrees to Bar Hapsburgs From the Throne

BUDAPEST, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—It is understood that the Government has issued a declaration that members of the Hapsburg family cannot be elected to the throne of Hungary.

This declaration, made to satisfy the demands of the powers, is to be submitted to the National Assembly for ratification as the official interpretation of the act passed by that body on Sunday, dethroning former Emperor Charles and ousting the entire Hapsburg dynasty.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 8.—The British cruiser Cardiff, having on board ex-Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary and former Empress Zita, arrived here today from the mouth of the Danube, where she went to receive the former imperial pair, destined to exile on the island of Madeira.

The Cardiff made only a brief stop at this port, proceeding almost at once for Gibraltar.

SENATE VOTES TO ASK PARLEY PUBLICITY

Wants the Press Admitted to Meetings When Main Questions Are Considered.

REQUEST TO DELEGATION

Harrison Resolution Is Passed After Dropping a Paragraph on Censorship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Following a spirited debate in which Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Harrison and Williams of Mississippi, and Johnson of California, participated, the Senate this afternoon adopted a resolution requesting the American representatives in the conference on the limitation of armament to use their influence to have the conference "admit the representatives of the press to the meetings of the full conference, where the questions for which the conference was called are considered." The resolution also expressed the hope of the Senate that a record of the proceedings of the conference would be preserved.

The resolution was offered by Senator Harrison and in its original form was opposed by Senator Lodge, one of the delegates to the conference. Mr. Lodge urged that the representatives of the nations participating in the conference had come to this country as the guests of the Government "with precisely the same rights that we have as to the procedure to be followed." He added that in his view "for the United States Senate or the House of Representatives to anticipate their sessions and undertake to dictate or to suggest to these other nations how they should carry on their business, seems to me not a seemly thing for us to do at this moment."

It was the last paragraph of the resolution which drew the fire of Senator Lodge, who insisted that, considered from an international viewpoint, it was bad manners. This paragraph, which was finally stricken from the resolution, read:

"That the Senate of the United States

CABINET BACKS HAYS'S PLAN

Marines to Be Sent to 13 Points to Serve Until Department Has Armed Force.

OFFICIALS HERE SUSPENDED

Three Superintendents Let Out as Hays Charges Dereliction in Recent Hold-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Marines will be used to protect the mails against the robberies which have been occurring throughout the nation, and which occupied the attention of President Harding and his Cabinet this morning. At this meeting Postmaster General Hays proposed that the marines should act as armed guards for the mails until a permanent armed force attached to the Post Office Department is organized. The suggestion was received enthusiastically by the President and Cabinet, and Secretary of the Navy Denby promised all possible assistance.

Following the Cabinet meeting, Mr. Hays had a conference with Major Gen. John J. Lejeune, commanding the marines, and Colonel Snyder and Colonel Matthews of the General's staff. It was decided that 1,000 men should be selected and used in thirteen cities of the country, including all the Federal Reserve centres, and in addition Los Angeles. Whenever there is a money shipment by way of the mails, marines, armed with rifles and pistols, will ride on mail trucks and mail coaches on the trains and be stationed in the Post Offices.

"There was absolutely inexcusable dereliction of duty in New York," he said this afternoon, in announcing that Elijah M. Norris, Superintendent of Mails; Henry Lippman, Superintendent of Registry, and Walter S. Mayer, Superintendent of Money Orders, should be suspended from the service pending an investigation. A hearing fixing the responsibility for this robbery is now going on.

Hays Attacks Robbery Here.

Mr. Hays was scathing in his comment upon the New York robbery.

"What do you think," he asked, "of accompanying the mails with an armed guard and an armed clerk, and then turning this mail over to an unarmed chauffeur to drive through the dimly lighted canons of lower New York City?"

"No matter what has happened, the mails will and shall be protected," continued the Postmaster General. "The mails shall be protected to the last postcard regardless of cost and sacrifice. We are at open warfare with the crooks and bandits of the United States."

Kentucky Election Affrays Cause 10 Deaths And Wounding of 7 in Five Pistol Battles

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—The known casualties in Kentucky's election tonight stood at ten dead and seven wounded.

Nine men were killed in two affrays in Breathitt County, a man and a woman were wounded in Louisville, and one man was killed and two others seriously wounded in Estill County.

The first of the killings occurred Monday night in Breathitt County when Sylvester Howard Jr. was killed by Marl Pitts.

The second affray in Breathitt County occurred today, when Cleveland Coombs is said to have made efforts to serve as election clerk in place of a man previously appointed. Coombs, his cousin Leslie, Ephraim and George Allen, John Roberts and George McIntosh were killed outright and five others were wounded, two, Asbery Combs and Tom Centers dying later. Four of the dead men were Democrats and four of the wounded Republicans.

In Louisville Patrolman Bennett Gardner, in a quarrel with Harry Ross, fired several shots. One shot struck and seriously wounded Ross and another struck Mrs. Lillian Collins, aged 64.

The fourth affray was in Estill County, where P. F. Wolfinbarger, Republican candidate for Sheriff, was seriously wounded by Lloyd Winkler. Winkler was shot and killed by Wolfinbarger's son Jeff. Phant Richardson, a bystander, was wounded.

Another death was added to the list late today when K. K. Spencer, a Democratic election clerk, was killed at Simpson Precinct, on Frozen Creek in Breathitt County. His murderer has not been captured.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Nov. 8.—A quarrel over politics arose at the Clayhole voting precinct, on Troublesome Creek, fifteen miles from Jackson today. Fifteen minutes latetr six men were dead, their bodies lying within a radius of fifty feet of each other. Five others were wounded, of whom three died later. The news was telephoned to Jackson and every available was sent to Clayhole, the trip occupying three hours over nearly impassable mountain roads.

No battle as deadly as this has been fought in the Kentucky Mountains, not even when feudism had full sway and fatal encounters were of almost daily occurrence.

The trouble started, according to the story reaching Jackson, when Ed Combs entered the polling place and demanded that "a fair election be held." Combs had been defeated for County Judge in the August primary and had turned to the support of the Republicans, which is said to have caused bitterness in his family. He was ordered out of the voting room and told to take away from the door a crowd which had gathered there. When Combs left the room pistols began to crack immediately. Cleveland Combs, clerk of the election, was the first to fall. Ed Combs and his nephew Leslie then are said to have begun firing, and in a moment a score of guns were out.

Some of the fighters died instantly, while others thrashed about on the ground until death came. The wounded ground until death came.

Practically all the fighters were heads of families. The Combses belong to one of the most prominent political factions in the State, a cousin having been State Senator and at times President pro tem. of the State Senate. All voting was stopped in the precinct by the trouble.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Co.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Mr. Asquith, addressing a meeting of 5,000 Liberals "We meet at a critical moment

"We meet at a critical momement in the fortunes of the world. There is only one bright spot in the international situation, the assembling of the Washington conference, which will belie universal hope if it does not bring about a great and workable scheme for the wholesale reduction of armaments and so satisfy the first condition of the future peace of the world."

Referring to the Irish negotiations and the attitude of the Independent Liberals, Mr. Asquith proceeded:

"So far as we are responsible the gates of civil war must not be reopened in Ireland. We are all agreed, and I myself, in office and out of office, have repeatedly declared that we will be no parties to coercion of the Ulster minority. Neither will we be parties at the instance of that minority or of anybody else to coercion of the remaining three- fourths of Ireland."

Mr. Asquith went on to say that among conditions essential to the revival of financial and industrial stability were reversion of the reparation provisions of treaties and cancellation between this country and her European allies of the interallied indebtedness. He said:

"We are perfectly prepared to pay our debt to America in due course."

MORE CONFERENCES HELD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The gravity of the issues at stake in the Irish conference remains unrelieved, and civil war in Ireland, the dissolution of Parliament and the resignation of the Government are regarded in political circles as real possibilities of the situation which has developed.

The members of the Ulster Cabinet left Belfast tonight for London to confer with Premier Lloyd George on Thursday evening, when it is thought the crisis will be brought to a head by decision one way or the other. Whether Ulster will or will not accept the compromise it is likely that the Ulster Cabinet will adjourn to another meeting and the real decisions may hang in the balance for several days.

The conversations so far held with Sir James Craig have given no promise of any modification of Ulster's attitude. It remains to be seen whether the Ulster Cabinet Ministers in their conference with Mr. Lloyd George will maintain thisno attitude, but it is learned that the preliminary meetings with Craig have given rise to gloomy forebodings in the minds of British Ministers.

In particular it is stated one stumbling block in the way of the suggested compromise is that Ulster will object to the proposal that any all-Ireland Parliament with a Dominion status—of which Ulster would be a Province with certain independent powers—should be established on an electoral basis. An ordinary electoral basis would, of course, place Ulster in a numerical inferiority to the south.

Fears Adverse Tariffs.

In the case of the fiscal autonomy powers which were proposed to be given to an all-Ireland Parliament, Ulster argues that she, being a minority, might be subject to adverse tariffs passed against her by the southern majority or to penal taxation directed against her industries. But it is suggested that in the composition of the Senate of the all-Irish Parliament there would be a vital safeguard. Here Ulster would get equal rights in numbers with the south, besides retaining in her own co-ordinated Legislature her specific powers given by the present Home Rule act.

The Government is relying on the Quebec precedent for safe-guarding the minority, and is prepared to extend that precedent so that it should be even more favorable to Ulster.

In the meantime the actual powers Ulster was to have had under the Home Rule act—from which she has been debarred by the failure of South Ireland to function—are to be given her at once by an order in council. The King will tomorrow hold a privy council for the purpose of promulgating this order, which will confer upon Ulster statutory powers in regard to judicature, education, agriculture and finance. She will incidentally get straightway £1,000,000 promised for the cost of her Parliament House. This order in council is intend-

ANDREWS HAS LEAD

Has Indicated Plurality Up-State of About 282,000

SCUDDER, 268,000 HERE

Democratic Candidate Also Carries Schoharie, Albany and Rensselaer

LEGISLATURE IS REPUBLICAN

But the Democrats Have Gained 17 Seats in the Assembly.

The result of the contest for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals was in doubt at 2 o'clock this morning. Returns at that hour from up-state counties, many of them estimated, indicated that Judge William S. Andrews, Republican cadidate, would come down to the Bronx with enough of a plurality to overcome the lead of Townsend Scudder, Democratic candidate, in New York City.

The Republicans continued to retain control of the Assembly by a substantial majority, with the loss, however, of four up-State Republican Assemblymen and ten or twelve in New York City.

Scudder's plurality in New York City on incomplete returns was apparently about 268,000. The indications were that he had also carried Rensselaer County by about 500, Albany by 500 and Schoharie by 200.

Judge Andrews ran well in many of the strong Republican counties. He carries Buffalo by 25,000 and his home city of Syracuse by more than 5,000—a good vote when the fact that Syracuse elected a Democratic Mayor is considered.

Large pluralities for Judge Andrews were rolled up in other large up-State counties, although the total vote in the rural sections fell far below that of last year.

Returns from up-State, based largely on estimates which were received from correspondents of THE NEW YORK TIMES, indicated that Judge Andrews's up-State net plurality, subtracting the Scudder plurality in Albany, Schoharie and Rensselaer, would be about 282,000, while Mr. Scudder would get about 268,000 plurality in New York City, leaving an indicated plurality for Judge Andrews of about 14,000.

The returns from up-State on Judge of the Court of Appeals were collected by THE TIMES and not by any of the press associations.

Reports from up-State indicated that ex-service men in many of the counties worked against Judge Andrews because of resentment over his decision declaring the bonus act unconstitutional. He received the support, however, of a considerable number of Democrats because of his satisfactory service on the bench.

The indicated pluralities on Court of Appeals are:

What the Candidates and Their Backers Have to Say About the Election Results

The persons most concerned in the election results, the candidates and their managers, received the news of it characteristically.

Mayor Hylan "humbly accepted this most emphatic verdict," and then attacked the newspapers which had not supported him. In an extemporaneous speech at his home he declared the result to be "an endorsement of my four years' administration of this great city," and added that "my fight to rescue the people from the bondage in which they have been held by unscrupulous interests has been won."

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, said after a conference with the Mayor: "It shows that the people do their own thinking and that neither the unscrupulous newspapers nor other unprincipled deceivers can fool them. Our fight for home rule has been won."

Frederick A. Wallis thought that the result "is a stinging chastisement of the Coalition-Republican campaign of misrepresentation and the unwarranted attack upon the City Administration."

Murray Hulbert, Dock Commissioner and one of the chief targets of assault in the campaign, now elected President of the Board of Aldermen, said: "The results speak for themselves. See that Mr. Jerome gets a copy of the paper in the morning."

Major Curran accepted his defeat smilingly and had nothing to say. His campaign manager, John J. Lyons, said for him: "The people have spoken by an amazing plurality," and went on to bespeak for the City Administration the loyal co-operation of its opponents in this campaign.

Henry W. Taft, Chairman of the Coalition Committee, said: "The people have spoken with emphasis. We must all acquiesce and have confidence that all will go well with our great city."

William Travers Jerome said: "My only comment is this—they will give us our medicine for the next four years."

Samuel Untermyer remarked that he had never entertained the slightest doubt of the outcome, but there was no escape from it. "The only redeeming thing," Mr. Untermyer added, "is the rebuke administered to Governor Miller and the Legislature for meddling in the affairs of this city."

JERSEY DEMOCRATS LOSE ON WET ISSUE

MRS. VAN NESS DEFEATED

Author of Prohibition Act Beaten in Essex — Senate Remains Republican.

Indications at 3 o'clock this morning were that the New Jersey Democrats had lost in a close fight on the prohibition enforcement issue in their State, and would fail to break the Republican majority in the Assembly. It was certain at that hour that the Republicans would control the Legislature on joint ballot and that the Democrats would be unable to amend the enforcement laws, elect a Democratic State Treasurer or control the State House Commission.

The fight for control of the Assembly narrowed down to Newark and the other cities in Essex County, where counts at 3 o'clock indicated that the Republicans would retain ten of the twelve seats in the county's delegation to the Assembly.

One of the Republicans apparently beaten in Essex County was Mrs. Jennie C. Van Ness, around whom the fight centred because she introduced in the Legislature the act for stringent enforcement of the prohibition laws in New Jersey. The Democrats demanded repeal or amendment of this act.

Indications also were that Dr. Walter Alexander, the negro member of the Essex County delegation in the last Legislature, also had been beaten by a Democratic opponent. Both he and Mrs. Van Ness trailed their ticket in Essex County. It is probable that their places in the Legislature will be taken by John J. Daly and James F. Hyland, who topped the Democratic ticket in Essex.

With one seat in the Middlesex County delegation still doubtful on the face of the early returns, and one or two more doubtful in the Essex County delegation, it is estimated that the Republican majority in the Assembly will be at least twenty.

The Democrats will have between seventeen and twenty of the seats in the Assembly, and the remainder of the sixty places will be filled by Republicans.

Four of the seven seats in the Senate will be filled by Republicans, giving the Republicans fifteen seats out of twenty-one. In the joint ballot of the two Houses these safe majorities will prevent the Democrats from carrying their programs into effect.

They claimed a fifth seat in the Senate by the vote in Middlesex County, but the estimates favored the Democratic candidate, Fred W. Devoe.

Newark went Democratic by 7,200, with 210 out of 225 districts counted, but the Republican vote in the other cities and towns in the county gave early indications of wiping out this lead and handing the delegation over to the Republicans. Fifty-six out of 198 districts gave a Republican plurality of about 3,000 votes.

Jersey City's heavy Democratic vote turned over the Hudson County delegation of twelve members to the Democratic Party, and there was no possibility of change from the early returns.

Eight women were seeking seats in the Legislature on the tickets of both parties in New Jersey, but there was

REJECT PREFERENCE FOR THE VETERANS

Voters Defeat the First Amendment—Probably Also the Second.

LITERACY TEST MAY CARRY

Vote on Third Amendment Indicates Approval—Returns Slow on Other Amendments.

The vote on the Constitutional Amendments, so far as it could be tabulated last night, showed large majorities against the soldier preference amendment and the amendment providing for increased salaries for legislators, and a large majority in favor of the literacy test for voters.

On the basis of returns received up to 3 o'clock this morning from scattered districts in four of the five boroughs, the total majority against Amendment No. 1 (soldiers' preference in civil service) if the later returns bear out the figures for the districts reported last night, will be about 195,000 in the entire city. The majority against Amendment No. 2 (increased salaries for legislators) is about 114,000. Amendment No. 3 (literacy test for voters) has an indicated majority in New York City of about 180,000.

Only fragmentary returns have been received from up-State, but these indicated the defeat of the first and second amendments there also and a divided vote on No. 3, which, taken together with the large majority in favor of the proposal in the city, will probably carry this amendment.

Buffalo, with that city's vote complete, gave the soldiers' preference 24,063 for the amendment and 37,563 against; majority against the preference, 13,500.

From Yates County early reports at Penn Yan said the indications there showed all the propositions defeated, with the possible exception of the new voters' literacy test.

A Batavia dispatch said Genesee County's vote on amendment No. 1, as to the veterans, was 2,000 against and 900 for the amendment; on No. 2, as to legislative salaries, 2,000 against and 700 for the change.

At Utica early indications were that constitutional amendment No. 1 had been defeated in Oneida County.

Incomplete returns at Glens Falls indicated that amendments Nos. 1 and 2 were defeated, and the others carried in Warren County.

Malone reported that amendments 1 and 2 would lose by about 500 votes in Franklin County, the others being presumably carried by 1,000.

The City of Hudson reported that the veterans' preference amendment was defeated by a margin of 369.

Early returns at Catskill, N. Y., indicated all the amendments lost in Greene County by a negative vote of two to one.

Four-fifths of the districts in Ontario County, as reported at Canandaigua, showed this vote: Amendment No. 1—Yes 1,682, no 2,776; No. 2—Yes 993, no 2,915; No. 3—Yes, 1,944, no 1,827.

At Wellsville, N. Y., with over half the returns in, it was indicated that Alleghany County would give a heavy majority against all the amendments.

Sullivan County's vote on the seven amendments, as reported at Monticello, was "close, with no figures available."

Oswego reports at midnight, based on

John F. Hylan was re-elected Mayor of New York City in yesterday's election by a plurality, approximately, 420,000. It is a figure unprecedented in any Mayoralty contest in this city and comparable only with the 438,471 by which President Harding carried New York in the Republican landslide of a year ago. The best figure of "Al" Smith for Governor was 319,929 in 1920.

The victory was indicated in the earliest returns, and later figures only increased the Mayor's vote over those of his opponents. It was a landslide and Senator Calder of Brooklyn, who was the first man on the Fusion side to admit defeat, confessed the fact.

"It's a tremendous beating," said the Senator. "We have met the enemy and we are theirs. Nothing can stand up under a landslide."

As early as 9 o'clock Fusion leaders privately admitted the Hylan victory. Two hours later Major Curran sent this telegram to Mayor Hylan:

The Hon. John F. Hylan, Brooklyn:

I congratulate you upon your election as Mayor of New York and I wish you a successful administration.

HENRY H. CURRAN.

In every borough the Fusion cause was swept under at the polls by an avalanche of Tammany votes. Examination of the figures early this morning seemed to show that in each of the five boroughs the Mayor's plurality actually exceeded the total Curran vote in the borough. Not only did Major Curran fail to carry a single borough, but Fusion came out of the contest with not a single Assembly district in its column. In at least ten districts the vote for Judge Panken, the Socialist candidate, exceeded the vote for Curran.

Mayor Hylan's plurality at 3 o'clock this morning, estimated on the basis of returns from 2,593 election districts out of 2,709 in the entire city, is 420,000.

Whole Ticket Swept In.

The Hylan sweep carried into office the whole of the Tammany ticket—city, county, borough and judiciary. The Mayor now has a solid Board of Estimate behind his policies, without a dissenting voice, except when Controller Craig, re-elected also, fails to agree with him. Tammany again has the District Attorneys, the Borough Presidents and, the indications are, has made substantial gains in the State Assembly and the city Board of Aldermen.

Charles L. Craig's re-election as Controller by a plurality of 240,000 over Charles C. Lockwood, the Coalition candidate, was indicated early this morning by the returns from the bulk of the election districts in the city. He carried every borough by a large majority of all the votes cast. His estimated plurality over Lockwood in Manhattan was 75,000, and he probably has a plurality of 50,000 in The Bronx, 70,000 in Brooklyn, 35,000 in Queens and 9,000 in Richmond.

Murray Hulbert's estimated plurality over Vincent Gilroy, his Coalition opponent, for President of the Board of Aldermen is 260,000, based on returns from 82 per cent. of the election districts in the city.

The Democratic candidates for Borough Presidents have been elected over their Republican and Socialist opponents by indicated pluralities which run from 96,000 votes in the case of Edward Riegelmann in Brooklyn to 5,600 in the case of Matthew J. Cahill in Richmond.

The indicated plurarity of Julius Miller of Manhattan over Ernest F. Ellert is 87,000. Mr. Miller received 97,363 votes in 448 election districts, as compared with 56,295 votes for Ellert. With 421 election districts missing out of a total of 960 in Brooklyn, Riegelmann rolled up a total of 121,509 votes, as compared with 66,336 for George W. Baker, his Republican opponent. With 9 election districts missing out of 79, Matthew J. Cahill, in Richmond, received 16,207 votes, as compared with 11,112 for George Cromwell, his nearest opponent.

The vote for Borough President in the Bronx was incomplete at 3 o'clock this morning. However, with 143 out of 389 election districts heard from, Henry Bruckner had received 33,716 votes, as compared with 12,659 votes for Joseph M. Levine, his Republican opponent. In Queens the plurality of Connelly over Haselton is about 40,000.

This election makes a woman Register in New York County. Miss Annie Mathews, Democrat, beat her most formidable opponent, Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Republican, by two to one. She defeated three women opponents, Miss Boswell, Miss Olga Long, Socialist; Grace Scribner, Farmer-Labor, and two men, Albert T. Hull, Prohibition, and John J. Hopper, Single Tax.

Joab H. Banton, Democratic candidate for District Attorney of New York County, will win over John K. Clark, his Republican opponent, by about 75,000. The county, with 502 election districts missing gave Banton 105,544, Clark 62,479 and Block, Socialist, 12,620.

Lewis Elected a Judge.

There was one partial exception to the general sweep made by Democratic candidates yesterday. Early this morning it appeared that District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County, one of the candidates for the Supreme Court bench in the Second Judicial District, which includes Kings, Queens and the counties of Suffolk and Nassau, had been elected. Justice May, Democrat, was re-elected without doubt in the district, but Lewis's personal popularity resulted in his carrying Kings by 115,309 to 109,534 against Hagarty, the second Democratic nominee.

Hagarty led Lewis in Queens by 20,169 to 12,975 on partial returns, and by more than 2,000 in Richmond, but his estimated plurality in Nassau County is 10,000, and he will also carry Suffolk County.

HYLAN IS JUBILANT; BERATES THE PRESS

Thanks Citizens Who Elected Him and Advises Newspapers That Fought Him to Reform.

RECEPTION AT COMMODORE

Successful Candidate Also Is Welcomed at Turn Verein and Political Club in Brooklyn.

In a statement last night thanking the voters for their support, Mayor Hylan attacked the newspapers that opposed him. He said that influenced either by narrow partisanship or bitter personal hatred they have "pursued a studied course to discredit me and my Administration by all manner of means fair and foul," and he called upon the newspapers to reform. His statement follows:

"I humbly accept this most emphatic verdict of the people of New York City. I am gratified beyond words that they should express their confidence in me in such a decisive fashion. It repays me for all the burden and heat of the fight that I have carried on against great odds in their interest during the last four years. I pledge that my future course will be one that will confirm their faith in me, which they have so generously expressed at the polls.

"The recorded verdict of the people carries a serious and important message to certain of the newspapers of this city. In what I say on this point I harbor no personal resentment or bitterness toward them. I am concerned solely with the effect upon the public interest that ensues from the course which they have pursued in the last four years.

Sought to Discredit Him, He Says.

"Whether influenced by narrow partisanship, or bitter personal hatred of me, or sinister motives, certain newspapers have pursued a studied course to discredit me and my administration by all manner of means, fair or foul. If the result of their course, of their unfairness or of their venom was limited in its effect to me personally, I should be mute, but it takes on a broader, a more vicious, aspect. It has resulted in picturing the city, and conditions in it, in false colors to the eyes of all the people throughout the country, who do not have the opportunity, which our own citizens have, of determining for themselves what the truth is and what the facts are. It adversely affects the business interests of this city, in so far as people in other parts of the country and abroad are misled. In a word, their course has been a vicious force in destroying the high repute which the city should enjoy in the eyes of the entire world.

"The people by their vote have shown their resentment of this course, and the papers guilty of the misconduct which the people have thus rebuked, should reform. I call on them to do so, change their course and hew to the line of truth, fairness and honesty in their news columns, when discussing the activities of the City Government, any of its departments or its population, and not to indulge in malignantly false misrepresentations concerning them. They should also adhere to the same policy in their editorial columns and not indulge in half truths, with false implications, or whole untruths concerning the City Government or any of its departments.

Mayor Names the Newspapers.

"Such a course will not exclude newspapers from the field of fair and honest criticism based on actual fact with a design or purpose to better conditions that never can be perfect, and which can always be improved. On such a basis they can and should co-operate with the Administration in advancing the repute of the City of New York and the cause of good government in municipalities in the eyes of the entire nation.

"That the newspapers in this city which are not properly subject to the condemnation clearly contained and implied in the registered voice of the people may not be done an injustice, I shall enumerate the newspapers who have offended, some to a grosser degree than others, against the standards of honest journalism, the ordinary standards of decency and a proper regard for the fair name of the city in which they are published. These papers in the order of the degree of their violation of these standards are The New York Tribune, The New York Herald, The New York Sun, The New York Morning and Evening World, The Brooklyn Eagle, THE NEW YORK TIMES, The Evening Globe, The Evening Mail and Evening Post.

"The result shows that thousands upon thousands of the readers of these papers have aligned themselves with me and against the course set out in the news and editorial columns of these papers. I trust that the civic patriotism of these papers will be educated by the result, and that their future course will be one for the advancement of the good of the city, as distinguished from what it has been in the last four years.

"On behalf of these readers and all the people of the city I invite the co-operation of every honest agency in this city in progressing our City Government to the point of being the exemplar of efficient and honest municipal government in the United States."

Welcomed at Turn Verein.

At 9 o'clock last night an automobile containing Mayor Hylan, John F. Sinnott, his private secretary; Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of the Department of Plant and Structures, and David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, dashed up to the Brooklyn Eastern District Turn Verein at Bushwick Parkway and Gates Avenue, which is in the neighborhood of the Mayor's home.

The Mayor bounded up the front steps, with Commissioner Hirshfield in close pursuit. A great cheer went up as the Mayor burst into the crowded dining room. Conrad Engle, head of the association, grasped the Mayor and led him to a blackboard at one end of the room. On the blackboard Mr. Engle had written early in the day:

"Mayor Hylan will win by over 400,000 plurality."

The Mayor was laughing like a schoolboy.

"Now listen to this," said Engle, who had a long piece of ticker tape in his hand. "THE NEW YORK TIMES says you have been elected by over four hundred thousand plurality."

Another cheer almost lifted the roof. Every one fought to reach the Mayor's side and grasp his hand.

"Ladies and gentlemen," began the Mayor, when he could be heard, "I have several other places to go to tonight and cannot remain here. I want to thank all my good friends and neighbors for this great tribute. Of course I am glad of my re-election, because it is an indirsement of my four years' administration of this great city. It means more than a personal tribute. It means that my fight to rescue the people from the bondage in which they have been held by unscrupulous interests has been won. I want to thank you for the help and encouragement you have given all through these trying times. I have fought a desperate fight against men in this city who wouldn't stop even at going through your pockets."

Reception in the Commodore.

There were more cheers and the Mayor had to fight his way to the street. From here the Mayor and his companions went in an automobile to his own district club, the Twentieth Assembly District Democratic Club, of which John H. Delaney is leader. There was another noisy reception at this place, the crowd almost mobbing the Mayor in frantic efforts to get close to him.

The Mayor made another speech along the lines of his first one and then hurried out of the building. The Mayor went next to the Commodore Hotel in Manhattan, where a reception by a number of Democrats was awaiting him.

The Mayor's home at 959 Bushwick Avenue, although dark last night, as the family was out, was the roundup place for shouting election crowds who surged through the nearby streets. A crowd stood in front of the unlighted house until after midnight.

On the way over to Manhattan the Mayor dropped in at Democratic Headquarters at 5 Court Square, and, after shaking hands with the Democratic leaders, said:

"I am delighted over the outcome. The returns received indicate my election by a tremendous plurality. This shows the confidence the citizens placed in me and that they took no stock in the stories told about me."

Addresses 1,000 in Commodore.

At 10:15 o'clock the Mayor went to the West Ballroom of the Commodore Hotel, where about 1,000 persons, including many of his commissioners and city employes, had gathered to make merry over the returns. The Mayor was given a hilarious reception as soon as he was recognized, and was pushed to a platform, where he said:

"This is a great victory for the people and against the interests that have been trying to drive me out of the City Hall and betray you. The newspapers have been used by these great and powerful interests to break me down and drive me out, but I knew I was right in the fight, and although I often went home at night tired and weary and wishing I was out of it all, I usually felt better the next morning.

"This victory is a great vindication, for it was not money I have wanted. I could have had any amount of money from this most desperate combination of interests. There would have been no limit I suppose to what I could have obtained, but I preferred to fight the battle of the people. We have fought that battle. I am going to continue the fight until the end of my term of four years and with the co-operation of every department in order to be of the greatest service to you. I shall endeavor to protect you from those who would exploit you, from those who care nothing about humanity.

"I have had a hard fight ever since long before I left the farm and all my life, but I never quit any job I ever tackled."

Says Press Attacked His Wife.

The Mayor was frequently interrupted by outbursts of approval, but the loudest cheering came when he attacked the newspapers.

"Don't pay any attention to anything you may read in the newspapers," he said. "They tried to drive me out of City Hall. They have said every hard and scurrilous thing about me they could think of. They haven't alone tried to break me down, but have tried to break down Mrs. Hylan as well.

"They have sent scurrilous literature to Mrs. Hylan. The New York World tried even to drag Mrs. Hylan into it, although she had nothing to do with it. They have said things too shameful to repeat to you. That is what caused that woman's nervous indigestion during the past two years. Because of it I had to take her from a sickbed to the South for a short time, but when we came back it all began again.

"If I could tell you some of the things that have been said and written your hair would stand on end. I've had a tough fight of it, but I have stuck to the job and I'm going to stick four years more."

The Mayor called upon Archbishop Hayes at the Cathedral. Then he went back to the Commodore and joined a private dinner that was being held in the east ballroom, at which were present former Governor Alfred Smith and a number of city officials.

Mayor Hylan dropped into Tammany Hall shortly after 10 o'clock and received a great ovation. Charles F. Murphy greeted him effusively, shaking his hand and congratulating him on his election. The Mayor then went upstairs to the auditorium, where he was enthusiastically received by a large crowd. He was escorted to the speakers' platform and told how thankful he was over his election and thanked the members of Tammany Hall for the loyal support given him.

SHANK WINS INDIANAPOLIS.

Ex-Mayor Defeats Ralston, Democrat, by About 22,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Samuel L. Shank, Republican and ex-Mayor, went into office again today on a landslide, defeating his Democratic opponent, Boyd M. Ralston, by a plurality estimated at 22,000. Unofficial returns from 162 of the 166 precincts give Shank 59,443 and Ralston 36,180. The entire Republican ticket was elected with Shank.

Interest in elections in other Indiana cities centred around the contests in Terre Haute, South Bend, Evansville, Muncie and Fort Wayne.

The unofficial vote of Evansville shows Benjamin Bosse, Democrat, elected Mayor for the third term over John Stuart Hopkins, Republican.

Eli F. Seebirt, Republican, has been elected Mayor of South Bend by a majority of 3,500 over Frank Bilinski, Democrat.

no indication at midnight as to how many of them had been elected. One of them was Mrs. Margaret B. Laird, who was seeking re-election in Newark with Mrs. Van Ness.

This is enough to elect a Republican State Treasurer and retain control of the State House Commission.

The proposed $14,000,000 bond issue for the State Department of Institutions and Agencies was badly beaten.

The Legislature.

Returns from the Assembly elections received at an early hour this morning indicate that the next Assembly will be composed of 95 Republicans, 52 Democrats and 3 Socialist members.

The present Assembly is made up of 110 Republicans, 35 Democrats and 5 Socialists. Thus there is a net gain of 17 seats for the Democrats, of which 5 were captured in districts outside of New York City and 12 in city districts. This will mean that the Republican representation from New York City, at present composed of 24 members, has been cut in two in the Democratic tidal wave which swept Mayor Hylan and his running mates on the Democratic city ticket into office by such towering pluralities.

Most of the Republican losses within the city were sustained in Brooklyn districts. In Manhattan the Republican organization succeeded in electing eight Assemblymen. In the Bronx the Democrats apparently carried every district with the exception of the Fourth, which was carried by Louis Weitz, a Socialist. The Democratic victories in that borough in the Assembly elections are in very large measure due to the nomination of candidates under the fusion arrangement with the view to defeating the Socialists who have unusual strength in that borough.

In Queens only one district, the Fourth, on incomplete returns, appears to have been won by a Republican candiate. Mrs. Ebba M. Winslow is the Republican candidate in the fourth. Both districts in Richmond were carried by the Democratic candidates. E. V. Frerichs, the present Republican Assemblyman, from the Second Richmond District, who was a candidate for re-election, was defeated by a large plurality.

Although the Miller transit program was made an issue in the campaign by the Democrats with such signal success, several Republican Assemblymen who voted for the Transit bill, on returns which as yet are not complete, are running ahead and will probably be elected. In this number are included Assemblymen Edward R. Rayher of the Ninth Manhattan District, Leo V. Doherty of the Tenth District in Brooklyn, and W. F. Clayton of the Twenty-first District in Brooklyn.

In several city districts the returns received when this edition of THE TIMES was going to press showed such a close vote that the result may be reversed when all the figures are in.

Besides Weitz in the Bronx, August Claessens, in the Seventeenth Manhattan, and L. P. Goldberg in the Twenty-third Brooklyn District, appear to have won.

Almost a dozen women running for the Assembly were defeated. A majority were candidates on the Socialist ticket in districts where the Socialists had no chance of winning. Assemblyman Miss Marguerite L. Smith in the Nineteenth Manhattan District, who has served two terms in the Assembly, was defeated by a man whose name, oddly enough, is Male.

Senators were elected to fill two vacancies, one in the Sixteenth Senatorial district in Manhattan, where T. I. Sheridan, the Democratic candidate won. The other was in the Forty-sixth Senatorial district, which takes in part of Monroe County where H. E. Dick, the Republican candidate who ran with Prohibition endorsement, was elected.

Returns from up-State indicate that in Chemung County Assemblyman John J. Richford, Republican, running for re-election, had been defeated by Oscar Kahler, the Democratic candidate. With this additional seat won, the Democrats, according to present returns, have scored a net gain of five seats up-State, with the likelihood that the Democratic tidal wave in this city may add more.

In the present Assembly there are 116 Republican members, of whom 86 were elected from up-State districts and 24 from districts within this city.

Schoharie County, which has sent a Republican to the Assembly for the last four years, at yesterday's election gave a majority of approximately 500 to Wallace H. Sidney, who was running against Harry M. Greenwald, the Republican candidate, who is a member of the present Assembly.

Another Democratic gain was in the First Rensselaer District, where Hugh C. Morissey, the present Republican member, was defeated by John Rourke. The district is wholly within the City of Troy and is normally Democratic, but the Republicans, having won the seat in the Republican landslide last year, hoped to retain it.

The Democrats also scored in Sullivan County, where Assemblyman John C. Gray, who was a candidate for re-election, was defeated by his Democratic opponent, Guernsey T. Cross of Callicoon.

In the Fifth Assembly District of Erie County, Buffalo's "East Side," Alexander A. Patrzykowski, a Democrat, was running as a fusion entry, supported by Democrats, Republicans and Prohibitionists, in a victorious race with Louis F. Reith, Socialist candidate. This district is represented by Ansley B. Borkowski, a Republican, in the present Assembly.

The Republicans suffered another disappointment in their failure to recapture the Second Assembly District of Albany County, which was won by the Democrats in the election last year, when the G. O. P. made such a clean sweep in the Assembly elections in other sections up-State.

The Republicans will have an ample working majority, seventy-six votes being required for the passage of bills in the lower house.

Speaker H. Edmund Machold won in Jefferson County by a very large majority and undoubtedly will be re-elected to his present position of honor and power in the Assembly. Assemblyman Simon L. Adler of Monroe, Republican floor leader of the present Assembly, was also returned, as was Joseph A. McGinnies from the Second Assembly District of Chautauqua County, who thus in all likelihood will continue as Chairman of the important Committee on Ways and Means. Nearly all of the men at present filling Chairmanships of important standing committees have been returned also.

The Democratic victory in the municipal election in Syracuse which furnishes approximately half of the vote in Onondaga County did not affect the result of the Assembly elections. All three Republican Assemblymen from Onondaga were candidates for re-election and won.

In Monroe County, with the City of Rochester showing a marked falling off in the Republican vote for municipal offices, five Republican Assemblymen were elected.

In Erie County, with Buffalo, the second largest city in the State, in the throes of a spirited municipal contest, the Republicans lost only one seat in addition to that retained by the Democrats in last year's Republican landslide.

Five women candidates running in up-State districts, three of these Socialists and two Democrats, all went down to defeat.

In the Second Assembly District of Nassau County F. Trubee Davison, a son of Henry P. Davison, a member of J. P. Morgan & Co., was elected to succeed Theodore Roosevelt Jr., who retired from the Assembly to become Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Davison is a former service man, who, during the war, was a Lieutenant in the naval air service.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATIC.

Control of Lower House Assured—Senate May Be a Tie.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—The Democrats today apparently regained control of the State Legislature lost to the Republicans two years ago.

At midnight the Democrats were assured of being able to reorganize the House of Representatives, but the result in the Senate hinged on the outcome of the voting in the Eighteenth and Thirty-fourth Districts. At that hour returns showed an assured 53 of the 100 members of the Lower House to the Democrats. The Senate stood 19 Democrats and 17 Republicans, with two districts incomplete.

Reports from eighteen precincts out of forty-five in Boyd County give Mrs. Mary Flanery, Democrat, a lead of 200 over Dan Vose, her Republican opponent, for the Legislature. If elected, Mrs. Flanery will be the first woman to sit in the House.

Republicans Lose Mayoralty Fight in Albany for First Time in 22 Years.

Wet Candidate Wins in Buffalo—Lunn Is Re-elected in Schenectady.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Returns from today's mayoralty elections in this State are regarded here as showing a marked trend toward the Democratic Party throughout the State.

For the first time in twenty-two years Albany has elected a Democratic Mayor. William S. Hackett, the Democratic candidate, won handily over William Van R. Erning, his Republican opponent, the latest returns indicating that he will have more than 5,000 majority.

In Buffalo the contest for Mayor was between two Republicans, and the issue was prohibition. Frank X. Schwab, a brewer candidate of the wets, defeated George S. Buck, who was supported by most of the dry element.

On the other hand, Rochester Republicans elected Clarence Van Zandt Mayor, after the hottest campaign in twenty years, by a plurality of less than 2,000, and his success was due to prohibition endorsement.

In Syracuse the Republicans suffered defeat for the first time in more than fifteen years. Deforest Settle, their candidate for Mayor, was defeated by John H. Waldrath, Democrat, by a plurality of nearly 7,000. Street car fares and taxes were leading issues in the campaign.

Democrats in Schenectady won a notable victory in re-electing Mayor George R. Lunn for a fourth term, though not consecutive. He had previously served two single terms, and today was chosen for his second successive term. It is the first time in twenty-eight years that Schenectady has elected the same Mayor for two successive terms.

In Rome the Democrats elected Dr. William S. Reid Mayor by 1,866 plurality. Two years ago the Republicans carried the city for Mayor by 769 plurality.

Oneonta chose a Democratic Mayor for the first time in its history, when C. C. Miller received a majority of 67 over his Republican opponent and present Mayor, Andrew E. Ceperley.

Lackawanna, which now has a Socialist Mayor, the only one of his party in the State, elected a Democrat, Michael J. Mescall, to succeed him.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Buffalo registered a protest against prohibition today by electing Frank X. Schwab, a brewer, to the Mayoralty. Schwab and his opponent, George S. Buck, the present Mayor, are both Republicans, and prohibition was regarded as the issue on which Schwab won 62,000 votes and a majority of 2,563.

Schwab has promised throughout his campaign that if elected he will go to Washington and fight for a modification of the Volstead law so as to permit the sale of beer and light wines. He has denied charges that his election would mean a "wide-open town" and has declared that all laws will be enforced while they are laws. However, he has promised to abolish the present Police Dry Squad, which has done effective work in rounding up violators of the State Prohibition law in Buffalo.

The victory of Schwab was a surprise in some respects, since it had been conceded that he lost much ground during the last few days of the campaign. Betting odds, which a week ago were 10 to 7 on Schwab, closed 2 to 1 against him. It is generally believed that had the election been held a week ago Schwab's majority would have been several thousand greater.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, is believed to have cost Mayor Buck many votes by his interference in the city campaign. Mr. Anderson spoke here soon after the primaries, and urged the voters to retain Buck and defeat Schwab. The wet forces made much capital out of what they termed interference by an outsider in a municipal campaign, and Anderson's action is believed to have solidified the Schwab following to a large extent.

ELECTION NIGHT JOY MOSTLY HORN TOOTS

CROWDS IN THE CABARETS

But Confetti Was Not In Sight and Former Gayety Was Noticeably Absent.

One of the Chinese unofficial delegates to the conference on disarmament looked out of his hotel window last night and saw a large crowd moving up and down, blowing horns and making large noises as if to scare away the devil, in the best known orthodox Chinese manner.

"How very interesting," he said. "Your people are so enthusiastic."

Just then a young man across the street poked a horn into the face of a young woman and blew. Some one else tucked a feather duster under her chin and brushed the power from her throat.

"You are so original, you Americans," he continued. "Yes, your politics is a big game, is it not?"

Across the street was a huge banner proclaiming that the only candidate would, if elected, be the best representative of the people that the well known populace had ever had.

"We can not do things so well in China," quoth the learned Easterner. "There a candidate cannot go out and say that if he is elected he will be the best Mayor the city ever had, and that he is going to make all other Mayors look—what you call it—like 30 cents. No, when our candidates go before the people they say that they are pleased that so distinguished an honor should be thrust upon their humble selves, and that if it seems to be the will of the people that they should be chosen, however unworthily, to represent them, they will do their best to please the honorable persons who have dignified them by their favor. Yes, it is rather different in China, but you are such a progressive and so interesting a people."

And the eminent son of China turned with an old Eastern courtesy from the window and proceeded to solace himself in the midst of so great an enthusiasm for politics with the latest journal on political science.

Different in the Bowery.

But way down on the Bowery there was a different reaction to the turmoil that proclaimed Hylan Mayor by 400,000. There in the only bar that still boasts a brass rail, in a room of the Salvation Army hotel, Mike the 'Bite shifted his foot and spoke sadly to One-Eyed Reilly as he drained a flagon of root beer.

"The times ain't what they was onct, One-Eye. If Big Tim could see us now he'd think the world had all gone wrong."

"Cheerio," said One-Eye, having served overseas, and knowing the proper salutation from one pal to another. Ain't life getting something awful."

And so it went. Up on Broadway there was a place where in the good old days election night had been a place of wild song and those who entered took punishment with a careless grace that made the evening notable.

Captain Jim Churchill's was not far away, but Jim's place is no longer sought for by those who have cast away care. Jim has gone with the cocktails and he is hardly a memory to Broadway, although when Mr. Hylan last ran for office Jim's was so wet that one needed rubber boots to get by the door, in this place of which we are speaking young things with a zest for life calmly cogitated ice cream sodas.

"Let's have another, old thing," said one. "Ray for Hylan."

"Strawberry," said her consort to the waiter.

But yet in certain select resorts which shall be nameless, while the crowd of wildly disposed persons with horns drifted up and down under the electric lights, were tables where cheer reigned, and enthusiasm broke loose every time a cork loosened. They were reminiscent, these spots of joy, and in them persons who wore paper caps upon their moist brows and danced fawnlike amid the colored lights, did not know that outside the world had changed and time had gone forward in its flight. A certain amendment was there as dead as Pharaoh, and if it was toasted occasionally who shall blame Mr. Yellowley?

Broadway on Election Night.

No one stood upon the tables—that good old sport of the days when Broadway was the centre of the world has vanished before the spectre of some one peeking through the front window—but wasn't it grand to be able to look upon something when it was red or pink or green or yellow and know that it was going to make the morrow a sad and solemn affair! That was Broadway for the initiate last night, very orderly outside where the crowds flowed up and down and rather prancingly gay inside where things flowed down.

There wasn't a cabaret along the line from Columbus Circle to Thirty-fourth Street that didn't have persons waiting at the door. They may have hoped only, but they hoped. Reservations were taken long before, those who came were prepared for anything, even to both hip pockets. Private dinner parties there were which boasted of a higher grade than others, but the general atmosphere, no matter where one drifted early in the evening, was fair, and warmer promised before midnight.

The streets were more orderly than they have been in many elections. There wasn't an ounce of confetti in sight, and the pavement under foot was bare of all the things which used to be gathered up and hurled down the necks of giggling young persons armed with dusters. Horns were evident, but they were blown by those who wanted to sell them, and most of those afoot drifted up one side and down the other, murmuring as they stepped on each other's heels:

Not Much for Police to Do.

"Well, it's all over, let's go home."

There was something strange about the crowd from the very beginning. Whether it was because the election of Hylan was a foregone conclusion from the time the first returns were flashed upon the screens or whether it was the outward metamorphosis from the wild pandemonium of other years stimulated by something stronger than grape juice is hard to tell. But in the many days when police have been detailed to handle Broadway crowds they never had an easier time than last night. A few hurrying souls who stepped off the sidewalk and had to be pushed back were the utmost sign of disorder that occurred all evening.

THE TIMES bulletin boards attracted a big crowd from early in the evening. Soon after 8 o'clock they began to gather and by 8 were packed solidly in the centre of Times Square from Forty-third Street to Forty-fourth and along the building line. But they were strangely silent and hardly a cheer went up at any bulletin. They acted as if they wondered what it was all about and what all the shootin' was for, anyway. Mr. Hylan was in again for four more years and that was all there was to it. The proletariat had done their duty and were silent about it.

But up in Harlem the kids organized things better. They rediscovered the election bonfire. There was a time when bonfires were quite the thing in elections, along with red lights and torchlight processions, but they have lapsed, even in the rural districts. Last night the youngsters of Harlem began to emulate their grandfathers, and piled wood in the streets and set fire to it, dancing around the blaze like young Indians. They had a bully time, and it kept the Street Cleaning Department busy all night putting out the fires, which burned like signal lights in nearly every street north of 110th.

Another interesting manifestation of the election was down at Police Headquarters, where several hundred policemen were on reserve awaiting a riot call which did not materialize. When the election of Hylan was conceded they burst forth into song and appeared happy. That was about all the police had to do all night long.

Up in the Bronx the crowds gathered in Third Avenue, between 148th and 149th Streets, to watch the returns, and it was estimated that 30,000 persons were there during the evening. At Tremont and Washington Avenues another large crowd waited for the returns.

Crowds in the Hotels.

Although the election night crowds in the hotels and restaurants were smaller than in former years the never failing election night thrill put life and interest into the many parties. The grand ballroom of the Biltmore was packed for the Tuesday evening dinner dance, and between dances the bellboys carried announcements of the returns to the ballroom. The Biltmore-Commodore radio station on the roof of the Commodore Hotel flashed the returns to sea for a distance of 500 miles.

At the McAlpin one of the largest groups in the grill room was that of Joab H. Banton, candidate for District Attorney, who entertained more than sixty friends with a supper dance while the returns were coming in. As is their custom, the McAlpin and Waldorf-Astoria distributed special election bulletins by bell boys every five minutes. The Club de Vingt in the Bradley-Martin ballroom at the Waldorf-Astoria had a big attendance and the other rooms were comfortably filled.

The St. Regis main restaurant was filled with dinner parties, and the returns were announced by pages. Among those entertaining were Mrs. William Alexander, Mrs. Arthur B. Twombly, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Walbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Axel F. Wallenberg and Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Hoyt.

The crowds at Delmonico's were more quiet than in former years and received the returns with scattering applause. Mrs. Joseph de Tours Lentilhon, Henry F. Eldridge, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Mrs. William Adams Kissam and Sidney Dillon Ripley were among those entertaining parties.

The Hylan League received returns and entertained during the evening in one of the small ballrooms of the Commodore Hotel. About 1,500 persons attended the dance in the grand ballroom. At the Belmont there were a number of small dinner parties and also at the Murray Hill Hotel, which was the Curran headquarters.

Among those celebrating in the new terraced restaurant of the Plaza were Captain Gilbert P. Cotton, Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Prime, Mr. and Mrs. Willis S. Paine, Mr. and Mrs. George Hay Whigham, Mrs. George C. Heye and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Doheny.

At the restaurants on Park Avenue the dinner and supper parties broke up comparatively early. Among those entertaining at Pierre's were Mr. and Mrs. Sydney J. Colford, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnum, Mrs. Roy Rainey and Mrs. Earl Kirby. Sherry's, at 300 Park Avenue, had a busy day, starting at the luncheon hour.

The Claridge had its usual large election night throng at its supper dance, and the returns were shown on two large stereopticon screens. At the Astor the grand ballroom had been prepared on account of the heavy reservations, and this, as well as the other rooms, was filled with gay crowds. The Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt, Lorraine, Ritz-Carlton, Ambassador and other hotels made special arrangements for election night and accommodated those who cared to celebrate.

REBUKE TO MILLER, UNTERMYER SAYS

Only Redeeming Thing About the Election, Attorney Asserts—Never Had a Doubt About Outcome.

Samuel Untermyer last night made the following comment on the result of the election:

"I never entertained the slightest doubt of the outcome from the time I entered the Mayoralty fight, only eight days ago and from the time I returned from Europe, as all my friends know, but there was no escape from it in the interest of decent government. The only redeeming thing is the rebuke administered to Governor Miller and his Legislature for meddling in the affairs of this city. If the result is construed as it should be, as a referendum against such interference, and if it leads to the repeal of the Transit Commission act, as it should, the object lesson may be worth the fearful cost and humiliation of four years more of Hylan government and the triumph of a campaign of camouflage.

"The defeat of Senator Lockwood, on whose behalf alone I made the fight, is, however, a severe disappointment and a grave injustice to a loyal and fearless public servant. I am sorry the people did not show greater discrimination, but there is a silver lining to that cloud. We shall retain his services on the Housing Committee and in the Legislature to put through our important program of remedial legislation. I urged him by cable from Europe not to accept the nomination and pointed out that he could perrorm far greater service where he is, but when he permitted himself to be persuaded there was nothing to do but to stand back of him though against my own judgment."

TRANSIT COMMISSION PLAN TO GO AHEAD

Result of Election Will Have No Effect on Continuation of Its Functions.

An unofficial opinion expressed three days ago by the Transit Commission was to the effect that the result of the election would have no effect whatever upon the plan for the consolidation of the traction lines.

The expression was the answer to a question as to whether a Hylan victory of 200,000 plurality would not indicate that the people of the city were opposed to the plan. In its statement, published on Sunday last, the commission said:

"The commission's functions are clearly defined by law, and it will proceed, immediately following the election, as the law directs, to complete its general plan of reorganization along the lines it has already indicated."

COUZENS LEADS IN DETROIT.

Mayor Sought Re-election on Municipal Ownership Administration.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—Mayor James Couzens, seeking re-election on his municipal ownership administration, was holding a lead of approximately two to one over Daniel W. Smith when one-fifth of the precincts had reported late tonight. The election was non-partisan. The tabulated ballot in 131 precincts was: Couzens 9,844, Smith 5,041.

The vote in sixty precincts showed the eight Councilmen in the lead for re-election.

A number of charter amendments were submitted to the voters and sixty precincts gave comfortable majorities in favor of all but one—that proposing expansion of the City Council and adoption of a twenty-four-ward system.

The amendments favored included those providing for the ouster of the Detroit United Railway from Fort Street and Woodward Avenue; for payment of city taxes by instalments; for erection of a $5,500,000 memorial hall to Detroit soldiers and for a trial of "trackless trolley" transportation.

MANY VIOLATIONS REPORTED AT POLLS

POLICEMAN AIDS TAMMANY

"All Sorts of Violations," Says Barrett—Justice McCook Holds Court In His Home.

Despite the precautions taken by officials and volunteers to prevent fraud in the casting and counting of ballots, many reports of irregularities were made last night.

The Fourth Assembly District on the lower east side, was mentioned in complaints received by Alexander Wolf, Special Deputy Attorney General, and by Beach Barrett, Acting Director of the Honest Ballot Association. Mr. Wolf, who was in charge of 110 lawyers assigned by Charles D. Newton, Attorney General, to act in election cases, said "identification" tags had been attached to ballots in one election district of the Fourth Assembly District and had been slipped into the ballot boxes with the ballots so that a check could be made as to whether certain persons had voted as they agreed to vote. Inspectors were ordered to arrest any one seen doing this.

Mr. Wolf also said he had received a complaint that a Democratic captain had buttonholed voters in the polling place of the eleventh election district of the Fourth Assembly District, at Sheriff and Broome Streets. It was reported that the policeman on duty there did not stop the practice when asked to do so.

Policeman Electioneers at Polls.

It was reported that Tammany workers were allowed to electioneer in many polling places. In one instance, even a policeman on duty in a polling place called out, "It's all over but the shouting. Vote the straight Democratic ticket." When told this was a violation of the law he ceased momentarily, but was heard repeating the same refrain a little later.

Mr. Barrett said many reports had been made by its 1,000 watchers, most of them volunteers, of irregularities in New York, Bronx and Kings Counties.

"Two glaring instances were encountered in the Fourth Assembly District," Mr. Barrett said. "In the Fourth Election District the election officials were plainly antagonistic to our watchers. All sorts of violations were found—the usual thing. Finally, when a new group of officials came on duty at 6 o'clock, about twenty men rushed into the place and jostled our watchers out, treating them roughly.

"The same thing happened in the Ninth Election District, where the law was violated by folding ballots, counting protested ballots, and all the other stock tricks. Our watcher was driven out there also in the same way, but Albert S. Bardt Chairman of our legal committee, went over and got our watchers back in both polling places.

Indictments To Be Sought.

"Last year they tried the same trick in the Fourth Election District, and we obtained four indictments in that district, among the total of twelve indictments brought about by our reports. This year we expect to follow the same procedure. We have seven local offices, with supervisors and lawyers, and whenever a watcher gets into trouble or meets with difficulty at a polling place, he sends word to the nearest local office, which sends help in an automobile.

"All reports of violations will be investigated thoroughly and our legal advisory committee will report to the Attorney General. Conditions are just about the same this year as last year. They have not grown wings during the year."

It was said that a man was found masquerading as a representative of the Honest Ballot Association in a polling place in the Second Assembly District, but was not arrested. Watchers and inspectors of the association said they had observed many cases where political workers buttonholed voters at the polls and refused to stop. In such cases, it was said, the "workers" grinned at the policeman on duty, and the policeman grinned back.

Holds Court in His Home.

In several cases men and women had to obtain court orders compelling the election officials to permit them to vote. Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook held court in his home at 413 East Fifty-seventh Street for such cases. He signed an order for an Election Inspector in the Twenty-third Assembly District to show cause why an Italian in that district should not cast his ballot. The Italian said that the ballot had been snatched from his hand. Justice McCook also signed an order compelling the Chairman of the Election Board in the Seventeenth Assembly District to show cause why two Italian women should not be permitted to vote. They told the Court they had been stopped from voting because they had made a slight difference in spelling their mother's names, compared with the spelling given when they registered.

Justice McCook also signed an order to show cause why a second ballot should not be given to Michael Polito of 2,180 Second Avenue after Chairman Antonio P. Siviglia of the Board of Inspectors of the Twenty-third Election District of the Eighteenth Assembly District had torn up Polito's first ballot. Later Justice Richard F. Lydon directed Siviglia to give Polito a second ballot.

Gets Writ of Mandamus to Vote.

When Mrs. Annie Farrell of 122 Charlton Street appeared at the polling place of the Thirty-fourth Election District of the First Assembly District she was notified by the Chairman of the Board of Inspectors that she had registered illegally and her vote could not be accepted.

Charles A. Curtin, member of the Law Committee of Tammany Hall, obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Donnelly to show cause why a writ of mandamus should not be issued compelling the Board of Inspectors to accept her vote. The order was argued before Judge Lydon.

Russell L. Tarbox, Assistant Corporation Counsel, appearing for the Board of Elections, opposed the writ on the ground that the woman's name did not appear on a list of twenty who had registered wrongly in the Thirty-first Election District and had been directed to re-register in the Thirty-fourth. Mrs. Farrell said she had received no notice to re-register, and Justice Lydon signed the order allowing her to vote in the Thirty-fourth District.

Commissioner of Elections Voorhis said it was the quietest election day he had ever experienced.

WILSON VOTES BY PROXY.

Ballot Cast for Ex-President at Princeton in State Election.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—Woodrow Wilson's ballot in the State election was cast for him here today by Holmes B. La Rue, Chairman of the Mercer County Board of Elections, under the law permitting voting by absent citizens.

Although he has not lived here since 1912, Princeton has continued to be Mr. Wilson's legal residence, and, until his his first election to the Presidency in illness in 1919, he returned every year to vote.

REPUBLICANS' FAULT, J. M. PRICE CHARGES

Fusion Organizer Asserts That Organization Gave No Aid With Funds or Votes.

"I do not believe the Republican organization has been of any help to us in this campaign, either with funds or with votes."

So said Joseph M. Price, organizer of the Coalition Committee, last night in explaining the defeat of Henry H. Curran and the large vote for Mayor Hylan. Another reason given at the Coalition headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel was the unpopularity of the Miller Administration.

In support of his charge that local Republican leaders had knifed Curran by "laying down on the job," Mr. Price cited several instances which he said he had witnessed personally at several Republican polling places. He asserted that he had many reports of failure by Republican leaders to display party loyalty and activity in behalf of Major Curran, but refrained from making any direct charges against the leaders by name. He intimated, however, that he might have more to say on the subject today or tomorrow.

Mr. Price, who was one of the active leaders in the fusion movement in the campaign of Mayor Mitchel in 1917, said that "fusion" or "coalition" nominations with partisan candidates of either of the big parties had failed signally to met the political situation, mainly because the appeal must be made to one or the other of the party followers instead of to all the people interested in good government.

"But we must not permit the political situation to go by default," he asserted. "The defeat shows that new methods must be called into being to meet the wishes of the voters—a new organization, and one that may include all independents and advocates of good government within all parties.

"We must endeavor in this new organization to get in not only the liberals, but the radicals. We must reach the people who were influenced by a certain newspaper in this city which published only one side of the campaign news. The present committee will continue. Out of the membership of some 350 members there should be retained at least 100 men and women to form a new organization immediately and prepare for the campaign four years hence."

According to Mr. Price, the coalition campaign had been waged on a fund less than $100,000. He said there was a deficit.

Borough President Curran had no comment to make on the charge by Mr. Price that Republicans had "cut" their own candidate.

"The majority rule, and the majority has spoken," said Major Curran. "I deeply appreciate the work of the men and women who aided in the campaign that I have had the honor to lead. Let us now bend our efforts as citizens to the good of our city. Service and city come first. To the incoming administration I extend my congratulations and my best wishes for success in service to the people of New York."

Samuel S. Koenig, Republican County Chairman, said:

"On the general result I have nothing to say. It speaks for itself. We are, however, glad to report that Sol. Ulman has been re-elected to the Assembly from the Sixth Assembly District, beating the Socialist candidate by more than 800 votes. Frank J. Dozier has beaten Beckerman, the present Socialist Alderman from the Sixth Aldermanic District by more than 600 votes."

At 11:30 o'clock last night the Socialist leaders in the Bronx said they were pinning their hopes on Louis Weitz for Assemblyman in the Fourth Assembly District. They did not expect at that hour to see any other Socialist Assemblyman elected.

The defeat of Alderman Braunstein in the Thirty-second Aldermanic District was conceded by the Socialists. It also was conceded that there had been a decided drift in the Socialist vote in the Bronx to Mayor Hylan.

In the Seventh Assembly District of the Bronx, Justice Panken was running 20 per cent. behind other Socialist candidates, it was said.

District Attorney-Elect Says He Will Try Cases in Courts, Not in Newspapers.

District Attorney-elect Joab H. Banton made this comment this morning:

"My gratification at the result of the election is exceeded only by the great responsibilities of the office of District Attorney. My one aim will be to show my gratitude to the people of New York County by performing the commonplace tasks of my office in an uncommon manner.

"All the skill which nearly thirty years of experience as a trial lawyer have given me; all the learning I have acquired, and all the natural ability I may possess, will be used in disposing of the routine business of the office work, and thoroughness will be required of every member of the staff.

"Any case which involves human liberty is serious. Those accused of crime must have a fair trial, careful consideration of a case is more to be desired than speed, but business will be dispatched as expeditiously as the public interests require and the Constitutional rights of the accused will permit.

"The innocent need not be afraid, but the guilty will not escape. No one will be 'railroaded.' Those who attempt to 'frame' another will find themselves in the toils of the law. The office of District Attorney is, and for the next four years will be, a law office. Cases will be tried in the courts and not in the newspapers.

"I have no ambition save to serve the people in the position to which I have been elected. My one desire is to justify the confidence that the voters of New York County possessed in electing me, and, at the end of my term, to retire to my private practice."

Ernest F. Eilert, Republican-Coalition candidate for President of the Borough of Manhattan, would not concede his defeat at 1 o'clock this morning. He said that, while on the face of the returns there had apparently been a Democratic sweep, he thought that later returns would improve his own chances of winning.

Representative Isaac N. Siegel, early today at the Federal Republican Club, 110th Street and Lexington Avenue, attributed the Democratic victory to three causes:

"First, resentment by the people in the matter of the soldiers' bonus; second, the Republicans could not make the people believe that the five-cent fare would be as safe under Republican rule as under Hylan, and, third, the Republicans had no money to spend in the various districts."

Mayoralty Candidate Wins and Colleague Leads Opponent.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—George Carrel, Republican candidate for Mayor, won an easy victory in today's election, defeating Dr. Charles L. Benifield, Democrat, and Judge Joseph B. Kelly, Independent.

The real race was centred on the Vice Mayor. At a late hour tonight, with 325 of the 468 precincts in the city heard from, Gilbert Bettman, Republican, was leading his opponent, Thomas D. Morrow, running on both the Democratic and Independent tickets, by 6,602 votes.

DEMOCRATS ELECT VIRGINIA GOVERNOR

MARYLAND PROBABLY WON

Democrats Seem to Have Got Control of Legislature and Elected Controller.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8.—Unless returns from missing precincts cut down the commanding lead of Senator E. Lee Trinkle of Wythe, the Democratic nominee for Governor, over his Republican opponent, Henry J. Anderson of Richmond, the Democrats have won by over 60,000 majority in today's State election, according to figures from incomplete returns compiled by The Times Dispatch at 11 o'clock tonight.

The rest of the ticket, returns indicate, has been swept into office with Trinkle at varying majorities, totaling slightly less than the vote cast for Governor. Trinkle has defeated Anderson, the "Lily White" Republican candidate, Mrs. George Curtis, Independent; John Mitchell Jr., "Lily Black" Republican, and negro candidate and John P. Goodman, Independent Socialist.

Junius E. West of Suffolk, for Lieutenant Governor, defeats John H. Hassinger, Republican; Theodore Nash and Adolph Muller. John R. Saunders, for Attorney General, defeats Harry K. Wolcott, Republican, and J. Thomas Newsome, negro. B. O. James, for Secretary of the Commonwealth, defeats T. X. Parsons, Republican, and F. V. Bacoaus, negro. Charles A. Johnson, for State Treasurer, has defeated J. W. Flanagan, Republican, and Thomas E. Jackson, negro; Harris Hart, for Superintendent of Public Instruction, defeats Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis Otey, Republican, and Maggie L. Walker, negro. G. W. Kerner, for Commissioner of Agriculture, has defeated J. S. Baldeman, Republican, and Arthur T. Brickhouse, negro. For member of the State Corporation Commission, Berkley D. Adams of Charlotte has won over Gilbank Twigg, Republican.

J. Murray Hooker has been elected to Congress from the Fifth District, to succeed Rorer A. James, deceased, by an estimated majority of 4,000 over Thomas L. Felts, Republican.

Democrats Lead in Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—Returns from a large portion of the city precincts and from eight of the twenty-three counties of the State indicated the election today of William S. Gordy Jr., Democratic nominee for State Controller, a Democratic Legislature and all of the Democratic city candidates.

Reports from Baltimore County indicated a probable majority of 1,000 there for the Controllership nominee and the rest of the Democratic ticket, while Southern Maryland reports were that Mr. Gordy was running well there. Dorchester, Caroline and Cecil, on the Eastern Shore, reported that he was leading the Democratic ticket there, with substantial majorities over Senator Metzerott.

In the city all of the Democratic candidates were leading their Republican opponents, Howard W. Jackson, candidate for Register of Wills, showing the way with nearly 2,000 majority in fifty precincts.

Judge Charles F. Stein, candidate for Associate Judge, was last on the ticket, with less than 1,000 majority.

The majority which Edward Gross, Democratic candidate for Clerk of the Criminal Court, on whom the Republican fight centred, had over Levi Thompson, Republican, was less than that of Judge Stein, but the difference was more than made up by the vote received by William S. Mantz, running as an independent.

Dr. Howard A. Kelly, radium king and reformer, who entered the race as an Independent in the Third District and who conducted a spectacular campaign through the churches, was apparently badly beaten. In 13 out of 148 scattered precincts in his district he was running thirteenth, with a good distance separating him from the twelfth man.

CLEVELAND ELECTS KOHLER AS MAYOR

City Manager Plan Adopted by Vote of 2 to 1—Hill Re-elected Mayor of Lakewood.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8.—Fred Kohler, former Chief of Police, and present County Commissioner, running as an independent Republican candidate, today was elected Mayor of Cleveland over Mayor William H. Fitzgerald, Republican. On unofficial returns from 520 of the 747 precincts of the city at 11 o'clock tonight, leaders of both Republican and Democratic Party organizations conceded his election.

Kohler's final plurality on all-choice votes is estimated at 10,000 by the two party leaders. His election followed a house-to-house campaign without the backing of an organization and without him having made a single speech during the campaign.

Edmund B. Hasero, Democratic organization candidate, will probably run third, and James R. Hinchliffe, independent Republican, fourth.

Kohler's term as Mayor will be limited to two years, as the City Manager plan charter amendment is said to have gone over by a vote of 2 to 1. This means that on Jan. 1, 1924, a City Council of twenty-five, selected from four districts by proportional representation, will choose a City Manager to handle the city's administrative business. It is said Cleveland is the largest city in the country to adopt the City Manager plan.

Mayor-elect Kohler is 56 years old. He entered the Police Department in 1889 and in 1903 became its chief. He was dismissed from office by the Civil Service Commission in February, 1913, on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, filed by former Mayor Newton D. Baker.

Since that time Kohler was defeated for offices of Councilman, Municipal Court Clerk, Sheriff and County Commissioner, but in 1918 he was elected to the latter office and re-elected in 1920.

1 SHOT, 9 ARRESTED IN ELECTION ROWS

LITTLE DISORDER AT POLLS

Wife Gives Information Against Mission Worker Charged With Illegal Voting.

One man was wounded in a shooting affray between adherents of rival candidates at the polls and nine men were arrested on charges of felonious assault, disorderly conduct and illegal registering and voting yesterday.

The contest between Edward Kelly, Democrat, and Lawrence Cioffi, Republican, for election to the Board of Aldermen from the Eighteenth Aldermanic District has been exceptionally bitter.

Supporters of both candidates have been carrying on a campaign in which threats of violence are said to have been freely exchanged. It had been common gossip for several days that violence would be attempted so that detectives of the East 104th Street Station were on the alert yesterday.

Late in the afternoon, according to information given to the police by witnesses, an automobile bearing the banners of the Republican candidate drove up to the polling place at Park Avenue and 110th Street, and a man later identified as Angelo Marseno, 17 years old, of 306 East 113th Street, appeared in or near the machine with a pistol in his hand. A short distance away was an automobile carrying Kelly banners, with Samuel Kupferman, a prohibition enforcement agent, of 153 East 113th Street, and John Ryan, a clerk, of 85 Old Broadway, among its occupants.

Shooting Near Polls.

According to the police, Marseno began shooting at the Kelly automobile, Kupferman and Ryan then returning the fire. Another automobile party is said to have engaged in the battle. There was a running fight between the occupants of three automobiles, according to the police, from Park Avenue and 110th Street to Third Avenue and 113th Street, during which hundreds of bystanders, including many women and children, dodged wildly flying bullets in their haste for shelter.

Detectives were close at hand when the shooting started and broke up the battle as quickly as they could get into action. Marseno was arrested in a drug store, where friends had taken him to have a bullet wound in the right hip treated. He was removed to Reception Hospital, a prisoner on the charge of felonious assault. Kupferman and Ryan were locked up in the East 104th Street Station with the same charge against them. The police said that Kupferman and Ryan admitted emptying their pistols, but pleaded self-defense.

Prohibition supporters played an active part in the election. Isidore Greenwald of 317 East Fifty-seventh Street, a Prohibition Party watcher and a member of the Honest Ballot Association, was arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct in a polling place at 1,191 Third Avenue, in the Fourteenth Election District of the Twenty-third Assembly District. According to testimony taken when Greenwald was arraigned in Yorkville Court, the watcher protested the vote of John McCauley of 204 East Seventieth Street, but refused to give his reasons for doing so. The Chairman of the election district allowed McCauley to vote. Then Greenwald was arrested on McCauley's complaint by Patrolman Arthur S. Krese of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station.

T. N. Pfeiffer, an attorney for the Honest Ballot Association, appeared for Greenwald before Magistrate Renaud in the Yorkville Court and said he would appeal the case when the Court found Greenwald guilty but suspended sentence. Magistrate Renaud found that Greenwald's action had interfered with and delayed the voting.

After his arrest was caused by a Prohibition Party watcher Charles Mechnan of 652 Melrose Avenue, the Bronx, Chairman of the Twenty-ninth Election District of the First Assembly District, at 153d Street and Melrose Avenue, was dismissed by Magistrate Corrigan in Morrisania Court. The Prohibition watcher was Benjamin Silverman of 408 East 152d Street, a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Silverman said that he found the ballot box for votes on amendments open in the polling place.

When he protested Mechnan explained that the box was full and a new box had not arrived, with the result that many workingmen had complained because they were delayed in getting to work. Therefore, he said, he had asked the policeman on duty to unlock the box and press down the votes already cast to make room for additional ballots. According to Silverman, somebody threatened to throw him out, and then he had the policeman on duty arrest Mechnan.

The latter was dismissed when Deputy Attorney General Gustave Gunkel told the Court that he was convinced that the box had been open through an error of judgment and not with evil intent. The Magistrate commended Silverman for his vigilance, but said that he did not believe that Mechnan intended to do wrong.

Mission Worker Held.

Thomas J. Noonan of 35 West Sixty-fourth Street, Secretary of the Rescue Mission in Chinatown and well known as a reformer on the Bowery, was arrested in a polling place at 35 West Sixty-fifth Street on suspicion of illegal voting. He was challenged by John E. Burns, who said he was a private detective. When Noonan was arraigned in the West Side Court his wife accompanied the detective and insisted upon providing information for the affidavit on which her husband was held. Magistrate Corrigan held Noonan in $50 bail for examination on Nov. 22. Bail was supplied by an official of the Rescue Mission.

Charged with illegal registration, Michael Newmark, 23 years old, a native of Russia, who said that he was a former soldier, out of work, was arrested after he had cast his ballot in the Third Election District of the Fourth Assembly District, at Jackson and Madison Streets. An affidavit on which he was later arraigned in the Tombs Court charged that he moved from 324 Henry Street eight years ago, but registered on Oct. 15 as living at that address.

Louis Spiegel, who appeared for Newmark in court, entered a plea of not guilty. He said that he represented the Democratic Party, but had been asked by Louis Zeltner, the Republican Alderman for the district, to appear for Newmark. Magistrate Sweetser held Newmark in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow.

Magistrate Deuras in Harlem Court held Rocco Glannelli, an iceman, of 424 East Eighty-second Street, in $1,000 bail for examination today on the charge of illegal registration.

Glannelli was arrested in the polling place at 1,566 Second Avenue. It was said that he registered as having a business address at 339 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, although no such place of business existed.

Percival E. Nagle, Tammany candidate for Sheriff, and Louis A. Cuvillier, Tammany candidate for Assemblyman from the Twentieth Assembly District, interceded for Thomas Kelly of 339 East 125th Street, when Kelly was arraigned in the Harlem Court on the charge of disorderly conduct. He was released.

Kelly's arrest was caused by Frank Schaefer of 2,253 Third Avenue, Democratic Captain at the polling place on 125th Street, between Second and Third Avenues. Schaefer said that Kelly struck him in the face and called him vile names, but did not appear in court to press the charge. Nagle and Cuvillier vouched for Kelly's good behavior and told of his army record.

MARINES TO GUARD CITY MAIL WAGONS

Postmaster General and General Lejeune the marine guard will be sent out from naval stations whenever asked for by superintendents of mails in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Several hundred men are immediately available at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for New York service, and men will be sent to Chicago from the Great Lakes training station and to Philadelphia from League Island Navy Yard. Cities which do not have marine stations near by will be supplied from Quantico in the East and San Diego and San Francisco in the West. General Lejeune said tonight that three to five men would be placed on each mail truck carrying valuable mail and as many on the mail coaches of trains.

"We are going to do everything in our power; the job has been turned over to us and we will do our best," said General Lejeune.

The orders to shoot to kill recently issued to postal employes have been repeated, and more arms and ammunition are being given out. A permanent organization of armed guards will be built up inside the Post Office Department at once, and these men will eventually supplant the marines.

Considers Action Justified.

Postmaster Hays said this afternon that he considered himself perfectly justified in calling for the marines.

"This is not a civil but a military proposition," he declared. "The mails may be late sometimes, but they shall certainly never be lost."

In announcing the decision the Post Office Department issued a statement which said:

"For the twelve months ended April 9, 1921, there had been a total of $6,300,000 stolen from the mails. It was on that date that we arranged for the arming of the essential employes and for the reward for the capture of the robbers. There seemed to follow then a period of very definite lessening of the trouble. For the six months following—that is, from April 9, 1921, to Oct. 9, 1921—there had been a total stolen of $318,869. This was an improvement at the rate of over 1,000 per cent. per annum and was, in fact, a splendid response by the service to the effort made. In this effort postal employes were injured and killed and some robbers were slain.

"Then came the recent New York robbery, which should have been and could have been prevented if a full performance of obviously proper precautions had been taken and the definite rules and orders of the department followed. The Kansas City train robbery last week was less serious, and in the Paxton, Ill., robbery last night there was apparently but a small amount stolen. There was a splendid resistance by our mail clerks, two of whom were injured. The amount involved, however, is not the serious phase of the matter.

"The mails are inviolate and must and shall be protected."

Praises Employe Who Foiled Bandit.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—"The gratitude of the Post Office Department" was extended by Postmaster General Hays today to Walter Ambrose of Lake Charles, La., who foiled an attempted robbery of the mails in that city after he had been wounded.

"I have heard of your magnificent conduct in protecting the mails," Mr. Hays wrote. "You are a man's man. It was a splendid service and the gratitude of the department is most sincerely extended. The Postmaster advises that you are recovering, for which we are very grateful."

Ambrose's exploit was given prominence in today's issue of the official Postal Bulletin under the heading "In Appreciation." After describing the attempted robbery, Mr. Hays said, "We regret he did not bring in a dead robber."

Five Divisional Superintendents of the local Post Office, including the three suspended by Postmaster General Hays yesterday, accompanied Postmaster Edward M. Morgan to Washington a week ago to be questioned by First Assistant Postmaster General Work in the investigation of the $2,000,000 mail truck robbery in this city, ordered by Postmaster General Hays.

Mr. Hays, a few days before, came to this city to make a personal investigation of the hold-up of the mail truck in Leonard Street, west of Broadway, on the night of Oct. 24 by three bandits in a touring car. After questioning Postmaster Morgan and some of his assistants, Postmaster General Hays announced that he learned that an order issued by him in April, calling for the assignment of an armed guard with each truck carrying valuable mail, had been ignored. He added that he learned that 500 pistols which had been sent to the local postal officials for use by the guards had not been distributed until the night before his arrival here.

The Postmaster General also referred to a letter he had received from a high official in the local Post Office about two weeks after the issuance of his order to postal officials throughout the country which stated that guards had been provided for vehicles carrying valuable mail.

ILLINOIS TRAIN BANDITS GOT $400 FOR TROUBLE

No Arrests Have Been Made in Hold-Up in Which Robbers Set Fire to Mail Car.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Search for the bandits who last night held up Illinois Central train No. 3 near Paxton, Ill., and set fire to a mail car, centred in Chicago tonight. Important information given Chief Postal Inspector A. E. Germer by two of the trainmen may lead to connecting several notorious Chicago police characters with the robbery.

Although the robbers obtained only $400 in cash and a few samples of little value being shipped to South American points, the contents of practically all the other pouches containing registered mail consigned from Canadian points were destroyed by the fire touched off by the bandits. The postal authorities will be unable to check up the complete property loss for perhaps a week's time.

It is not believed it will run high, however, as the train is not one that regularly carries large currency shipments.

The postal authorities do not believe the bandits were tipped off from "inside" the Post Office Department. They are working on the theory that the job was done by ex-railway employes or that the bandits had ridden the train a number of times previously in order to familiarize themselves with the lay of the land near the scene of the hold-up. It is believed they took a chance of striking a large currency shipment and lost.

Incomplete descriptions of the robbers were given the Inspector by Simeon Perry, baggageman, and W. T. Bangs, the fireman, who was slightly wounded in the shoulder by one of the bandits' bullets.

Bangs's story of how he was compelled by the bandits to crawl into the burning mail car at the risk of being shot by the armed mail clerk was graphic.

"They put their guns up against me and ordered me to crawl through the hole in the door," he said. "I knew I was between the devil and the deep blue sea and would not have given a quarter for my life when I started in. I expected to have my head shot off the moment I stuck it inside, and I knew if I backed out I'd get a lot of lead from the rear. I just kept hollering to the fellows on the inside who I was and pushed on in. Then when things got too hot inside and we had to jump for it, we ran around the engine and Jack Fogarty, the engineer, climbed up under the locomotive. One of the bandits standing up on the embankment sent a rain of bullets after me. I thought he could not see us, but he spotted me all right."

Search for the bandits assumed an added significance tonight with word from Champaign, Ill., of the death in a hospital there of Arthur Moon of Chicago, a porter. Moon was shot in the abdomen and shoulder when he opened a vestibule door of the train and looked out to see why the mail car had been uncoupled. His death means that charges of murder will be placed against the bandits, in addition to charges of train robbery.

Today at Wanamaker's

One of the Dearest Friends Whose Memory

has been most helpful during a long life was one evening in a little company where a discussion occurred as to who had the finest hand, and a lady shrewdly said:

Since it is so difficult for old people to give who did not begin early in life to give, would it not be wise to teach children, that they might get the blessing that falls upon givers?

ADVISES DELEGATES TO WATCH SENATE

Lauzanne Says That Americans Are Apprehensive Over the Arms Conference.

SECRET BARGAINS LACKING

But He Suspects Lloyd George Will Trade Over Results to Be Obtained.

By STEPHANE LAUZANNE.

Dispatch to Le Matin of Paris.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Practically all of the delegations are now assembled in Washington. The French are at the New Willard, which is large and noisy. The Japanese are at the Shoreham, which is discreet and silent. The British are nowhere and everywhere.

In a few days the Pan-American Building will be the centre of the world's attention. But the Pan-American Building, if it is one of the most harmonious buildings of Washington, is not the biggest. The biggest remains the Capitol, where the Senate is sitting. And the hosts of the Pan-American Building will do well from time to time to have a look on the Capitol.

A charming atmosphere is prevailing. It is an atmosphere of good-will. Nobody has anything to ask for himself and everybody is ready to make the happiness of humanity. There have been no confidential talks in the corner. There have been no secret bargains as in Paris in 1918, where, before Mr. Wilson had landed, M. Clemenceau had in four minutes and a half settled with Mr. Lloyd George the question of the freedom of the seas. Here nobody has seen anybody, and Mr. Hughes has loyally refused to discuss even the order of the program before all the audience was seated.

Of course, the Japanese are the great point of attraction. I don't know if they will be disarmed, but I am sure that they are disarming—disarming by their good grace, their sweetness and their inclination to give you right always. I said somewhat abruptly to two of their delegates: "Now, don't expect that in this conference France will back you up. Since two years ago, at all the conferences, we have found you on the other side of the table voting against us automatically with the British, and that because you have a treaty of alliance with Great Britain. Well, we have a treaty of affection with the Americans which is 140 years old. And you will therefore not be surprised to see us remain truthful to our friends just as you have been truthful to your allies."

The Japanese delegates answered me with an exquisite politeness: "You are perfectly right. We always thought it would be like that." And there you have the Japanese.

As to our American friends, they give the impression of being both confident and apprehensive. They have confidence in the honesty, the loyalty, the disinterestedness of their representatives. They are apprehensive that these qualities are not always sufficient to carry victory in an international conference. They know that if in current life they are the first traders in the world, they are poor traders in international matters. They come to the great councils of the nations speaking of "trusteeship of humanity, rights of the people," &c. And they are all surprised to find themselves confronted with much more substantial realities.

A sketch which obtained a certain success in Washington showed us on Sunday the shadow of Mr. Wilson leaning toward Mr. Hughes and saying: "He's good enough for me." The title ran: "Wilsonizing Secretary Hughes." Since then some people ask: "Is Secretary Hughes going to be Wilsonized?"

My personal answer is "No." Mr. Hughes is a jurist; he is not a professor. It seems that he said one day: "I like to work on the bench. There one has all the facts and all the principles before one and nothing else." That makes the great difference between him and Mr. Wilson. When in 1918 Mr. Wilson appeared before the world's bench he had, of course, before him principles (they were fourteen in number), but he knew nothing of the facts of the case and did not want to know anything about the facts.

The thing which Secretary Hughes will have to bear in mind is, There are not only principles and facts, there are also judges and audiences. Until Nov. 25 Mr. Hughes will have in the Briands, the Viviania, the Balfours, the Tokugawas, the Schanzers a fair and responsive judiciary court, where he may speak with confidence about right and justice. The atmosphere will remain what it is today—a remarkably clear atmosphere. But, after Nov. 25, it is very possible that the famous bargainer, who has presently his shop at 10 Downing Street, London, will cross the ocean and sit in the court.

Then it will be finished—talking trusteeships of humanity, right and justice. We will have to talk buying and selling. The Pan American Building will cease to be an academy and become a shop. One will trade an alliance against battleships, and one will make a deal with the integrity of China against limitation of armaments.

The cards may well be or not be on the table; they will appear and disappear with fantastic rapidity. And I am not even quite certain that there will not be some handkerchiefs disappearing from certain pockets.

If I were Mr. Hughes, before stating the case, I would every morning make a prayer to St. Patrick that he would not let David enter the court.

BELIEVES ALLIANCE IS NOT WANTED HERE

Repington Thinks That Americans Seek Friendship Without Entanglements.

By LIEUT. COL. REPINGTON.

Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The last days before the opening of the armament conference at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning next are being given up to final preparations by the Governments and delegations and many meetings have been held by delegates and expert. Many delegations are already here and a number of official and unofficial dinners and luncheons, not to speak of teas, is in prospect. Everybody is visiting everybody else and the expenditure of cards is portentous.

Friday will be given up to the solemn ceremony of laying to rest in Arlington National Cemetery the body of the unknown American soldier which has arrived fro mFrance and will be deposited in the rotunda of the United States Capitol, where the public will be enabled to file past the flag-draped casket from morning until night on Thursday. The War Department has issued detailed instructions for Friday's ceremony, which will be most impressive.

M. Briand reached Washington last night. He sent a message to the American people, which was well received, and emphasized the special position of France in reference to national safety. The Washington Post, after welcoming Briand and assuring him that the bond already uniting the allied nations constitutes the best guarantee of the peace of the world, goes on as follows:

"No formal alliance is desirable or necessary to bring the United States and France into a close union of peace and war. They have already joined bonds firmer than treaties, exactly as the two English-speaking nations are united in a mutual understanding which they will not suffer to be broken by war."

The Post goes on to say that, though the American delegates to the Paris Peace Conference represented the United States as demanding the covenant of the League of Nations, the nation did not yearn for anything of the kind, adding:

"It yearned for peace, not entanglements; actual voluntary co-operation of national sovereignties, not enforced compliance with the will of a coterie of nations. Americans refused to consider a treaty of alliance with France because they intend forever to determine for themselves when, how and to what extent the United States shall act toward friends and enemies. No treaty can foresee the future and adapt itself to unforeseen conditions."

The Post remarks that if the visiting statesmen take full account of the temper of Americans they will understand why the covenant of the League was rejected and why it will be wise for all the participants in the conference to turn aside from the Geneva contrivance and consider the problems of the Far East quite apart from any intermeddling from the League. The article continues:

"The Washington conference is a meeting of the wills of those nations that can command world peace. It is not a debating society like the assembly, nor a cabal like the Council of the League of Nations. The Governments assembling here for free conference are not responsible to any higher authority than their own peoples. No outside nation or combination of nations restrains their will. No treaty can be ratified even if it should be signed by the conferees which infringes upon the sovereignty of any nation, or which tries to set up an international authority with power to supervise national policy or action."

So far as I can form a judgment, the above statement expresses the opinions of the great majority of the American people and should be fully digested by every public man far or near who speaks or comments upon the approaching conference.

KATO SAYS JAPAN WANTS REDUCTION

tary, gave the assembled newspaper men a prepared statement intended to correct and counter the statements made in a New York newspaper this morning.

"I would like to make clear the position of the Japanese Government on the question of limitation of naval armament," said Baron Kato, speaking slowly and quietly in deliberate Japanese, which was translated into English by the interpreter as he proceeded.

"The Japanese Government, through authoritative spokesmen, has from time to time issued important statements bearing on this question. Despite these statements, according to reports published in some American newspapers, including a report printed in a New York newspaper this morning, I observe the statement that Japan insists on maintaining and carrying out its 'eight-eight' program of naval increase.

Cut Had Been Pledged.

"I wish to state that the attitude of the Japanese Government is just the same as it has been before. On this particular question, during the last session of the Imperial Diet, one day last March I was asked by the Tokio correspondent of The Associated Press whether Japan had any intention of cutting her 'eight-eight' program if Japan cut her naval armament. I replied that Japan would not necessarily stick to her 'eight-eight' program, by which we mean the building of eight new battleships and eight new battle cruisers, if an agreement were arrived at among the powers, or in the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament.

"Japan's intention was made clear, we thought, at the time of the Paris conference. These and other declarations made in good faith by representative spokesmen for the Japanese Government ought to make it clear that Japan will not only not insist upon carrying out her program for the construction of the 'eight-eight' schedule of battleships and battle cruisers, but stands ready to cut this program down if an agreement is obtainable with the other powers concerned and can be reached. At the approaching Washington conference there will be doubtless many proposals submitted demanding a cutting down of naval programs and naval armament. Japan is ready to cut in accordance with such agreement as is reached. It must be made clear, however, I would like to state, that limitation of naval armament cannot be made by Japan alone."

Admiral Baron Kato concluded his voluntary statement at this point, and then said he would be glad to reply to any questions. He was asked for particulars respecting the extent to which the "eight-eight" program had been carried forward toward completion. He replied that technical experts in the delegation could best answer that question, as he did not have charts and figures before him.

"I can state, however," he replied, "that this program of 'eight and eight' is to be completed by 1928 and was decided upon last Summer in continuation of Japan's policy for naval increase."

May Offer a Proposal.

Baron Kato was then asked upon what "basis" Japan would be willing to cut her naval program.

"In regard to that," he replied, "the Japanese delegation will await the proposals for limitation of naval armament to be submitted by the American Government as a basis for discussion. The Japanese delegation have no project of their own to present at this time, but I may say that I might present a proposal in the course of the conference."

One of the newspapermen suggested to Baron Kato that, while his declarations had indicated that Japan would be willing to go as far as other nations in making cuts in her naval program if proposals for limitation of armament were presented, the main point with some students of the subject was to what extent Japan was prepared to go in making such a cut in naval power, and whether it was the Japanese idea that Japan should have a navy as large as that of the United States, or even as strong as that of Great Britain.

"Japan," Baron Kato replied, promptly, "has never expected or entertained the intention that Japan should possess a navy equal to that of England or the United States, or a navy superior to munications to protect and widely distributed colonies to guard, and that a long coast line, the Panama Canal and the Monroe Doctrine were among the grounds upon which the United States predicated the upoulding of a large navy.

"Your question is a rather difficult one to answer," replied Baron Kato. "Every nation feeling the need of self-defense must be provided with naval forces sufficient for adequate self-defense. The extent and degree to which such naval forces for self-defense should be provided depends on many factors, on conditions within the nation itself, upon its relations with other nations and other factors.

"Japan is an insular country. Therefore, had there existed a nation which should make an attack upon Japan, the naval forces alone would be able to defend Japan against such attack. Moreover, regarding the greatness or smallness of the navy to be possessed by a nation, and as to whether the Japanese Navy may be great or small, is also dependent upon the point of view.

"I myself," concluded the Admiral, "do not think that the Japanese Navy is great. The plans adopted for the Japanese naval program call for a navy much inferior to those called for in the programs of the United States and Great Britain."

Why Japan Needs Big Navy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—After reiterating that Japan is ready to cut down her naval program in agreement with the powers provided the safety of Japan is assured, Admiral Baron Kato proceeded today to answer the specific question, "What is Japan's justification for a big navy?"

"Every nation," he declared during a conference with newspaper correspondents, "feels the necessity of self defense and knows that forces sufficient for self defense must be provided. The degree depends on many factors and conditions, internal and otherwise, and the relations of the country with other powers."

"For instance," the Admiral continued, "in the Far East Japan occupies an insular position. Should there exist a nation that intends to make an attack upon Japan, it is the naval force alone that can defend our empire. Japan is not self-sufficient. The question of the smallness or greatness of a navy depends upon the point of view of each nation concerned. I do not consider the navy of Japan a great one. The plans already adopted are much inferior to the programs adopted by Great Britain and the United States."

Admiral Kato, a frail-looking man who immediately recalls a picture of Marquis Komura, who represented Japan at the Portsmouth Peace Conference, gave evidence during the conference that he is not in Washington the man of silence familiar to Tokio. He answered practically all questions instantly and with freedom. He spoke in Japanese, being interpreted by Professor Ichihashi of Leland Stanford University.

In connection with the first conference in Washington between Admiral Kato and the newspaper men some of his Japanese friends told the story of how Kato was first compared to Komura. The comparison is significant because of the high place that Komura, who died some years ago, holds in Japanese history and the esteem of his fellow-countrymen.

A Fortune Teller's Forecast.

One day, before taking the steamer for the United States, Admiral Kato was visited by the famous Japanese fortune teller Kodama who, several months ago, predicted the success of the Washington conference. After fixing the Admiral with his eyes for some moments, Kodama blurted out:

"Your ears, mouth and nose are not much to speak of, but I find something in your bright small eyes that shows to me that your body is a crystallized spirit of courage. At Washington you will be one of the star actors, but no matter what may happen, you are quite safe, because of the spirit behind your eyes. You are just like Marquis Komura, who went to Portsmouth after the Russo-Japanese War."

The eight-eight Japanese naval program referred to by Admiral Kato really means an eight-eight-eight program, because it signifies that each one of the eight dreadnoughts and eight modern battle cruisers making up the program is to be replaced at the end of eight years' service. This means that Japan must build two super-warships every year, each at a cost of about $30,000,000, and that simultaneously she must make further tremendous outlays in replacing the auxiliary ships and aircraft necessary to round out her main fleet. It is this stupendous outlay, which, in the opinion of responsible Japanese, Japan is in no position to stand.

SIMPLE, SAYS SHIDEHARA.

None of Real Interests of Three Big Powers Conflict, He Writes.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—Whatever the problems of the armament conference, an agreement for limitation of naval armament ought to be a "comparatively simple matter," says Ambassador Shidehara of Japan, one of that country's delegates, writing in the current issue of the Harvard Crimson.

The Ambassador bases his statement on the conclusion that the war left only three great naval powers, each on a different continent and with "none of the real interests of one conflicting vitally with the others."

At the same time the Ambassador takes opportunity to outline Japan's case at the arms conference, her relation to China and the Far Eastern situation, as well as her place in the world. He writes:

"The Japanese delegation come to the Washington conference confident that the nations assembled there will achieve a substantial measure of success and that valuable understandings will result, enabling the several principal nations to live in future with less suspicion and distrust, and consequent armament. This is the least that can be expected. But we Japanese are hoping that, as President Harding said at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 'The time has come when there must be recognition of essential co-operation among nations, devoted, each of them, in its own peculiar national way, to the common good, the progress, the advancement of all humankind.'

"We Japanese are primarily concerned as America is, with a limitation of naval armament, and it is on this matter that I speak with confidence. What agreements can be reached for the limitation of land forces is more difficult for me to estimate. But as far as the seas are concerned, an agreement ought to be a comparatively simple matter, for the obvious reason that there are but three great naval powers left in the world and that each of them belongs to a different continent, separated from the others by a great ocean, and with none of the real interests of one conflicting vitally with the others. For these reasons it seems to me that only a most arbitrary attitude on the part of one or another country can defeat the main purpose of the conference, and none will be arbitrary, for the peoples as well as the Governments of all three most earnestly desire areement.

Says America Is Unassailable.

"There is an unofficial—I might say public—American point of view that any agreement must be contingent upon a settlement of Far Eastern problems, and to some Americans those problems seem greatly involved and fraught with possibilities of grave danger. It is hardly within my province as the representative of another government to point out to any Americans how needless is this alarm, but as your President has invited us to an open and frank discussion, and as The Crimson has left me free to say what I will, I am sure it will not be taken amiss if I point out the fallacy of such contentions as have been launched in the United States by the doubters and by the comparatively few actual enemies of an understanding.

"Intelligent and well-informed naval men in every country know that the great war left the United States proper absolutely unassailable. No power in the world is in a position to attack your country without bringing grave distress upon itself. For more than one hundred years you have lived without a hostile foreign soldier within your borders, and today no nation in Europe would dare attack you even if any had the will to do so. Yet Europe is only 3,000 miles away, while Japan is twice as far.

"But the baiters of Japan are not content with that argument. They declare that Japan could take the Philippine Islands. In the same category they would include Hongkong and the extensive British possessions in East Asia, and also French Indo-China and other European possessions in the Pacific. But, as a matter of fact, these various Eastern possessions of Western nations could be considered by Japan a far greater menace to her than she is to them. Japan, however, is confident that no Western nation has any designs upon her independence.

"These facts, though, do not end the argument against Japan. Her persistent detractors, in their process of 'piling on the agony,' inform their hearers and readers of the plan of a militarist Japan to take control of China and organize that country's millions into a 'Yellow Peril.' The phrase was first launched by Kaiser Wilhelm and was used subsequently in the United States by his agents in an effort to distract American attention from the war in Europe. No one realized more clearly than the Japanese themselves that such a project is utterly unattainable.

Willing to Pay for Peace.

"In the first place, we Japanese should come in conflict with the several European nations that hold established positions in China. We should then be required to dominate, control, and ultimately organize the Chinese. This would be an achievement such as no country has yet been or will ever be able to accomplish. Human nature isn't that way; a subject race is generally a greater burden than help in time of war; and Japan is not looking for war. Japan needs peace, is willing to pay a price for peace, and believes that that price will be not only morally but profitably paid.

"But from China we Japanese believe we have a right to ask the privileges of equal opportunity and the open door. We are not so richly endowed as America with wealth, territory, and raw materials. Here you have everything. You are self-sustaining. But we are like the British Isles. We have a population approximately, of sixty millions, with territory the size of one of your medium-sized States. Our supplies of raw materials must come from abroad, and the markets for the goods we manufacture must likewise be foreign countries. Without supplies from over the seas and without markets at the ends of our steamship lines, we cannot live. The neighboring undeveloped Asiatic mainland has an abundance of the necessary raw materials and also affords an important market. We desire the rights and privileges of trading on this mainland on equal terms with any nation, near or remote; and in turn we are willing that any other nation shall enjoy, in fair competition, equal rights with ourselves. There is trade for all in these vast territories, more extensive and probably as richly endowed as the United States.

"But here is an interesting point: To the United States the materials and trade of the Asiatic mainland are only a source of added wealth, while to Japan they are a necessity of existence. We ask only an application of the policy of live and let live."

NO DECISION REACHED ON HARA'S SUCCESSOR

Elder Statesmen Continue Their Conferences at Palace—Two More Arrests in Case.

TOKIO, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Conferences of the Elder Statesmen continue in an effort to arrive at an agreement upon a successor to Premier Hara, who was assassinated Friday night. Marquis Saionji, Marquis Matsukata, Baron Makino and Admiral Saito, Governor General of Korea, discussed the situation at some length at the palace yesterday, but so far as is known no decision was reached.

There is much speculation concerning the possible successor to M. Hara. Marquis Saionji is most prominently mentioned, but in some quarters it is stated that he is unwilling to take over the duties himself, preferring merely to have a hand in the appointment. Others believe, however, that with a little additional pressure he could be induced to accept the post.

Those of the former opinion declare that Marquis Saionji is against further monopolization of power by the Seiyukai, and that he has more than once indicated his displeasure concerning the appointment of some of the present Cabinet members. They argue that he is too far sighted to assume office under the present circumstances, and thus risk his political future.

Those holding the opposite view declare he will rise to the occasion if urged by Field Marshal Prince Yamagata and given the privilege of using his discretion as to changes in the Cabinet.

The preponderance of newspaper opinion appears to be in favor of avoiding any political embroilment in view of the coming conference in Washington.

Further arrests were made this forenoon in connection with the assasination. Two youths, said to be university students, were taken into custody on the charge of complicity in the crime.

Eijoro Hashimoto, the assistant station master at the Otsuka railway station, who was taken into custody yesterday, has admitted having inspired Nakoka, the assassin, with anti-Government sentiments, according to today's afternoon newspapers. After his alleged confession, he is said to have been formally charged with complicity in the crime.

GARRETT FOR PARLEY POST.

To Be Named by American Delegates for Secretary General.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—John Work Garrett of Baltimore is to be nominated by the American delegation for the office of Secretary General of the Conference on Limitation of Armament. Under the customary procedure in an international gathering the Government calling the conference is permitted to select the chief of the general secretariat, but the nomination must be confirmed by the conference.

Mr. Garrett's name had not been mentioned previously in connection with the Secretary Generalship. It had been reported that George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia was the choice of the delegation.

Mr. Garrett, who comes of a distinguished Maryland family, has had a long and active diplomatic career. He is 49 years old, and entered the Diplomatic Service when he was 29 as Secretary of the American Legation at The Hague. In private life he is a member of the Baltimore banking firm of Robert Garrett & Sons, which his great-grandfather founded.

After being in the Diplomatic Service for nine years in secretarial capacities, Mr. Garrett became Minister to Venezuela in 1910. He has since been Minister to Argentina and to the Netherlands and Luxemburg. Mr. Garrett served on many international commissions, and did much work of a diplomatic nature during the World War. At the request of the French Government he inspected the camps of French prisoners of war in Germany. His case is unusual in that he was appointed to high diplomatic offices by both Republican and Democratic Presidents.

The Secretary General of the Washington conference will be the executive and administrative officer of the entire gathering, and under him will come the preparation of the record of the proceedings and all matters of a secretarial nature.

PROF. BONN BACKS CONFERENCE

German Historian Applauds "Harding's Great Policy."

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Probably the first kind word for President Harding's disarmament conference uttered in Germany was spoken today when Professor Bonn, the historian and an expert at the Versailles Conference, granted an interview to The Tribune's Berlin correspondent.

"It is of the greatest interest to Germans," said Professor Bonn, "on account of our poor political and economic position to see all the world forces collaborating for world reconstruction instead of continuing destruction. If Japan or America or any other of the great powers engage in new wars or if all the powers continue the present armament race then the world's capital will be further used up or destroyed, and it will become so scarce that there will be nothing left for reconstruction.

"Therefore, Germany does not favor a policy of conquer and divide, but it does want a dimunition of the points of conflict among the nations. Germany should welcome President Harding's great policy which would help to real economies and [illegible] Europe, too."

A modern wonder

ONE of the modern wonders of the world is the huge hangar at Lakehurst, New Jersey, built to house the ill-fated dirigible balloon ZR 2. It is glazed with acres of No. 213 Non-Actinic Wire Glass which excludes 85% of the ultra violet (injurious) rays and 55% of the infra red (heat) rays. These are the invisible solar chemical rays that are destructive to the rubber fabrics of which the gas bags of dirigibles are made.

The Air Division of the United States Army says of this glass:—

"You should feel, as we do, especially gratified on account of the results accomplished and you may refer to this office for recommendation."

Utilizing in a commercial way the principle so extensively employed by opticians in Non-Actinic lenses for eye glasses, it transmits a soft, pleasing, luminous light easy to the eye, while at the same time, because of the wire mesh imbedded in it, acting as a fire retardant. It is suitable for skylights and sidewalls of factories, train sheds and buildings of all kinds.

BRIAND NOW SEEKS A MODIFIED PLEDGE

French Premier Is Prepared to Consider Proposals on Safety From Germans.

KNOX PLAN IS CONSIDERED

American Arms Delegation Is Expected to Search for a Way to Satisfy France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Having paid this call of courtesy on President Harding, Aristide Briand, Premier of France, is now prepared to consider proposals for the determination of the part which his Government will play in the conference on limitation of armament, which will assemble in Washington Saturday.

The general position of France is well known, having been explained by the Premier and other spokesmen. It is based upon the principle that she cannot give assurances of a considerable reduction in her army unless she has guarantees of security in the event of any aggressive action by Germany.

That principle is capable of some modification, however, and as a modification appears to be necessary to the complete success of the conference as to land armament, it is to be expected that the American delegation will work with M. Briand and his associates to obtain a formula which will meet the requirements of France and at the same time be capable of the endorsement of American public opinion and perhaps of the two-thirds treaty-making majority of the Senate.

The demand of France for security has generally been interpreted as meaning that the only security which the French Government and people would countenance would be the ratification of the treaties and defensive alliance between France and the United States and France and Great Britain made on June 28, 1919, in Paris. The British treaty was confirmed by Parliament, but the rejection of the Treaty of Versailles by the United States Senate made ratification of the Franco-American alliance an impossibility. It is still impossible, according to the general view, and French statesmen are not attempting to deceive themselves by false hopes.

Knox Plan May Be Revived.

There is reason to believe, however, that France sees other measures which might possibly appeal to the United States as substitutes for the defensive alliance engagement. The formula might possibly be found in some assurance based upon a provision which was attached to the German peace resolution offered by the late Senator Knox. This provision was in effect that if the peace of the world were again threatened by aggressive action the United States would consider measures of assistance to prevent that outcome.

This provision was subsequently withdrawn by Senator Knox, and the understanding at the time was that Mr. Knox had yielded to the wishes of President Harding, who desired the German peace resolution to be a mere declaratory statement that the war was over, with certain stipulations as to the protection of American interests guaranteed by the Versailles Treaty and for the repeal of wartime domestic legislation.

René Viviani, former Premier of France, was in America at the time on a special mission of his Government, and there was some reason to believe that he had a part in persuading Republican Senators to sanction the provision of the Knox amendment implying some form of American aid to France if Germany became aggressive again. It now appears that the Knox formula went a measurable distance toward the assurance desired by France, perhaps the entire distance.

This means that, according to the understanding of the French position, there is no unwavering insistence that the guarantees which France demands as a consideration for the reduction of her army must be the ratification of the Franco-American and Anglo-French defensive undertaking. There are several phases of that undertaking, all of them modifications, which, it is understood, would be acceptable to France. What France desires most is some assurance that she would not be obliged to fight Germany alone if the Germans again undertook to upset the world peace.

Want to Reduce French Taxes.

France's budget for 1922, approximately 25,000,000,000 francs, provides about half that amount for measures attributable to the devastation of war and only 3,000,000,000 francs of the remainder for the army. With exchange at 13.50 francs to the dollar, France can contend that her army appropriation is extremely small. She is maintaining an army of about 700,000 men, but it is pointed out that she has tens of thousands of troops in Syria and Silesia and about 50,000 in the Rhineland.

That France would be glad to reduce her army still further goes without saying, according to the French representation, as she is anxious to escape as far as possible all the burdens of taxation which the war has put upon her people.

Nothing is being said by the French delegation to indicate that France expects the United States to cancel the debt of $3,000,000,000 owed by France to this Government, and it is asserted that France cannot put herself in the position of making such a request. At the same time France is ready to make known that she cannot liquidate that debt for many years and looks to easy terms from this Government in the expected refunding arrangement which will be undertaken by the commission headed by the Secretary of the Treasury provided for in the bill now before Congress with Administration endorsement.

A phrase in Premier Briand's statement upon his arrival in this country is being construed as meaning that France will bring the subject of the Allied debt into the Washington conference. Whatever France's intentions in this regard it is generally taken for granted that nothing can prevent consideration by the conference of the financial conditions of the world, including the probable inability of Germany to meet her reparation obligations.

Scrutiny of German Plans Favored.

France, it was learned, would find herself disposed to regard herself as assured of some degree of security against German aggression if the conference would agree to some phase of the proposal advanced by France at the Paris Peace Conference for an international scrutiny of land armaments. The object of this proposal was to assure international inspection of German war preparations to ascertain if that country was living up to her disarmament obligations under the Versailles treaty and generally to make certain whether she was taking measures for another war. The United States opposed that proposal, and when it came to be voted on Czechoslovakia was the only country represented in the Paris conference which supported France.

There is no faith in France in German protestations of compliance with the disarmament agreement. Preparations for war on land are easily conceived, the French contend, and there can be no assurance of German disarmament unless there is a thorough provision for an international scrutiny of German measures.

In these circumstances it looks as if France in order to be induced to cut her army must be assured either through a treaty of defensive alliance with the United States and Great Britain or an arrangement for a scrutiny of German military strength, or through both. France, however, thinks that these measures would not be by any means the full security to which she would be entitled or to which the powers should look to prevent a recurrence of a great war. She looks askance at the potential possibilities of Russia as an aggressive factor in the world's future and would have that subject taken into consideration in devising measures for a reduction of land armaments in Europe.

Data on German Resources Brought.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—M. Briand's desire in connection with the armament conference is that nothing should be withheld from the American public as to the military, economic or political situation of France.

General Buat, Chief of the French General Staff, has brought with him to the conference a chest of documents respecting the present military strength of Germany and her potentiality. These, it is said, include copies of secret instructions of the German Ministry of War concerning the grouping of former officers, of whom there are 250,000, into skeleton regimental formations, so that without delay military units could be established by summoning to the colors former service men, of whom there are four or five million. General Buat has with him a copy of the latest issue of the German Army regulations, published Sept. 3, that does not deal, he points out, with an army of 100,000, as provided under the Treaty of Versailles, but with forces on a vast scale, including corps, armies and groups of armies.

The army section of the French delegation has also brought reports respecting the small arms said to be concealed in Germany. Arms and artillery factories owned by Germans, according to these reports, have been acquired, or are being constructed in countries around Germany beyond the supervision of the Allied Commission of Control. Such establishments are indicated in Holland, Switzerland and especially in Sweden. A large airplane factory is said to be in operation by Germans in Switzerland.

From a considerable documentation the conclusion is reached by the French General Staff that the German Government and German organizations are determined upon a methodical and long-sighted preparedness for war. That preparedness, in the French military view, will consist largely in the permanent and increasing industrial power of sixty million people as compared with France's forty million, modern war being that of the organized nation. Among the papers brought by the mission are studies in the chemical producing capacities of Germany and their convertibility into munition supply factories.

French Army Being Reduced.

General Buat and the principal officers with him are understood to be prepared to discuss at the conference the French military policy fully. It will be shown, it is said, that the French army of about 900,000 last year, including officers, has been reduced this year to 730,000, of whom about 175,000 are on service directly necessary under the peace treaties—85,000 in the Rhineland, 65,000 in Syria, 15,000 in Upper Silesia, 6,000 in Constantinople and a few other thousands in detachments elsewhere.

The army, it is pointed out, is in process of further reduction to 660,000, as provided in next year's appropriations. The coming into operation of the Eighteen-Months' Service law instead of that providing for three years, will reduce the army in fifteen months to between 450,000 and 500,000, it was said. A reduction below approximately 450,000 would be regarded by the general staff as depending upon a favorable turn in events, or in the introduction of new elements in the situation. Such an element, it is held, would be the pronounced "moral support" of the American Government.

Harding Receives Briand.

Premier Briand was received today by President Harding, Vice President Coolidge, officials of the State Department in the absence of Secretary Hughes, who had gone to New York to vote, and by Secretary Weeks and others.

Discussing his reception by President Harding, M. Briand said:

"The President was most kind and cordial, and mentioned the circumstance that I am the first French Prime Minister to have visited Washington."

The Premier was presented at the White House by Ambassador Jusserand, and was accompanied also by M. Viviani, M. Sarraut, Admiral de Bon and General Buat. The President chatted for some time with his visitors, but, it was said, did not touch upon the subjects to come before the conference.

At the Senate M. Briand and his party were received by Vice President Coolidge, with Senator Lodge, who participated in the conversation, acting as interpreter.

"I find your capital wonderfully beautiful," M. Briand said later, "and full of monumental buildings. I take pleasure in thinking it was laid out by a French engineer more than a century ago."

M. Briand this evening attended a motion picture show.

Beatty Goes to National Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

SENATE VOTES TO ASK PARLEY PUBLICITY

respectfully requests the representatives of the Government of the United States at the conference to use their influence against any form of censorship upon the part of the conference that will prevent the public from being informed through the press of the correct attitude of the delegations and nations touching the questions considered in conference."

Text of the Resolution.

As finally adopted, without a rollcall, the resolution reads:

Whereas the Senate of the United States wishes every success for the conference on limitation of armaments called by President Harding to meet in the City of Washington on the 11th day of Novecber, 1921; and

Whereas the Senate of the United States believes that the greatest publicity of which, in reason, consideration of the questions for which the conference is called will admit, will tend toward the success of the conference; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States respectfully requests the representatives of the Government of the United States at the conference to use their influence to have the conference admit the representatives of the press to the meetings of the conference where the questions are considered.

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States respectfully requests the representatives of the Government of the United States at the conference to use their influence to have the conference maintain and preserve a record containing the proceedings of the conference when the matters for which the conference was called are considered and acted upon.

Senator Harrison introduced the resolution some weeks ago and it had lain quietly on the table until today, when Mr. Harrison, following a conference with Senators on both sides who favor the resolution, called it up and asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

Says Subtle Diplomacy It at Work.

Supporting the resolution, Senator Harrison said that its adoption would in no wise embarrass the conference. He explained that its only purpose was to request admission for press representatives to those full sessions of the conference where votes are recorded. The Democrats, Senator Harrison added, were giving full and enthusiastic support to the conference, and he cited the fact that the Democratic National Committee at its meeting last week voted unanimously its endorsement of the President's action in inviting the representatives of the great nations to try to arrive at a solution of the armament problem.

"What is there wrong," asked Senator Harrison, "in the Senate of the United States expressing itself? It cannot be denied that subtle diplomacy is at work here now and will be continued at work throughout the conference. We know from our experience here in executive sessions of the Senate that the true facts never get out, but that they are contorted according to the expressions given to the press by some Senator who was in the executive session. The same situation may develop in the conference for the limitation of armament.

"If the facts that are to be discussed and the action that is to be taken by this conference are to be known by the world, the only way to do it is by admission of the press to the full meetings and for a record to be kept showing the action and the votes of the various delegations that will attend the conference."

Mr. Harrison said that no member of the Senate thought that the Senate could in any way control the action of the conference and that none desired any such control to be exercised, even if it were possible to do.

"But I cannot imagine," he added, "how a Senator who is to be one of the representatives of this Government should not desire at this time a free and frank expression of the Senate to back him up on this proposition. I hope the Senator will not try to place me in the attitude of trying to embarrass the conference by this resolution.

"It is known and stated every day throughout the world that the failure of the Versailles Conference was because of the secrecy that enshrouded the consideration of its work. Senators have talked about 'open covenants openly arrived at' and if we believe in that doctrine we certainly ought not to oppose this resolution. If the Senator is really for publicity he ought to desire a free expression of the Senate to back him up in his efforts to get it."

Lodge Warns of Bad Manners.

Senator Lodge was recognized as soon as Senator Harrison concluded. Senator Underwood, Mr. Lodge's colleague on the American delegation, was also in the chamber, but he did not take part in the debate. He and Senator Lodge, however, conferred several times, and it was following one of their conversations that the resolution was finally brought forward and passed with the objectionable paragraph eliminated.

"This is not a question of publicity," Senator Lodge said, replying to Senator Harrison, "for we all favor the greatest measure of publicity that is reasonably obtainable. It is not a question of record, for, of course, a record will be made. It is not a question of providing for the press. There are 300 seats reserved for the press at the opening conference, and they will have ample opportunity, as ample as can be given, to report the proceedings.

"There is only one objection to the resolution, and to my mind it is a very serious one. I did not wish to put it in this way. It is not a question of the merits of what the resolution asks. We do not disagree about that, but we have invited here some of the great nations of the earth to meet us in conference, with the hope and belief that we can be of some service to the world in the limitation of armaments and in the settlement of the questions of the Far East. They come to that table as our guests, but with precisely the same rights that we have as to the procedure to be followed, and this is purely a question of procedure.

"For the Senate or for the House of Representative to anticipate their sessions and undertake to dictate or to suggest to these other nations how they shall carry on their business seems to me not a seemly thing for us to do at this moment. I do not like to use unpleasant words, but it does not seem to me very good manners to meet them in that way. Each of them has the same rights that we have as to establishing procedure.

"When we went to Paris, if the French Chamber of Deputies had proceeded to pass resolutions as to what the procedure should be, I think we, in common with all the other nations present at that time, would have considered it very inappropriate and unsuitable, coming from the Chamber of Deputies, and would have been tempted to resent it.

"That matter is in the hands of these nations, and each nation has its own vote. Why should we anticipate that they are going to try to shroud it in mystery? Why should we anticipate that they are going to do anything that is objectionable to the terms of the resolution? We have no right to anticipate their action. They are coming into our house, and we ought to receive them with at least the politeness which that situation requires."

Senator Harrison interposed, saying: "I have read in the papers that the representatives of the various countries who come here are expecting the procedure to be mapped out by the representatives of the American Government. Is that right?"

"Why, of course no procedure will be determined upon until the conference meets," Senator Lodge replied.

Senator Lodge proceeded to say that the American delegates would be very glad to have the approval of the Senate, but that was not the question.

"The question," he said, "is a simple one of being civil and treating in what I regard as a proper way those who come here at our request and who have the same right to speak on this question of procedure that we have; and I do not think it is fitting for the Senate or the House to undertake indirectly to tell them what they ought to do."

"Did the Senator think," Senator Harrison asked, "when he voted for the resolution on Ireland requesting our delegation at Versailles to use its good offices for Ireland that that was proper?"

"That," replied Senator Lodge, "is an entirely different thing. That had nothing to do with the procedure of the conference. That was a request that they would give a hearing to certain people who were asking for a hearing. If the Senate of the United States chooses to pass a resolution asking that this conference give a hearing on something, I suppose it would have the right to do that if it wanted to; but this is undertaking to tell us how that conference shall be managed, and how the procedure shall be carried on. That is all it is."

"The Irish resolution," Senator Harrison replied, "was an expression of the United States Senate asking our delegates to do certain work. This resolution carried with it an expression of the Senate of the United States respectfully requesting its representatives to stand for these things, or to use their good influences for them."

"I did not say the Senate insults them," interrupted Senator Lodge.

"Well, the Senator said it was bad manners," replied Mr. Johnson.

"I think it is," Senator Lodge replied.

"That is," answered Mr. Johnson, "the Senator's opinion. Mine is quite the reverse, and if we were guilty of bad manners, doubtless, I am entitled to the inference that by our bad manners we would be insulting those who come among us.

"When did the time arrive when representatives of the United States Government could not be requested by the Senate to act in a particular fashion. When did the time come that any man selected to act for the people of the United States could not be respectfully petitioned by the representatives of the people of the United States?"

Senator Lodge replied that he had "no earthly objection" to being instructed by the Senate and was always glad to hear suggestions from the Senate, but, he continued, "I am speaking of the effect on the people we have asked to come here, and I think it would be unfortunate."

Senator Johnson retorted that it seemed incredible to him that the action which the Senate was asked to take was either bad manners or unfortunate, or would be considered by any foreigner as presumptuous.

"There is just one armor," added Senator Johnson, "that the Senator from Massachusetts and the Senator from Alabama and the other American delegates will have, and it is armor that will be invulnerable in the days that are to come. That armor is publicity."

Senator Williams concluded the discussion with an observation that he deprecated "some solemn resolutions" that the Senate had passed "concerning things which the Senate has nothing in the world to do with, as, for example the Independence of Ireland." He added:

"The House of Commons might just as well have passed a resolution for the independence of the Philippines."

The resolution in the amended form was then passed.

BALFOUR HOPES MUCH FROM CONFERENCE

Predicts It Will Be Greatest Step in History Toward an Improved World.

DELEGATES REACH QUEBEC

Receive Warm Welcome There—Are Expected to Arrive in Washington Tomorrow Morning.

QUEBEC, Nov. 8.—Belief that the Washington arms conference could do much to produce a better world was expressed by Arthur J. Balfour, former British Prime Minister, when he arrived here today as acting head of the British delegation.

"I don't believe this disarmament conference can do everything," Mr. Balfour said. "I am personally confident it can do much. I am confident of the steps that are being gradually made to produce a better and improved world—an international world. This step will be of all history the greatest. In that hope I go to Washington."

Mr. Balfour told newspaper men that he wanted to see President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes before even forming any opinion of the conference as a whole.

"I am, therefore, confined in any remarks I may make," he said, "to matters which are a little outside the actual work upon which we shall be engaged. A conference means an exchange of ideas and, if necessary, the modification of ideas. If I were to express them before the conference, it would be likely to render it futile and very likely do more harm than good.

"If I find among my colleagues at the conference the same spirit which animates the Government I represent, depend upon it, a success it will be."

The delegates, who number twenty-one persons, and include Lord Cavan, Commander of the British force in Italy during the war, received a warm welcome when they landed late today from the Empress of France, which had brought them from Liverpool. They left at once for Montreal and will proceed to Washington tomorrow by way of Albany and Weehawken, N. J., probably arriving in Washington Thursday morning.

SAYS FOCH AND HARDING TALKED WAR ON RUSSIA

Vienna Correspondent of London Paper Gets This From 'Exceptionally Well-Informed Source.'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Frederick Kuh, The Daily Herald's Vienna correspondent, telegraphs the following:

"Marshal Foch and President Harding, I learn from an exceptionally well informed source, have been discussing the practicability of a new attack on Soviet Russia at their recent conference.

"Foch, at whose initiative the interview took place, outlined a new project of intervention. The American President is understood to have acquiesced in the main lines of Foch's program.

TREATY WITH AUSTRIA BECOMES EFFECTIVE

Ratifications Are Exchanged in Vienna—Next Move Will Be Naming Diplomatic Officers.

VIENNA, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—The treaty of peace between Austria and the United States became effective today with the exchange of ratifications by the two Governments between Austrian Chancellor Schober and Arthur Hugh Frazier, American Commissioner in Vienna.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Appointment of diplomatic officers is expected to be the first step taken by the United States and Austria now that the ratifications of the treaty of peace have been exchanged. New commercial agreements, it is also expected, will be negotiated in due time, but any steps taken toward definite disposal of former enemy property must await action by Congress.

In the absence of official advices, State Department officials would not comment upon the completion of the ratifications in Vienna today. It was said, however, that ratifications were expected momentarily to be exchanged in Berlin also. Baron Edmund Thermann, former counselor of the German Legation at Budapest, is expected to arrive in Washington in a few days to arrange for a technical instalation of a Germany Embassy here.

COMMUNISTS GET BAIL.

Lloyd and Seven Others Win Plea in Illinois Supreme Court.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 8.—William Bross Lloyd and seven other members of the Communist Labor Party, who were convicted of plotting "overthrow of the Government" in September, 1919, were ordered admitted to bail by Justice Carter of the Supreme Court today. The others were Arthur Proctor, Ludwig Lore, Karl Sandberg, Perry Shipman, N. J. Christensen, Samuel Scha and John Vogel.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—William Bross Lloyd and nineteen other members of the Communist Labor Party were convicted of conspiracy here in 1920 and the case of Lloyd and seven others is being appealed to the Supreme Court of Illinois. In the original trial, which lasted three months, the defendants received sentences of from one to five years and in several cases fines were levied in addition. The chief defense was that the defendants had merely exercised their right of "free speech."

CZECHO-POLISH TREATY.

It Is Signed in Prague After Two Days of Negotiations.

PRAGUE, Nov. 7.—After two days of negotiations, in which an understanding was reached on all questions, a treaty between Poland and Czechoslovakia was signed here today. It is understood that the agreement involves neutrality on all questions affecting one of the signatories and mutual support on questions affecting both parties to the treaty.

Missouri Train Bandit to Prison.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 8.—Alfred A. Oliver, found guilty last Saturday of complicity in the robbery of a Missouri Pacific mail train here Aug. 18, 1920, today was sentenced to serve concurrently two terms of five years each in the Leavenworth penitentiary. Approximately $35,000, a large number of Liberty bonds and a quantity of jewelry were obtained in the robbery.

WILL CROWD GARDEN FOR DISARMAMENT

Thirteen Thousand Tickets Already Issued for Mass Meeting on Armistice Night.

OVERFLOW IS EXPECTED

Amplifier to Carry Speeches to Gathering Outside—Singer to Be Heard in the Park.

Madison Square Garden will be jammed on Armistice night, Friday of this week, judging by the demand for tickets from those who want to attend the disarmament mass meeting to be held under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Council. Only 2,000 of the 15,000 tickets remain. Large blocks have been obtained by the New York Federation of Churches, American Red Cross, National Security League, National Civic Federation, American Federation of Labor, Women's Trade Union League and other organizations.

Five large amplifiers are being installed so that the speeches may be audible to every one in the building, and one of them will be carried outside to an overflow meeting. When Miss Margaret Romaine of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sings the national anthem her voice should be audible to those who stand about the amplifier in the park. The Seventy-first Regiment band will play. The introduction will be by John P. Coughlin, and the opening address will be by John Sullivan, President of the Central Trades and Labor Council, who will preside. The other speakers will be Samuel Gompers, Major William F. Deegan, State Commander of the American Legion, the Right Rev. John J. Dunn, Bishop William T. Manning, Dr. Stephen Wise and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw.

MANY ARE WOUNDED IN FIGHT IN ITALY

Communists Clash With Fascisti Demonstrators—Red Deputy Is Shot Twice.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Sharp fighting between Italian Communists and Fascisti, or Extreme Nationalists, in which most of the combatants were wounded, some of them seriously, occurred near Novi, in Alessandria Province, Northwestern Italy, yesterday, says a Central News dispatch from Rome today.

The Communists of Novi heard that the Fascisti of Sarravalle, a neighboring town, were proceeding in two motor lorries to make a demonstration at Novi, and the Communists immediately chartered two cars and met the Fascisti two miles outside of Novi.

Revolver firing was opened the moment the two parties sighted each other and lasted a considerable time, with many casualties on both sides.

One of the wounded was Deputy Francesco Misiano, whom the police found lying in the bottom of a Bolshevist car, suffering from two bullet wounds in his body.

TO THE PUBLIC:
MILK STRIKE BULLETIN
AS TO FUTURE PRICES

Among the thousands of letters received endorsing our attitude in the present milk strike situation, some have asked for assurance as to future prices.

It is obvious that not knowing the future cost of milk, freights, and other materials and supplies specific figures cannot be given.

We know that relieved of the unfair demands of the Union as to wages and conditions and with co-operative relations established that the cost of milk distribution is bound to come down.

This being so and without increased cost of milk and other materials and supplies the savings must be reflected in future selling prices.

All that could prevent this would be for us to appropriate to ourselves in the form of additional profits the savings thus realized.

Your protection against such a development is our pledge at this time that our average net profit will be limited to one-half cent per quart on the milk handled by us.

For your satisfaction in this connection we will publish annually the average net profit per quart of milk handled, as established by certified public accountants of high standing.

This should give assurance to milk consumers since they will know that whatever future prices may be, of the total price paid by them we will receive as a maximum for our services only the one-half cent as mentioned.

Furthermore, this means that you will receive practically all of the benefit of savings effected in distribution costs, whether these savings amount to 1c or 5c per quart.

This is as definite a statement as to future prices as can possibly be given at this time.

BRIAND TO REPLY TO BRITISH PROTEST

PARIS PAPERS EXULTANT

Point to Success of France's Near East Policy and Say Britain Has Been Caught Napping.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—At the Ministry of Foreign Affairs it was stated today that Premier Briand would himself from the other side of the Atlantic direct a reply to Lord Curzon's letter of criticism of the treaty between France and the Angora Government. The text of the letter has been cabled in full to the Premier at Washington, but only the version issued in London is as yet available.

To the points therein made by the British Foreign Minister the French Foreign Office gave to press representatives today a reply which amounted in substance to two statements—that since April last the British Government has been aware of the general terms of the Franco-Turkish accord, and that the objections of the last few days are therefore very belated.

Further, the French claim that their effort toward peace in the Near East should meet with approval from their allies rather than otherwise, even though they do not follow the exact lines along which the British themselves have been seeking peace with the Turks ever since they invited Mustapha Kemal's representative to London last Spring.

The text of the treaty, it is claimed, follows closely the lines of agreement outlined in London last April to which the British never objected, and any concessions which France may have obtained have not been obtained at the expense of any other power.

The real cause of the dispute seems to be in a clash of the two policies which France and England have separately pursued in the Near East ever since the end of the war. The French have constantly endeavored to obtain a settlement by what they call a positive policy, dealing with the facts of the situation as they found them. The British policy on the other hand has been as constantly negative in its refusal to recognize Mustapha Kemal as the de facto Government of Turkey with consequent admission of Turkish independence.

The French are more than pleased with the success of their policy with its fruitful consequences in reduction of military expenditure in Cilicia and increase of moral prestige in the Near East as respecters of Musulman independence. There is in newspaper comment a note of satisfaction that France has taken from England the lead in liberalism and contrast is made between the "puppet show of independence made by King Feisul in Mesopotamia" with the real independence of Kemal freely recognized by France.

The heat shown in British comment on the affair has come somewhat as a surprise and has only served to increase French satisfaction. After several mistakes in following a separate policy, such as the support of the Russian General Wrangel, the French feel that this time they have the moral sentiment of the world behind them and have stolen a march on the British Foreign Office. "Lord Curzon has been caught napping" is the comment of one paper today.

Unconfirmed news reached Paris today that Mustapha Kemal is completing his preparations for an aggressive Winter campaign against the Greeks. This news, however, is regarded rather as a bluff intended to hurry the Greek Minister Gounaris into making concessions in the terms which he is now trying to arrange in London as a basis for mediation by the Allies.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Great Britain, according to the semiofficial Temps, has proposed to France and Italy that, in agreement with Greece, the Allies initiate negotiations with the Turkish Nationalist Government at Angora with a view to ending the Turco-Greek conflict. This statement was made by the newspaper in the course of its comment on British criticism of the Franco-Turkish Treaty.

ANGORA, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—After an exchange of ratifications of the treaty between France and the Turkish Nationalist Government, the National Assembly has authorized the Finance Minister to contract a loan in France of 10,000,000 Turkish pounds. (A Turkish pound normally is worth about $4.38.) The proceeds of the loan will be used to meet the requirements of the army.

WIESBADEN AGREEMENT STIRS BRITISH PROTEST

Reparation Commissioner Says It Favors France to Detriment of Other Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A White Paper relating to the Wiesbaden Agreement, which was signed on Oct. 6 by representatives of France and Germany and governs the application of Part 8 of the Treaty of Versailles regarding the delivery of reparations in kind, was issued tonight. The main feature of it is an important report by Sir John Bradbury, British delegate to the Reparations Commission. The broad result of the agreement, Sir John says, is that for the next fourteen years Germany will be able to count as payment under the peace treaty a maximum of 1,000,000,000 gold marks annually in respect to deliveries to France, whatever they in fact attain. It is somewhat remarkable, in his view, that Germany should now be prepared voluntarily to shoulder additional burdens regard being had to the tone of public utterances in Germany.

... wise he thinks, to assume that these burdens can be borne by Germany without prejudice to the execution of her treaty obligations. Germany will doubtless plead these obligations to France as ground for consideration of her position in regard to reparations in general. The agreement, he says, therefore becomes an attraction in favor of France to the detriment of the other Allies.

Sir John therefore proposes, among other things, that France pay to the general reparations account any amounts necessary to insure that the other Allies shall receive their proper amounts due from Germany.

The agreement signed by the French and German representatives at Wiesbaden provided for the delivery to France by the German Government within five years of 7,000,000,000 gold marks' worth of building materials. One of the limitations to which the credits to be made on the books of the Reparation Commission in this connection are subject is that Germany shall never be credited with a sum greater than France's share of the yearly reparations.

The purpose of the relief fund is to alleviate the suffering in Europe and to aid in caring for 200,000 orphaned children.

Three Bullets Go Wild, Fourth Hits Pen in His Pocket—Hers Only a Scalp Wound.

Intense excitement, said to have been caused by jealousy, and her poor aim last night saved the lives of Gertrude Knudson, 24 years old, of 145 West 148th Street, Manhattan, and her intended victim, Solomon Rochfield, 26 years old, of 175 High Street, Brooklyn. The girl was taken a prisoner to the Poplar Street Police Station, Brooklyn, where she expressed no regret for the shooting and only muttered, the police said, "I'll get him yet."

The shooting happened shortly after 8 o'clock, in the presence of many persons at Navy and Concord Streets, Brooklyn. For nearly a year, the police say, Rochfield had been paying attention to the girl. She learned two weeks ago that he had married another.

The two met last night by appointment, and Miss Knudson opened fire on Rochfield. Three of the shots went wild. The fourth struck a fountain pen in the man's vest pocket.

Apparently believing her shots had hit the mark, the girl put the muzzle to the back of her head and fired. She merely succeeded in inflicting a scalp wound.

2 WOMEN TRAPPED BY U. S. DRY AGENTS

RECEIPT FOR $3,000 SHOWN

Transaction With Sleuths in Hotel Near Broadway Who Posed as Bootleggers.

Charged with trafficking in counterfeit liquor withdrawal permits, carrying the forged signature of the Federal Prohibition Director of this State, two women, one formerly employed in the office of the Internal Revenue Collector at the Custom House, were arrested early yesterday in a hotel in West Forty-third Street, near Broadway, after having fallen into a trap arranged for them by Federal prohibition agents.

The women's names were reported as Miss Helen Small, 40 years old, of 13 Spencer Avenue, the Bronx, and Mrs. Eugene O'Rourke, 38, who declined to give her address. The younger one gave her name as Mary Jones, but the prohibition agents insisted it was Mrs. O'Rourke. Pending arraignment today before United States Commissioner Hitchcock they are held at the Clinton Street Police Station. Nell Elting is another alias used by Mrs. O'Rourke, the agents said.

The specific charge against the women is that they sold to Federal prohibition agents, whose names were withheld, a complete set of forged papers, dated Oct. 1, for the withdrawal of 250 cases of bonded whisky from the Sherwood Distillery Company of Cockeysville, Md. Accompanying the withdrawal papers, which consisted of the original and four copies, was a letter which purported to give the bearer authority to act for Felix Crisafulli, represented as a basic liquor permit holder at 21-23 Commerce Street. There is no permit holder of that name, it was said at prohibition headquarters. The agents paid $3,000 in marked money for the withdrawal papers, it is alleged.

E. C. Yellowley, acting Federal prohibition director, said he had information that the women had been trafficking in the fraudulent liquor withdrawal permits for several weeks and that large quantities of liquor had been let out into bootleg channels through their operations. It was said the women had told that, besides the Maryland distillery, three Kentucky distilleries would honor their permits.

How the Women Were Caught.

Mr. Yellowley said information given his department by two men found to be in possession of forged counterfiet withdrawal permits led to the capture of the two women. Counterfeit withdrawal permits have bobbed up from time to time for several months, but the agents had never been able to trace the source of the spurious papers. Soon after he came here in August, Mr. Yellowley discovered many forged permits made out on counterfeit blanks.

Their discovery came about through the order that shut off all withdrawals from the distilleries and required that all permits offered be returned to the director's office for verification.

Two agents were designated by Mr. Yellowley to get on the trail of the women believed to be handling the fraudulent permits. The upshot of the negotiations was that the agents met the women in a hotel near Times Square Monday night to receive the set of withdrawal permits. Special Agent Harold B. Dobbs, on Mr. Yellowley's staff, was secreted at a vantage point on the mezzanine floor of the hotel, where, it is said, he could see all that went on between the agents, who were posing as "bootleggers," and the women.

There was some haggling over the price by the agents, but they finally agreed to pay $3,000 for the papers, the report to Mr. Yellowley said. A receipt for the money was demanded. It read: "Received from Mr. (Blank) a sum of money for papers. Form 1,410." The receipt shown was signed "Nell Elting."

The Arrests Are Made.

The transaction completed, Special Agent Dobbs came out from his hiding place and put the women under arrest. They became hysterical and caused a scene. The prisoners were taken to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station and later transferred to the women's detention cells at the West Thirty-seventh Street Station.

Yesterday morning the women were taken by Agent Dobbs to the office of Mr. Yellowley, where they were questioned, but refused to give any information. Dobbs next took them to the Federal Building, but as a holiday was being observed there the women were detained at the Clinton Street Police Station and will be arraigned today.

Mrs. O'Rourke offered resistance when the trio reached the B. R. T. subway at Twenty-eighth Street and Broadway, Dobbs said. She clung to the railing leading to the subway. Dobbs tried to break her hold. Just then Mrs. O'Rourke suddenly released her grasp and the two rolled down the stairs to the platform. Dobbs walked with a decided limp when he went home last night.

Whisky "On Short Notice."

It is alleged that in their conversation with the agents Monday night the women said they could arrange to let them have withdrawal papers for as many as 10,000 cases of whisky on short notice.

At one stage of the negotiations, when the agents expressed doubt of the genuineness of the papers, the women are said to have given as reference a Judge in this city and the name of a prominent newspaper man.

The agents say they also obtained from the women a carbon copy of a letter to the Sherwood Distillery Company on stationery of the United States Treasury Department, Division of Prohibition Enforcement. It read:

"Gentlemen: Replying to your inquiry of Oct. 3, you are advised this office has approved the following permit to purchase: Serial Number of Permit 251,632. Quantity of withdrawal, whisky, 200 cases. Permittee's name, Felix Crisafulli, 21-23 Commerce Street. Permit Number, New York, B-1120."

This letter bore the rubber stamp signature of Harold L. Hart, who was then the Federal Prohibition Director for this State. It was presumably countersigned by E. C. Yellowley, then Associate Director. The initials "E. C. Y." were said to have been a poor imitation of Mr. Yellowley's writing.

Soon after their arrests one of the women called up the Jamaica Democratic Club and asked a man to "get hold of the Judge" and tell him to arrange bail for her, which she said was $10,000.

Miss Small, it was said, was for nearly two years confidential clerk in the office of Internal Revenue Collector "Bill" Edwards.

Mr. Yellowley regards the capture of the two women as among the most important arrests since his arrival here. It was said there probably would be several more arrests in connection with the case.

Petition for Hotel Co. Bankruptcy.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The Whaling City Hotel Company, operators of the New Bedford Hotel at New Bedford, was the subject of a petition in bankruptcy filed by three New York creditors in the Federal Court today. The petitioners, Darling Brothers, with a claim of $2,253; George Ehlenberger, $1,377, and Henry Kelly & Son, Inc., $713, alleged the amounts are due them for goods sold and delivered. The petition asserts also that the company made two general assignments, one on Aug. 9 and a second on Sept. 23.

GREAT BRITAIN ACTS TO PROTECT ALBANIA

Calls on League Council to Check Jugoslav Invasion Without Delay.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The British Government, in accordance with Article XI. of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which gives any member the right to bring before the League any matter which it deems likely to disturb the peace of the world, has called the attention of the Council of the League to Serbia's action in invading Albanian territory.

The promptitude with which the British have acted is taken here as reflecting the importance they attach to the seriousness of conditions in the western portion of the Balkans. They have been watching Serbian military activities for some time with grave anxiety, and they have moved now at the earliest moment possible.

Up to Saturday Albania was in the peculiar condition of being a State which was a member of the League of Nations but which had no established boundaries. On Saturday, however, the Council of Ambassadors met and laid down what its frontiers should be, and as a result of that the British Government proceeded to take the formal steps necessary for recognition of the Tirana Government as the de facto Government of Albania.

It has followed this up by its appeal to the League, because it has been informed that the Serbian operations are reaching a critical point. The invaders are drawing near to Tirana, and the road to the capital is said to be already cut.

Former British representations to Serbia concerning the invasion of Albanian territory have been countered by assertions that only irregular bands over which the Serbian Government had no control were engaged in it, and by excuses founded upon doubts as to where the true boundary of Albania lay. The British Government, however, maintains that it has abundant evidence that regular Serbian troops have been employed, and that now that the Council of Ambassadors has acted there can be no dispute as to the international line.

It has been announced officially here that not only has the Government called the attention of the League to the matter, but it has invited he Council of the League to convene as soon as possible to determine the kind of pressure that can be brought to bear on Serbia under Article XVI. of the Covenant.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Notification by the Allied Council of Ambassadors to Jugoslavia calling for the discontinuance of military operations by Jugoslav forces in Albania has been supplemented by notice given the Belgrade Government by the Ministers of France, Great Britain and Italy, who in the name of their countries have separately notified the officials of Belgrade that the hostilities in Albania must cease.

At its meeting tomorrow, when it will consider the situation in Hungary, the Council of Ambassadors will probably also sign the Albanian frontier settlement arrived at by the special commission appointed for this purpose, and immediately notify the Jugoslavs and the Greeks that they must retire from the territory they now occupy inside the limits of the 1913 boundaries.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Nov. 8.—Nikola Pachitch, head of the Jugoslav Ministry, resigned today. King Alexander requested him to retain office temporarily at least. The Cabinet was formed March 22 last.

SCHOONER RAN DARK, APACHE MATE SAYS

Second Officer Declares Lifeboat Could Not Get Alongside Doomed Palmer.

Second Officer Clyde Slappy of the steamship Apache said yesterday that the statement made by Captain J. M. Griffin of the five-masted schooner Singleton Palmer, that the Apache's boat did not get alongside his vessel to take off the crew until half an hour after the collision occurred, was not correct. He said that the steamship hit the schooner on the port side abaft the main rigging, and not on the starboard side, as stated by her Captain in Boston on Monday night.

Two minutes after the collision, the second officer said, the emergency boat, which was swung out from the port side below the wheelhouse, all ready, was lowered, and he pulled over to the Singleton Palmer. She was bobbing up and down in the water, with her booms and sails banging about, and it was impossible to get alongside to take the men off. He decided to return to the Apache, the second officer said, and get a number of life belts, which the crew of the sailing craft could put on and then jump into the sea, where he would pick them up.

By the time the Apache's boat returned to the schooner the steamship Gloucester had steamed up close and got the derelict under a lee. The Gloucester's boat took off the bulk of the crew, leaving the mate and a sailor for the Apache's boat. The second officer was positive that neither before nor after the wreck did he see a light of any kind burning on the schooner. She had electric light on board but used oil for the sidelights.

Captain William Park, who questioned the second officer, said that Mate Lahmsen who was rescued by the Apache's boat and returned on her to New York, told him that the schooner had nearly run down a tugboat shortly before her crash with the Clyde liner. In the official report the second officer stated that he saw the schooner before the lookout, ordered the helm hard a port and signaled full speed astern, but it was too late to avoid the collision. As he gave the order the lookout man shouted "Schooner right ahead without lights."

The United States Coast Guard Manning, dispatched from Norfolk, located the drifting derelict and tried to tow it into Delaware Breakwater, but could not haul the water-soaked craft. The Gresham was sent to her assistance and it is expected that the wreck will be brought into shallow water today out of the navigation lane from Hatteras to New York.

BEER BILL VOTE ON NOV. 18.

Supporters in Senate Predict Its Enactment by Large Majority.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—An agreement to vote on Nov. 18 on the Anti-Beer bill was reached formally by the Senate today with the measure's supporters predicting its enactment with a large majority to spare.

The date for the vote was reached by unanimous consent, no resistance to the attempt to fix the date being made from any quarter when the proposal was advanced by Senator Willis, Republican, of Ohio. The agreement provides that the Senate shall meet at 11 A. M. of that day and shall proceed to vote at noon without further debate.

Representatives of wine dealers and religious denominations had a hearing today before the Justice Department on the question of the legality of permitting wholesale dealers in sacramental wine to do business under the national prohibition laws. The department is preparing an opinion in answer to a request from Secretary Mellon as to whether a ruling by former Attorney General Palmer prohibiting wholesale liquor dealers from doing business included dealers in wines for religious purposes.

Representatives of religious denominations contended at today's hearing that they could only obtain standard wine for church services from established sacramental wine dealers. The hearing was not public.

NORWALK MAN SLAIN AT FIFTH ATTEMPT

Italian Hotel Keeper Had Been Bombed Twice and Shot At Twice by Black Handers.

BULLET IN HEART KILLS HIM

Fired by One of Four Men He Tries, in Turn, to Shoot—All Are Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWALK, Conn., Nov. 8.—The fifth attempt to murder Luigi Apecella, proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel, in Wood Street here, proved successful tonight when he was shot through the heart in a bakery near his hostelry, after he had attempted to shoot half a dozen men there with a shotgun and a pistol.

Apecella, who lived with his wife and four children in his hotel, had within the last eighteen months been shot at twice and had been blown out of bed by bombs placed at the entrance to his hotel because he refused to comply with demands of blackhanders that he deliver to them $5,000.

According to the police, who arrested four men in connection with his murder, Apecella's hotel had been the rendezvous for men known to be identified with the bootlegging business in this part of Connecticut and had been raided half a dozen times as a disorderly resort. About a year and a half ago, they said, the hotel proprietor had a quarrel with the leader of a band of Italian criminals who frequented his place, and soon after he received a warning that he had been marked for death.

He scoffed at the warning, but the next night, while he was standing behind the bar in his hostelry, a stranger entered and shot him through the right shoulder. The assailant disappeared before the arrival of a policeman, and when detectives endeavored to obtain a description of the gunman from the hotel keeper he replied: "The police don't need to butt into this thing. I'll 'get' the fellow responsible for this shooting myself."

Less than a week later, while Apecella was standing in the same position a gunman fired several shots through the window in front of the barroom, which narrowly missed the hotel keeper, and smashed a large mirror in the back bar. Again the hotel keeper refused to aid the police in their investigation of the shooting.

That attempt to take his life was followed several weeks later by the explosion of a bomb in front of the hotel and directly under the suite occupied by Apecella and his family. Although the bomb did considerable damage to the hotel, nobody was injured. Two months ago the second bomb was exploded at the entrance to the hotel. This time Apecella and three of his children, as well as several guests, were painfully hurt by flying splinters of wood and glass, and the entire front of the building was wrecked.

As in the previous attempts on his life, Apecella blocked the efforts of the police to run down the would-be assassins. In the interim detectives had learned from other Italians in the vicinity that Apecella, in an attempt to prevent what appeared to be certain assassination, placed a considerable sum of money for his enemies in the cemetery at Rowayton, a suburb of this place. This action, they said last night, followed the receipt of a letter from the blackmailers in New York.

Shortly before 9 o'clock tonight Apecella, who had been drinking during the day, left his hotel with a short-barreled shotgun under his coat and a pistol in his hip pocket. He walked to the bakery of Jacob Bertino, a few doors from his hotel, and as he stepped in the front door leveled his shotgun at four men standing near the entrance. "Now I've got you," he was quoted as saying, "and I'm going to get even for the past." As he spoke, however, one of the men nearest him, grabbed the shotgun, and in a few seconds several others were pummeling the hotel keeper. Apecella backed off a few paces, and pulling the pistol from his pocket fired three shots, one of which grazed the right thumb of Michael Forrino.

Before he could fire another shot a man in the rear of the store sent a bullet through Apecella's heart. As he dropped to the floor, the four men started to run into the street, but policemen who had heard the shooting ran up and arrested the wounded man, Bertino, the proprietor of the bakery, the latter's brother Charles, and Samuel Liberto.

PARDONED A. E. F. MAN PROTESTS INNOCENCE

Youngblood Says He and His Four Comrades Never Saw Murdered British Officer.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—Scores of ex-service men are in Leavenworth Prison wrongfully, but have no friends outside to help them, according to Roy Youngblood of Omaha, who arrived home today from the prison, where he was serving a life sentence when he was pardoned by President Harding.

Youngblood and four other American soldiers, who were pardoned with him, were convicted by a court martial at Coblenz in August, 1920, on a charge of having murdered a British officer. The killing took place at Renz, near Coblenz. The officer was struck on the head by a flying bottle and died from his injuries.

"None of us was near Renz," Youngblood said today. "We had been at a café in Coblenz with a civilian, who left us and went to Renz with some girls. This civilian was tried and acquitted by a German court. All the evidence against us five was that we had been in the company of the civilian earlier in the evening.

"When we were tried a young Lieutenant who knew nothing of law and little of the case was named as our counsel. He did not put any of us on the witness stand and let us tell our story. We had four soldier witnesses who testified we were at Coblenz, and not at Renz. An interpreter who saw the soldiers taking part in the fight failed to identify us, but the court martial found us guilty and sent us to prison for life.

"There are scores of young fellows in Leavenworth who are there wrongfully. They are no more guilty than I was, but they have no one outside the prison walls to help them in bringing their cases before the proper officials. I think every war court record should be reviewed thoroughly, and where there is doubt the case should be turned over to the civil courts."

LONDON, Nov. 8.—William John, M. P., apologized in the House of Commons today for his charge of insobriety made against landlord M. P.'s. He said the newspaper reports of his speech did not "accurately convey" what was in his mind at the time. He unhesitatingly withdrew the statements and offered the House his sincere and unqualified apology, which was accepted.

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH, DRIVERS FLEE

VICTIMS NOT IDENTIFIED

One Chauffeur Escapes in Taxi, Then Jumps Out and Runs; Caught by Surgeon but Gets Away.

An unidentified woman was killed and her two-year-old child critically injured early this morning in a head-on collision of automobiles in East 149th Street, near Morris Avenue, the Bronx. Failure of policemen to follow the usual procedure in automobile accidents enabled the drivers of both cars to get away.

According to the police of the Morrisania Station Frank Coco and his brother John Coco of 561 East 169th Street, the woman and the child were in a large touring car operated by Frank Mizzola of 2,027 Bathgate Avenue. A taxicab, traveling west, met the Mizzola car going east.

According to the police records, failure to the investigating policemen to get at the facts of the accident left the question as to which driver was on the wrong side of the street unanswered.

The Coco brothers on the fornt seat of Mizzola's machine were cut by the broken windshield, while the woman and the child were pitched over the side of the automobile from the tonneau to the sidewalk.

The woman was dead upon arrival at Lebanon Hospital, while the child was suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries and not expected to recover.

Before the police arrived the chauffeur of the taxicab had departed. Beyond taking the name of the Coco brothers and their address the policemen failed to ascertain whether the brothers noticed the license of the taxicab or had any other data about the machine or driver.

With the disclosure that the failure of the police to follow custom in automobile mishaps was due to a question of jurisdiction between policemen of the Morrisania and Alexander Avenue Stations, it was ascertained that Mizzola, slightly cut, got away from the scene of the smash in a taxicab.

He was bound toward Lincoln Hospital when, for some unexplained reason, he decided to jump from the taxicab at Concord Avenue and 147th Street.

Just as the bleeding Mizzola was starting to run, Dr. Alexander, from Lincoln Hospital, came along, responding to the call sent in from the Morrisania Station.

He saw Mizzola's condition and chased him. After a run of a block the physician overtook Mizzola and treated him. He then bundled him into the ambulance and at the hospital turned him over to the Alexander Avenue Station.

At the station house, where the men on duty were apparently unaware of the automobile collision, Mizzola was said to have told the Desk Lieutenant that he had been held up and robbed of $147 at the spot where his car had crashed into the taxicab.

He failed to enlighten the Alexander Avenue policemen about the collision and they let him go, after promising they would investigate the holdup and probably arrest the robbers within a day or two.

NEW EFFORT TO BLOCK AMERICAN VALUATION

Retail Dry Goods and Garment Associations Ask Penrose for Further Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—A new effort to prevent the inclusion of the American valuation basis of assessing duties in the permanent tariff bill will be made, it was learned today, by several large trade associations which have written to Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee requesting that the committee's decision to include the plan be set aside pending further hearings. The movement is headed by the National Retail Dry Goods Associations, which, its officers said, had enlisted the support of the National Retail Clothiers' Association and the National Garment Retailers' Association.

The Senate late today passed the House bill extending the emergency tariff, but amended so as to continue in effect until superseded by the permanent bill instead of expiring on Feb. 1. All provisions of the temporary law, passed originally May 27, including the dye embargo, were retained. Debate on the measure was brief and took the same course as that followed in the two prior appearances of the emergency tariff in Congress. There was no record vote.

MAYOR THOMPSON SCORED BY HOOVER

ONLY EXCEPTION IN NATION

Campaign to Speed Public Works Shows $60,000,000 in Municipal Bonds Sold in 13 States.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. — Mayor Thompson of Chicago was taken to task today by Secretary Hoover for refusing to initiate measures adopted by the National Conference on Unemployment for relieving the unemployment situation in the Illinois metropolis.

"I note," Mr. Hoover said in a letter to the Chicago Mayor, 'your reply to the recommendations of the President's unemployment conference and the quotations from you in some of the Chicago press.

"It appears to me that in view of your warning that 'this is a capitalistic move with the following objects: A blacklist, a refusal of charity to American union laboring men, a drive against union labor, a conspiracy to lower wages,' you have overlooked the fact that the recommendations of the conference were the unanimous view of representatives of the American Federation of Labor, the Railway Brotherhoods, United Mine Workers and other labor organizations, United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturers' Association, &c.

"It is the confident belief of the conference that suffering among the unemployed during the coming Winter can only be prevented by adequate organization of the community, and that such organization should be initiated in each locality by the Mayors. The Mayors of every city of importance except yourself have co-operated fully with the conference by creating and assisting such organization.

"Your refusal to initiate these measures does not relieve you from the responsibility to those who will in consequence suffer unnecessarily during the coming Winter, and I trust that you, therefore, are making adequate provision for them in some other manner."

Recent sales of municipal bonds in thirteen States have totaled over $60,000,000, and in addition $54,000,000 of the securities have been offered for sale, according to statistics made public today by the National Unemployment Conference. In addition, $10,000,000 in State bonds have been sold and a like amount offered for sale.

These figures, it was explained in a statement, were compiled in connection with studies made of the possibility of hastening public works as a measure of relieving the unemployment situation.

"The largest State bond sale," the statement said, "was Illinois, of $5,000,000 for highways. Michigan offered $4,000,000 bonds, also for highways, and $3,000,000 of these had been sold when the figures were compiled on Oct. 31. The State of Michigan is also offering $10,000,000 in bonds for the soldiers' bonus. Connecticut recently disposed of $2,000,000 in bonds. The rate of the State bonds was 4 per cent. for Illinois, 5 per cent. for Connecticut, 5.5 for the soldiers' bonus of Michigan and 5.75 for that State's highway bonus.

"A wider variance of rate was shown in the municipal bonds. These ranged from 4 per cent., as in the Chicago issue of $1,500,000 for park improvements, to 7 per cent. for the $1,000,000 in school bonds being offered at Hibbing, Minn., but the majority were 6 per cent. bonds.

"Public works which it is hoped will be erected or extended by these municipal bonds include highways, schools, sewers, filtration plants, water works, hospitals, parks, forest preserves, bridges, lights, paving, Court Houses, Fire Department and Police Department equipment, streets and sidewalks, beach improvements and memorial playgrounds.

"The totals for thirteen States of municipal and township bonds recently sold or offered for sale are: Illinois, sold $2,010,000, offered $4,700,000; Connecticut, $2,943,000—$1,703,000; New Hampshire, $345,000—$230,000; Michigan, $17,277,500—$1,322,700; Wisconsin, $8,671,000—581,600; Ohio, $9,998,700—$1,458,000; Rhode Island, $200,000—$200,000; Pennsylvania, $4,800,000—$16,179,500; New York, $3,607,370—$2,024,620; Minnesota, $4,362,000—$2,853,764; New Jersey, $8,028,800—$448,700; Massachusetts, $2,581,500—$1,037,000; Indiana, $2,004,000—$1,750,275. Totals for these States amounted to $60,820,970 in municipal and township bond sales and $34,700,465 in additional bonds offered. The sales and offerings of bonds of the States of Illinois, Connecticut and Massachusetts are not included in these totals for municipalities and townships."

TO SAVE 22 MILLIONS IN OCCUPATION COSTS

PARIS, Nov. 8.—During the year 1922 the cost of the Allied and American armies of occupation to Germany will be 22,000,000 gold marks less than during the present year. That is the first and most outstanding result of the work that has been done during the past three weeks by the Interallied Commission appointed by the Supreme Council to examine questions of possible reduction and limitation of the cost of the armies.

On this commission General Henry S. Allen and Roland Boyden sat as American representatives and took an active part with the Allied delegates in framing the report, which has today been sent to the Supreme Council.

The first task of the commission was to establish the cost of the armies in their national currency and convert the amounts into gold marks on the average basis of exchange rates at the times under consideration. The result of this averaging of cost will be the saving to Germany mentioned above.

The next attempt at economy made was by a review of the cost of provisions, garrison room, light, transport, billeting and other necessaries chargeable to Germany under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. It was found, however, that it was only by wholesale reduction of charges by the allies in common, acting through the Supreme Council, that any of the cost could be deducted from the German budget, and it was, therefore, decided to submit to the Supreme Council a program which, the commission says, will reduce effectively the total of intrinsic charges and facilitate their settlement.

In order to do this a committee, on which each of the armies of occupation will be represented, will be appointed to co-ordinate claims.

A further saving to Germany, it is pointed out in the report, will result from the fact that a majority of the commissions set up by the treaty will soon have completed their work. The commission suggests also that the Inter-Allied Rhine Commission, which is a civilian organization, shall be asked by the Supreme Council to meet and seek a way, as the military commission has done, to reduce claims to the minimum.

Dies After Predicting His Death.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Raphael P. Chasse, inventor of the Chasse mouse-trap, is dead at his home here after predicting his death. On Oct. 30 he told a friend that he expected to die within a week. Yesterday he left the place where he was living and took a walk through the business section of the city. On his return to the house he developed heart trouble. His wife died three months ago.

If You Suffer from Constipation
Read this Message Immediately!

About 90% of ills can be blamed on constipation — one of the greatest enemies of the human race! Pills and cathartics aggravate dangerous conditions in the delicate intestinal tract while affording but temporary relief!

The great, natural cleanser is bran —KELLOGG'S BRAN, cooked and krumbled! If you eat bran regularly it will give relief permanently! Its work is wonderful!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it is a desirable way of correcting constipation through food. Bran is nature's food—not a "remedy"!

Do not think of Kellogg's Bran as you think of pills and cathartics which never can afford permanent relief! Pills and cathartics aggravate already dangerous conditions. Kellogg's Bran sweeps the bowels naturally, cleansing and purifying the intestinal tract without irritation or discomfort! Realize, too, that the regular use of Kellogg's Bran will clear up a pimply complexion and it will free the breath from disagreeable stomach odors. At least two tablespoonfuls should be eaten daily, and as much more as needed for relief of chronic cases.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious served as a cereal, or it can be sprinkled over your favorite cereal, its nut-like flavor adding a delightful zest to breakfast! Kellogg's Bran is delicious in raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, gravies, etc.

Start the family eating Kellogg's Bran tomorrow morning! Kellogg's will actually build up the kiddies into fine, robust health!

GMC

A Desirable Combination

To be able to buy a high grade truck at a price lower than the same quality has ever before been sold is a combination that appeals to the careful business men in these times.

Never before in the history of motor truck sales has there been such value offered as the GMC Model K-16, 1 ton truck. The $500 reduction in price on this model, bringing it to $1495 f. o. b. factory, makes it a real bargain.

Besides being a genuine truck, built of real truck units, Model K-16 has Removable Cylinder Walls, Removable Valve Lifter Assemblies, Pressure Lubrication, Positive Governor, Dual Cooling and Special Process Integral Connecting Rod Bearing.

Any GMC dealer will tell you more about this great truck and about the other GMC models, which have also been reduced in price.

Double-entry had its origin in Genoa

Double-entry bookkeeping dates back to mediaeval Italy. The earliest known accounts kept by this method relate to municipal affairs, and were approved by Simone Boccanera, Doge of Genoa, in 1340.

The next great innovation in accounting had its origin in America. The Loose Leaf System, introduced within the memory of most men who read these words, has brought about another revolution in bookkeeping methods.

National Loose Leaf Books and Ruled Sheets are used in the accounting departments of many of the country's largest financial and business institutions. Among these are the H. B. Claflin Company, Vitagraph, Inc., and the Clyde Steamship Company.

Baltic Binders, made by National Blank Book Company, are liked by accountants because they are handsomely made, easy to manipulate, and give long wear.

Landru Defends Himself Ably, Without Recourse to His Legal Adviser.

TURNS LAUGH ON THE POLICE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

PARIS Nov. 8.—Henri Desiré Landru, charged with the murder of ten women and a boy, today underwent his first examination at the hands of the court at Versailles. He was cool, calm, and adroit in his replies, resourceful in his explanations and apparently as unconcerned as if his blazing black eyes failed to discern the shadow of the guillotine at the end of his long ordeal. Led by the President of the court back over the trail of his early crimes and convictions, he sought insistently to depict himself not as a confirmed cheat, but as a financial genius who had been deprived of riches and glory because his ventures were unfortunate. He insisted that his "clients," mostly women, had always brought him money and that he had never gone after it.

His frequent sallies at the expense of his old enemies, the police, whom he twitted with stupidity and incompetence, filled the courtroom with smiles and chuckles of the crowded audience, spellbound as if at a play. Master of himself, fencing brilliantly without recourse to his counsel's aid, the man of 283 fiancées was brought by the slow, methodical questions of his Judge at last to the diary entries, furnishing the clues to the fate of the eleven persons alleged to have been his victims, on which the present proceedings are based.

The country jurors became tense while the witnesses, many of them milestones along Landru's amorous career, smiled, blushed, tittered or hissed, according to their several natures. A nervous tug at his beard and quick twist of his upturned, waxed mustache were the only signs Landru gave that he knew things were getting serious.

He regained his self-possession in an instant and launched a new attack on the police, accusing them of complete misinterpretation of the innocent entries in his diary of romantic clients. He failed to demonstrate his own innocence completely, he said, because it was not his business to do the work of the police.

"The police could never arrest me," he cried at one point. "It was always the 'victims' who seized me. I am accused of eleven murders; now prove me guilty!" he shouted a moment later.

Meantime, hour after hour, the steady bombardment of questions involving a minute research into his relations with many women went on. Landru now answering quickly and defiantly, again making tortuous replies to inquiries which he found embarrassing.

Toward the end of the afternoon Landru scored his best debating point, and incidentally indicated the line of his defense, or, at least, his explanation of some of the circumstantial evidence which is adduced against him.

"Why did you advertise for a wife in the matrimonial papers?" asked the President, "and what are all these entries, names and prices in your diary?"

Landru adjusted his spectacles on his nose and paused before replying, so as to give weight to his words:

"I advertised," he said, "so as to get in touch with a certain class of people who might, I considered, have furniture which they wished to dispose of. As early as 1914 I realized the need of furniture which there would be in our devastated regions after the war, and began to buy. The entries in my diary are the record of deals successfully concluded."

Pressed by the prosecution, he admitted that in some cases he had perhaps played the rôle of lover so as to make better bargains in furniture.

This question is therefore now definitely before the jury: Was Landru the ogre that the police prosecution declares he was or simply a rather cunning dealer in second-hand junk? It is a question the answer to which every one, both inside the court and out of it, is at the end of this second day of the trial a long way from knowing.

BLAME FOR JAFFA RIOTS PUT PARTLY ON JEWS

British Commission's Report Warns Immigrants to Be Considerate of Arab Majority.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The report to the Colonial Secretary made by the commission of inquiry into the Jaffa riots, which began on May 1 and continued during the next two days, says:

"The attitude of responsible Zionists is not negligible, as it is one of the irritant causes of the present discontent. It arises perhaps from the habit of regarding Palestine as a deserted, derelict land, sparsely inhabited by a population without traditions of nationality, where political experiments may be launched without arousing local opposition. Such a conception is considerably at variance with the spirit of authorized Zionist policy as defined in the declared intentions of the Secretary of State and the local Government. Much, we feel, might be done to allay the existing hostility between the races if responsible persons on both sides could agree to discuss the questions arising between them in a reasonable spirit on the basis that the Arabs should accept implicitly the declared policy of the Government on the subject of the Jewish national home, and that the Zionist leaders should abandon and repudiate all pretensions that go beyond it.

"Immigrants should be made to understand that, whatever their historical and religious claim, they are, after all, seeking a home in a country at present overwhelmingly Arab, and that it behooves them to adopt a considerate attitude toward the people among whom they must wish to live in peace and friendship.

"The Arab notables, on the other hand, should make it clear to the Arabs that in no case can they expect murder, violence and pillage to be condoned."

Former Chorus Girl Gets $80,000 Cash, Furs and Jewels, and Surrenders Property Worth $500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—James Stanley Joyce, lumberman, has won his fight for a divorce from Peggy Hopkins Joyce, his chorus girl wife, it was indicated tonight by Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior Court. The Judge ordered Alfred S. Austrian, counsel for Mr. Joyce, to prepare a decree of absolute divorce. He also ordered the drafting of a petition dismissing Mrs. Joyce's cross bill and her request for temporary alimony.

Mrs. Joyce did not contest her husband's suit. Instead, it was announced as the court session opened that she had agreed to a settlement by which she received $80,000 in a lump sum, retains jewelry and furs given to her by Joyce and valued at $800,000, retains housefurnishings and automobiles and cash given to her, valued at $404,250, and relinquishes jewelry given her, but not paid for, valued at $275,000, and gives up all claims to her husband's $3,300,000 estate and the $250,000 home he purchased for her at Miami, Fla.

As her reasons for the acceptance of this settlement, she announced through her attorneys that she feared the case would otherwise drag through the courts for years before a final settlement would be reached, that she feared further strain on an already endangered health and that she wished freedom from the surveillance over her actions kept by detectives in the employ of her husband.

Mrs. Julia Sawdorn, formerly social secretary, and Miss Hanah Nordstrom, former maid, of Mrs. Joyce, testified to visits of many men to Mrs. Joyce's apartments in New York and Peggy's alleged misconduct with both titled and untitled cosmopolites. They named Henri Letellier, publisher of Le Journal of Paris, in a Venetian escapade; Barton French, member of a New York family; Evans Spaulding, also of New York, and Prince d'Fleuri of Albania, described by Joyce as the "Prince without a principality." There were mentioned also the Duc de Durcal, one Edgar James, said to be wanted by Scotland Yard, and Ernest Hudson of New York; Maurice, the dancer, and Joe Padi, a New York restaurateur.

FOUND BUSINESS POOR IN NORTHERN EUROPE

G. Wentworth Field Says Denmark and Norway Are Hard Up, Sweden in Better Shape.

G. Wentworth Field of Chicago, who returned yesterday with Mrs. Field on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII. from a five-months' visit to Northern Europe, said that "Denmark is having a good deal of trouble with the unemployed. The day before we sailed from Copenhagen I saw 40,000 men marching to the Town Hall to make demands for labor or food. There is not much business in the country, and in Norway it is little better. Sweden is the only country in Northern Europe where the people seemed to be doing business and looked contented.

"Reports received in Stockholm from Russia were most pessimistic. The curio stores and jewelers' shops in Stockholm and Copenhagen were full of all kinds of ornaments, gold and silver cups, which had been sold for almost nothing by refugees to purchase food. I was offered a golf snuffbox with the initials of the former owner set in diamonds on the lid for a comparatively ridiculous price.

Another first cabin passenger was Paul Forostovsky, a Russian who escaped from Petrograd into Finland and has come here to study American business methods. He said that it was impossible to guess what was going to happen in Russia, but he did not think that things could be any worse. He doubted that Soviet rule could be overthrown for some time.

One baby was born in the steerage on the voyage. Oscar Anderson of 3,305 Forty-first Avenue, South Minneapolis, received a telegram when the liner docked that his mother had died while he was on the ocean. He claimed to be a citizen but the immigration officials would not permit him to land last night because he could not find his passport or citizenship papers. The Frederik VIII. had 700 passengers in all classes.

HYLAN FOR FOUR YEARS MORE.

Mayor HYLAN'S election plurality of some four hundred thousand may be accepted as evidence that this is a Democratic city. It is Democratic even with a poor candidate. The gentlemen of the Republican organization thought otherwise in midsummer. They pointed to the great Republican enrolment, to the Harding vote of 784,000, and insisted that the candidate named to oppose HYLAN must be of their party. They had their way. They nominated two Republicans on the city ticket, condescending to give one place to a Democrat. The campaign was a Republican affair. The names of all the candidates appeared on the ballot under the Republican emblem. The test of New York City's Republicanism was a fair one, the result is conclusive. As a demonstration the Hylan majority is impressive. We cherish the hope that the men of the Republican organization will bear it in mind when we are making ready our next quadrennial fusion arrangement to beat Tammany.

There was nothing inspiring or awakening in the Coalition movement this year. The candidates are good men, nothing is to be said against them. But at a time when the redemption from Hylanism demanded the nomination for Mayor of a man of the very highest standing, with associates on the ticket universally known, the Coalitionists nominated two Republican politicians and one Democratic politician, very good men, as we have said, but not men whose names visibly fired the people with enthusiasm. A very great part of the electorate, usually depended upon to aid fusion in every manner, was indifferent or hostile. Moreover, tens of thousands of Democrats evidently resisted this sudden and forcible conversion to Republicanism; just as in the second Bryan campaign, Democrats of the very highest standing, entirely out of sympathy with Mr. BRYAN'S financial views, nevertheless voted for him because they were Democrats and could not go on all their lives voting for Republican candidates. The women, alas that it should have to be said, did not purify the city by their votes. Intelligent women, women who understand what it means to have a man like HYLAN for Mayor of this city, worked nobly for the election of CURRAN, but in vain. Their multitudinous sisters in other parts of the city overwhelmed them.

If there are any crumbs of comfort, one is that nobody is disappointed. The pangs of disappointment were experienced two months ago when the Coalition ticket was made up and seen to be hopeless. Another cause for satisfaction, profound satisfaction, is that the traction situation is beyond the meddling of the Hylan City Government. The Transit Commission has prepared a plan and seeks to perfect it by public hearings, by diligent study of the city's interests, by taking good counsel. It is made by law independent of the Hylan Administration, as it had to be, as it must be, if we are to make any progress in solving the traction problem. Mayor HYLAN will abuse the commission, he cannot interfere with its work. Nor is there any probability that the statutory authority of the commission will be weakened. Mr. CURRAN injured himself in the campaign by ill-judged attacks on the law, by pledging himself to work for its repeal, at the same time putting forth plans of his own which did not commend themselves to public judgment. Had he been elected we have no doubt that good sense would have come to his rescue and he would have seen the inadvisability of pursuing that policy. But it did him more harm than good to discuss the subject in such terms, for in so far as traction matters were an issue in the campaign, all those voters who believed the claptrap about the principle of home rule being violated by creating a Traction Commission of New Yorkers were bound to go for HYLAN anyway. The vote cast for PANKEN, the Socialist candidate, which, had his party stood by him, should have gone far over 200,000, shows that he, too, suffered by the inclination of believers in municipal ownership and operation to give their support to the chief advocate of that policy.

Prediction is futile in the case of a Mayor like Mr. HYLAN. He is one man among multitudes of whom it is almost impossible to believe that he will profit by experience, that his second term will be better than his first. There are matters of great moment to the city depending upon his course during the next four years. First of all the police, of which we may as well despair in the beginning in order to avoid disappointment. The docks, the port plan, the schools, the markets—all these and many other branches of municipal service dreadfully need intelligent attention and control, and there is in Mr. HYLAN'S make-up, behavior and record nothing to encourage the belief that they will get it. It is a sorry outlook, but the people who voted for Mr. HYLAN have got the Mayor they wanted and will have no right to complain whatever may betide.

BRIAND'S MOTIVES IN COMING.

It was fully recognized in France that it was a serious step for the Prime Minister to absent himself from the country, even for only a few weeks. The former President, M. POINCARE, argued that it would be a mistake and a possible peril. Premier BRIAND himself frankly admitted in his speech to the Chamber that his being away might entail a certain "awkwardness." But to that "gêne," he said, he had decided after anxious thought on the subject to expose himself for the sake of showing every possible deference to the United States. But it was not simply politeness and friendship that moved him. France had to meet in America tales put about by her enemies of yesterday. It was desirable that he should go to Washington in order to make it clear that France was not the troubler of peace; that she was not insanely militarist, and that she desired international agreements making possible the cutting down of military expenses as ardently as any nation on earth.

Whether ex-President POINCARE was persuaded by this argument does not appear. But he wrote in Le Temps speeding BRIAND on his way with good wishes. It may be that the comment which he added had just a touch of irony:

> America withdrew from a European treaty in which one of her own leaders had largely collaborated, and now it is Europe, the whole of it, which goes to America. What an unexampled triumph for the national pride of a people youthful and rejoicing in its greatness. The New World is host to the Old; it extends the honors of the house; it completes, without Mr. WILSON, the noble mission which Mr. WILSON assigned it.

VIOLENCE IN THE MILK STRIKE.

In announcing its plans for the street corner sales that begin this morning, the Milk Conference Board said: "Adequate police protection "has been arranged for each wagon, "and special patrol along the entire "route." That should mean that the public and the distributers will be protected in their lawful rights. Yet there are warnings of violence.

They do not come from the strikers; they come from the City Administration that is responsible for the maintenance of order. Health Commissioner COPELAND predicted that the milk wagon sales would result in "bloodshed and murder" and added: "The blame must rest to a large "extent on the heads of you dis-"tributers." On the same day Mayor HYLAN received a delegation from the strikers, who have beaten dealers, attacked policemen, stolen delivery wagons and wantonly destroyed thousands of gallons of milk; and, when they protested against the "brutality" of the police, he gave them soothing words. "I will see that "every policeman guilty of brutality "is punished." Quite truthfully one of the strike leaders assured his men that the City Administration was "with them." It would require evidence to remove the impression that this is an incitement to violence.

Specious and false is the attempt to place responsibility for the continuance of the strike upon the Milk Conference Board. The folly of the union's demand for an increase of $5 a week over its inflated wartime wages is now admitted, even by Commissioner COPELAND, who calls it "a big mistake." But when the demand was made the employers offered to arbitrate it, and then to continue the current wages for a year. The men boisterously declined both offers. Now that they are clearly beaten, they make a virtue of urging arbitration. But the employers also have had an awakening. The continuance of the union leaders in power would be a menace to the health of all children and invalids. The verdict of the dealers was as reasonable as it was firm: "We are prepared to meet "a committee of our men at any "time, but we will never meet with "BRIGGS and his radicals."

One of Commissioner COPELAND'S predictions seems likely enough. "Before six months pass other unions "will spring up in your organization. "The principle of collective bargain-"ing is here to stay." To unionism in itself few liberal-minded employers are opposed. But the safety and the health of the public demand that in the milk trade there shall be some quite "other" organization.

A DECADENT PROFESSION.

"Progress" and science have stripped the highwayman of his old romantic amenities. The highway robbers or gentlemen of the road such as Mr. CHARLES WHIBLEY, for instance, shows us in "A Book of Scoundrels," practiced their profession with such observance of its best traditions on Hounslow Heath or the Great North Road; were so apologetic and gallant to the women passengers; swaggered in London in such brave togs, that one could almost forgive them. They had no advantage of weapons. And usually they had to swing at Tyburn, sacrifices to their love of strong waters and the sex or the informer and thief-taker of the Jonathan Wild school.

Compare those eighteenth-century pads with the masked robbers who "held up" the purple New Orleans Limited on the Illinois Central Railroad. The inhuman and intolerable detail of their processes is the throwing of gasoline or some other inflammatory substance or missile into the mail car, locked against them by the faithful mail clerks, vainly threatened and fired at. The door sill is anointed. A robber lights a match. The car bursts into flame. The clerks have to open the door or burn to death. One jumps out. The other is driven back once. They try to drive him back twice, a bullet singing by his ears. The pouches of letters he has seized in his hands are not satisfactory to his visitors. Flame shoots out of the open door. Singed and burnt, the clerk jumps, slugged after being shot. Three other train employés were wounded. It seems that these idiot savages who burned their expected treasure house, the mail car, did get two pouches of registered mail. Meanwhile the State is scoured by hot pursuers.

Whether caught or not, these men by their cruel recklessness may have done something unconsciously to interfere with their business. The frequency and impunity of train robbing in the United States are a dishonor to its civilization. We might be living in the days of the Lyons Mail or the Deadwood Stage except that the booty is now thousands of times more tempting and richer. We are not in a condition to point a superior censorious finger at our Mexican friends in this regard. These little pleasantries of trying to burn people to death may make the easy-going American resolved to put an end to train robbery. In this Illinois case the passengers weren't robbed; and the swag was scanty. That may have been from accident, want of intelligence or a belief in the riches of the mail. This was a peculiarly desperate proceeding, sure to be followed by others more remunerative and intelligent if the railroad men, the Government and the law don't keep their eyes open.

THE CONQUEST OF EVEREST.

The reconnoissance of Mount Everest has been finished, and an attempt will be made in 1922 to climb the highest mountain in the world. On Monday night Sir FRANCIS YOUNGHUSBAND, who was British Commissioner to Tibet in 1902-4, told the Royal Geographical Society, of which he is President, that the expedition sent to the Himalayas early in the year to study the approaches to the mountain and to map the country had found a northeastern spur, 6,000 feet below the summit, which could be used as a base for the ascent of the mountain. Two of the alpinists, MALLORY and BULLOCK, had reached an altitude of 23,000 feet, and reported that they had seen what appeared to be a practicable route to the top. "We now have to find men," said Sir FRANCIS YOUNGHUSBAND, "who can stand the "terrific blizzards and the frightful "cold they will encounter on those "crucial two miles of knife-edged "ridge."

Probably the description is more rhetorical than true. At an altitude of 23,000 feet it must be snow and ice work for the mountaineer, and therefore, instead of a continuing ridge, there is likely to be a broken snow mass with many cornices, a group of minor peaks ending in the supreme eminence. Of the great cold and the blizzards there can be no doubt. The "two" miles is a figure of speech. Certainly, if the daring climbers ever set foot on the pinnacle of Everest, their progress in straining up the last 6,000 feet will be painfully slow, and hour after hour will go by before the goal is reached.

Sir MARTIN CONWAY, who attained to 23,000 feet in the Himalayas in 1892, and later ascended Aconcagua (23,080 feet) in South America, has pointed out that on the last day of the attempt which the Duke of the ABRUZZI made to climb Bride Mountain in the Himalayas—he got as high as 24,500 feet before turning back—the rate of ascent was only 150 feet an hour. Sir MARTIN CONWAY believes that if Everest is to be conquered camps must be made at altitudes of 21,000, 23,000, 24,500, 26,000, 27,000 and 28,000 feet. He adds:

> These camps would necessitate carrying considerable weights up to the increasing heights. They (the camps) would have to be strong enough to withstand the heavy storms which are more frequent than good weather at high altitudes; they would have to be victualed for several days, and would have to provide shelter for several sleepers, and for at least two in the highest of all.

Who is to carry up the "considerable" burdens for the camps? As it is all that an alpinist can do at 23,000 to 24,500 feet (the last the world record for mountaineering) to cut his way upward without any but the lightest impedimenta, the question is a hard one to answer. The Tibetan porters have not proved hardy and enduring above 20,000 feet. Evidently Sir MARTIN CONWAY does not think the ascent of Everest is feasible.

By Sept. 3 Colonel HOWARD BURY'S reconnoitring party had tried all the approaches to Mount Everest from the Tibetan plateau. On the west and northwest the mountain was found to be impregnable. On the north an almost vertical cliff of 10,000 feet rose from the Rongbuk glacier. The southern aspect was almost as forbidding. The east to northeastern approach held out the only hope. From a col 23,000 feet high (the locality apparently indicated by the President of the Royal Geographical Society) a northeast ridge of the mountain held out some promise of accessibility. However, it is to be noted that the exploring party encountered snowstorms and fierce gales during the Summer months. There must be calm and clear weather if Everest is to yield to the invaders in 1922; if such a condition exists in the Autumn, the snows will be frozen hard enough for climbing, but the cold above 20,000 feet may be too intense for the achievement.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Should Be Frank but Careful.

There should be immediate response from the American Legion to the request of Secretary WEEKS for the help its members undoubtedly can give in clearing up the situation created by the charges made by Senator WATSON. What Mr. WEEKS wants is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and if the Legion does its duty he will get it.

The men who served in our armies abroad know what happened there, and nobody can possibly be more interested than they in upholding the country's honor. That they will do not less by bringing the guilty to punishment than by clearing the innocent. It is to be hoped, however, that the commander of the Legion and its other responsible officials will see to it that those whose evidence they collect carefully distinguish between what they saw and what they thought about the things seen. Many of them are prone to make rash deductions from inadequate data—to say, for instance, that a soldier was hanged without trial because they saw the hanging, but were told nothing about the offense committed or the investigation on which the sentence was based.

Possibly it was a mistake not to distribute more widely information about these and other military matters, but to do that is not military custom, and explanations are confined to the higher ranks—often to the very highest. That is why the stories of privates are usually untrustworthy whenever they pass beyond the description of facts observed. The impulse to exaggerate—to astonish the civilian who stayed at home—to horrify him and make him sit up—is a familiar one and too natural to be severely condemned.

Prohibition Declared a Success.

Reports coming from all over the country to the Acting Prohibition Director here make it possible, at least for those desirous of doing so, to believe that effective opposition to the enforcement of the Volstead law is waning rapidly and in not a few States has almost disappeared. Rather significantly, Mr. YELLOWLEY does not include New York State in his map of the country.

Almost everywhere else he is assured by his informants, and passes on the assurance in seeming confidence, that all is going well for prohibition—that Judges and District Attorneys are supporting the law with increasing energy, and that juries are bringing in verdicts of guilty, when the evidence justifies it, in these cases as readily as in any other. The press, too, as a general rule, is credited with friendliness, and it has been particularly helpful by bringing to the attention of drinkers, and not allowing them to forget, that most of the liquor they can buy from the bootlegging fraternity is as poor in quality as it is high in price.

Most enthusiastic of all the reports, curiously enough, to those who still think of Texas as it was in the old days, come from that State. Nowhere else in the Union, it is stated, are juries more ready to convict.

Mississippi still seems to be something less than eager to enforce prohibition, but for Oklahoma, Arizona, Montana and the other States to which Easterners are wont to ascribe frontier manners, good words are spoken because of their efficiency in hunting the demon.

New Yorkers will hear these rosy tales with incredulity, but that doesn't prove the tales untrue, and only in New Jersey, apparently, does anybody now cherish the illusion that the teeth of the prohibition law can be drawn. As for the old-time saloon, nobody either hopes or fears its re-establishment.

THE WOMEN OF MISSING MEN.

Grant me a place beside the bier
Of this, the warrior called "Unknown,"
Long have I waited, long have wept
For one who died far off, alone.

To God, when death should come, I prayed
The one boon left—to close his eyes,
But on the battlefield afar
He died beneath the shell-torn skies.

Hungry of heart, with empty hands
Denied the easing of his pain,
Let me but touch the casket fair
Of this my dead come home again.

It matters not he lies unknown—
His resting-place a nation's shrine;
I am his Mother, maid or wife,
Whichever name will make him mine.

For all the nameless dead are here,
By this lone soldier homeward led;
And restless spirits, finding peace,
Turn on their pillows comforted.

So lay him down and let me kneel—
Long-cheated hands above him clasp;
I think I see him smile content
Because I tend his grave at last.

Long after burial-pomp is done,
From every homestead near and far,
My feet shall beat out many a track:
I am the Women of the War.

HEALTH FORTNIGHT HERE.

Everybody to Be Told How They Can Keep in Shape.

"Health Fortnight," the semi-centennial of the American Public Health Association, began yesterday with several meetings of health organizations. Next Sunday will be "Health Sunday," when co-operation of the leading churches is expected to help set forth a health message to the public. Beginning on Monday, a week will be devoted to the fiftieth annual meeting of the American Public Health Association in the Hotel Astor and to the Public Health Exposition in the Grand Central Palace.

Prominent scientists will attend the meetings. The committee in charge of the Public Health Exposition consists of Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, as Chairman; A. W. Hedrich, Secretary, and Dr. Charles E. North, Treasurer and Director. Dr. Stephen Smith, who is in his ninety-ninth year, will take an active part. Dr. Smith founded the American Public Health Association and conducted investigations into sanitary conditions in this city more than half a century ago, with the result that legislation was enacted creating the Health Department. Dr. Smith was the first Health Commissioner of New York.

In connection with the fiftieth annual meeting of the American Public Health Society and scientific associations cooperating with this body, a meeting of the Sanitary Engineering Section of the American Public Health Association was held yesterday in the Museum of Natural History, where engineers discussed the problem of garbage disposal in New York. H. de B. Parsons spoke on "Incineration," W. J. Springborn on "Reduction" and J. F. Sanborn upon recent development in methods.

Mr. Parsons told of methods of incinerating garbage, saying that street sweepings, dust, refuse and ashes accumulated here for a year and put in one pile would more than fill the space occupied by Bryant Park to a height of 1,300 feet, or twice the height of the Singer Building. The annual garbage of the city, he said, amounted to more than 800,000 cubic yards, or 400,000 tons. Mr. Springborn told of the processes by which garbage is converted into useful products, such as grease, soap and fertilizer.

N. Y. CENTRAL TO PAY DEBT.

Will Issue $19,500,000 Bonds to Meet Obligation to Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The New York Central Railroad Company was given permission by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to issue $19,500,000 in its refunding bonds to be turned over to the Railroad Administration in exchange for a one-year note of the same amount which the Government now holds.

The new issue will bear interest at 6 per cent. and mature Oct. 1, 2013, and will constitute a settlement of a part of the railroad's indebtedness to the United States for additions and betterments made to its property under Federal control.

The Public Utilities Commission of Michigan objected to the issue on the ground that the Interstate Commerce Commission had no jurisdiction to allow the step to be taken, but the commission ruled that the action was compatible with public interests and the authorization was within its powers.

The Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern Railway was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue $310,571 of 5 per cent. bonds to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, which owns the first named property. The St. Paul will be reimbursed by the exchange, the commission found, for money advances and obligations assumed in behalf of the smaller road.

WIN HARVARD SCHOLARSHIPS

Forty-Six Freshmen, Mostly From Public Schools, Qualify in Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—Thirty-eight Harvard freshmen have received Price Greenleaf aid, and eight aid from the Samuel C. Cobb tuition fund, on the basis of their fine record before their admission to the college.

These aids are virtually scholarships assigned to freshmen who show special promise. The awards are based in each case on strong evidence of the candidate's scholarship and character furnished by the school from which he comes. Candidates for the degree of A. B. who qualify for this honor obtain Price Greenleaf aid, while the awards from the Cobb fund go to candidates for S. B.

WON'T LET I. R. T. INTERVENE

Supreme Court Bars Its Appearance in Chicago Railways Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Supreme Court denied today the motion of James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, to intervene as friend of the court in the case brought by the City of Chicago against the street railways of that city to prevent them from charging increased fares as authorized by the Illinois State Public Utilities Commission.

Arguments in the Chicago case were heard today by the court. C. E. Cleveland, appearing for the city, insisted that the contracts between the city and the railway under which they were to operate for twenty years from 1907 were binding and no feature more so than the 5-cent fare. He asserted that not only the State commission but the State courts had ignored decisions of the United States Supreme Court which recognized such contracts as more controlling than the police authority of regulation which the commission might possess.

SEES CHEAP SHOES NEAR.

Massachusetts Maker Says $3.50 and $4 Prices Are Coming.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The era of high shoe prices is practically ended, and in the near future it will be possible to purchase good shoes for $3.50 and $4, I. Q. White, President of the I. Q. White Shoe Company of Bridgewater, told the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today.

Speaking at a hearing on a proposed wage cut of 25 per cent. in factories in the Brockton district, Mr. White asserted that the cheaper shoes would be made in St. Louis, and that unless Massachusetts manufacturers were enabled to reduce their wage scales they would be unable to meet Western competition. He added that the proposed reduction was necessary if his plant was to continue in operation.

Beatty Visits Annapolis.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8.—Admiral Beatty, Commander of the British Grand Fleet in the World War, today visited the Naval Academy, where he was received with all the ceremony due his rank. He reviewed the midshipmen, inspected the academic departments and was entertained at luncheon by the Superintendent, Admiral Wilson. Lord Beatty was accompanied by Lady Beatty, his staff and the honorary aids assigned by the Navy Department.

CAPITAL GUNS GREET THE UNKNOWN TODAY

Presidential Salute Will Be Fired as the Olympia Brings Body to Port.

TO LIE IN STATE TILL FRIDAY

Public Will Be Admitted to Capitol Rotunda All Thursday—Pershing to Walk to Arlington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Bearing the body of the unknown soldier to whose memory his nation will pay tribute on Friday, the historic cruiser Olympia is expected to dock at the Washington navy yard tomorrow at 4 P. M. The ship will pass up the Potomac, escorted by the battleship North Dakota and the destroyer Bernardou, and will be greeted by thousands of Washingtonians lining the waterfront approaches in silence.

Salutes will be fired by Fort Washington and from Washington Barracks as the Olympia steams past. As she nears the navy yard the battery there will fire a salute of twenty-one guns. After the gangway is lowered the ship's band will play as the body is brought ashore and turned over to the United States Army. The Olympia's mission ended, she, too, will fire a salute of twenty-one guns.

The soldier's body will be borne to the Capitol, where it will be placed in the rotunda, but no one will be allowed to view the flag-draped coffin until Thursday, when the rotunda will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M.

The War Department today completed arrangements for those who wish to pay homage to the nation's son on Thursday. The general public will be admitted through the east entrance to the rotunda, and after passing the body without stopping will pass out through the west entrance. Societies and organizations to which permits have been granted to conduct brief services will assemble in column of threes at the foot of the Senate steps on the east side of the guard of honor. After the services each organization will pass into the public column and out of the Capitol.

Harding to Place Wreath on Bier.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Late in the day and before the public may pass through the great rotunda to pay its respects to the humble soldier who lies in such state as an emperor might envy, President Harding will go in person to lay a wreath upon the coffin. Vice President Coolidge will also place a floral tribute on the flag-draped bier, and Senator Cummins, President pro tem. of the Senate, and Speaker Gillett of the House jointly will deposit the wreath which Congress has voted as its own special mark of pride and sorrow. Chief Justice Taft and his associates will make a similar offering.

Through the night that follows and until the booming of minute guns wakes the echoes on Armistice Day, four armed sentries will stand at the corners of the bier. Each branch of the army and navy will furnish men for this inner guard which will stand always at attention through the long hours. Before them will pass on Thursday a throng of Americans, paying homage. Not a minute of that day, from morning until night, but has been claimed by some person of some society to lay a wreath on the casket, among them the British Ambassador, to testify to Britain's sympathy.

General Pershing will walk all the way from the Capitol to Arlington National Cemetery on Friday to pay honor to the unknown soldier.

The leader under whom the unknown served in France declined today to be the grand marshal and ride at the head of the funeral escort. As Chief of the American Expeditionary Force General Pershing regards himself as a mourner at the symbolic funeral, and he will walk the five miles, taking his place just after President Harding and the Cabinet members, but counting on foot with the column after the President and Senators, the Representatives, Supreme Court members and others of the official group of mourners turn aside at the White House.

Announcement was made today that King Ferdinand of Rumania had awarded the highest military decoration of his nation, known as the Rumanian Virtutea Militare, to the unknown soldier. The decoration will be placed upon the coffin in the course of the ceremonies at Arlington by Prince Bibesco, Rumanian Minister here.

Composite Flag for British Unknown.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A composite flag, representing Great Britain, the United States, France, Belgium, Italy and Japan, has just been placed on the grave of the British unknown warrior in Westminster Abbey by Emil L. G. Hohenthal, Most Worthy Patriarch of the National Division of the Sons of Temperance of North America. Accompanying the flag was this message:

"This flag is placed here as a tribute to the service, devotion, valor and sacrifice rendered by him who is buried here, and to all his associates of this and the allied nations, in the name of his comrades in arms, members of the Order of the Sons of Temperance in Canada and the United States, on the twenty-ninth anniversary of the birth of the order."

Nephew of Denby to Represent East in Western Arms Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, Nov. 8.—The Eastern College Committee for the Limitation of Armaments, formed at the recent conference at Princeton, is sending Charles Denby Jr. of Princeton to represent the Eastern universities at a similar conference of Western institutions, to be held in Chicago on Nov. 13 and 14. Denby, a nephew of the Secretary of the Navy, is Chairman of the Eastern committee.

The war cost charts, compiled by Professor Edwin Kemmerer of Princeton, for presentation at the conference in Princeton, are also to be used at the Chicago meeting, where 700 colleges and universities and more than 1,500 secondary schools will be represented.

The idea of having students present their views on disarmament seems to have taken a firm hold everywhere, for the universities of England, Belgium, France, Italy, Portugal and Holland are following the example set at Princeton.

Administration Settles the Legal Designation of Capital.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Administration, after a period of uncertainty, has settled upon "the City of Washington" as the official legal designation of the capital.

President Harding in an executive order issued today directed that these words be used in every legal instrument executed here requiring any reference to Washington. Hitherto proclamations and similar legal instruments have made reference variously to "the District of Columbia," "the City of Washington" or simply "Washington," while President Harding's Thanksgiving proclamation recently issued was "done in the capital of the United States."

CHECKS MARK SPECULATION

German Government Announces Plans to Reichstag.

BERLIN, Nov. 8. (Associated Press)—The German Government announced today during the course of a debate on taxes in the Reichstag that it was planning stringent measures to curb speculation and traffic in foreign exchange.

Minister of Economics Schmidt also disclosed that 1,000,000,000 marks, worth of French wines, champagne and other liquors were entering Germany through the import control station at Ems, and that French perfumes, cosmetics and other "superfluous articles of luxury" were likewise pouring into the country.

"Were our situation not so tragic," declared Herr Schmidt, "this conception on the part of the Entente of our internal needs would have a humorous aspect. But the situation is simply that either we are to consume these French wines and snap our fingers at the reparations obligations or that we are to resolve to fulfill our obligations; in which case we shall be compelled to decline the French libations."

The debate revealed strong conflict between the Government figures on budgets and deficits and the independent estimates compiled by Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, who declared that the spectacle of the Food Minister running the Finance Ministry as a side issue was symptomatic of the Government's helplessness. Dr. Helfferich estimated that the deficit would reach 182,000,000,000 marks, instead of 110,000,000,000, the figure submitted by Andreas Hermes, the Food Minister.

"Every third man in Germany," Dr. Helfferich declared, "today either is an official or civil servant, while the public payroll contains the names of at least 100,000 political appointees. The systematic introduction of the eight-hour day has necessitated the hiring of 250,000 extra officials."

Financial experts called attention today to the fact that the German mark had reached the point where the Austrian crown was exactly a year ago.

Tuesday's London advices quoted the mark at about one-third of one cent. The latest quotations on the crown were between 5,000 and 6,000 to the dollar.

BREMEN, Germany, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Two hundred million dollars would suffice to extinguish Germany's "paper flood," said Dr. Otto Hugo, leader of the German Volkspartei, during the course of an address here today on the German political and economic situation.

Dr. Hugo estimated that 75,000,000,000 marks were floating about the world at large, and he predicted the loss of the Westphalian industrial section unless Germany got a "breathing spell" in the shape of gold credits abroad to enable her to meet the reparation payment due next January.

He estimated that the value of German property sequestrated abroad amounted to twenty times the amount of Germany's excess paper currency, and that, therefore, one-twentieth of "this last remnant of Germany's tangible credits," if converted into gold, would suffice to wipe out her paper marks. Dr. Hugo complained that the armies of occupation in the Rhineland were costing the nation more than did the imperial army and navy in time of peace. Nevertheless, he advised his audience not to despair but to work hard.

FEAR MARK'S DECLINE.

British Chancellor of Exchequer Is to Discuss It in Parliament.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer is expected to deal in Parliament tomorrow with the grave world financial crisis, especially the fall of the mark, which at one time today was down to 1,300 to the pound sterling. The Chronicle's political correspondent says:

"In France the Government has estimated a budget deficit in 1922 of 1,625,000,000 francs, and France relies largely on German reparation payments to make good this huge deficit. If the German mark became practically worthless then the value of the German indemnity payments would disappear. The possibility of French bankruptcy might then loom on the horizon."

It is pointed out in financial circles here that the downward curve in the value of German currency is closely analogous to that which preceded the utter collapse of Austrian and Polish exchanges. The rapid fall of the mark began shortly after the last German payment of reparations, which was undoubtedly not without effect on the exchanges, but that is not the only cause. No serious attempt is being made in Germany to meet expenditure out of taxation. This was also the case in Austria and in a like manner Germany is discharging her internal liabilities by printing paper money.

"Whether this policy is due to a lack of courage in levying taxation," says The Chronicle, "or a deliberate plan to repudiate the internal debt or a desire to depreciate the currency faster than the rate of wages can rise or to demonstrate the impossibility of paying the reparations—or to all for these causes—the effect is the same. It is inevitably causing anxiety both in French and English political circles in view of the next payment of reparations."

PASTORS TO WIELD PICKS

And Boston Labor Leaders Will Fill Their Places in Pulpits.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 8.—Boston pastors have accepted the challenge of union labor to try their hand at wielding the pick and shovel and carrying the hod in order that they may be in a better position to discuss the labor situation. Union labor leaders in their turn will occupy the pulpits of the pastors that labor may get a clearer idea of the church side of the matter.

Ministers from several churches of Greater Boston will tomorrow don overalls and with hod, trowel, paint brush, pick, shovel and other tools of manual labor, become workmen on various building jobs about the city. Several of the clergymen will work on steam shovels.

They registered for their various tasks today with Dr. Doremus Scudder, Secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches. The working pastors include the Rev. Newton C. Fetter of the Cambridge Baptist Church, the Rev. Henry I. Bailey, Temple Street Baptist Church; Dr. Doremus Scudder, the Rev. Fletcher D. Parker, Secretary Congregational Missionary Society; the Rev. Howard Freda, Clarendon Street Baptist Church; the Rev. Frank Kingdon, Tremont Street Methodist Church; the Rev. Clarence A. Young, Roxbury Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Lyman B. Ruttledge, co-pastor First Parish Unitarian Church; the Rev. Howard B. Stratton and the Rev. R. J. Davis, both of Arlington.

Confer on Egyptian Cotton Shipping

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Sir Ernest Raeburn, representing the Liverpool shipping conference, discussed with Vice President William J. Love of the Shipping Board tonight the controversy which has arisen over the division of Egyptian cotton shipments. Neither would comment on the result of their meeting, but at the Shipping Board it was said there was now hope that the matter would be adjusted satisfactorily.

CHINA LOAN DISPUTE TO BE PARLEY ISSUE

HINT OF CONGRESS INQUIRY

Two Republican Senators Indicate That Details of Consortium Negotiations Will Be Asked.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Financing of China by foreign Governments and the ramifications of financial plans, especially the failure of the consortium proposition offered by the American group and the recent technical default by China in the payments of interest and principal due the Commercial and Continental Trust Company of Chicago, became today an outstanding pre-conference issue.

The events which led up to the rejection by China of the offer of the American group to negotiate a loan of $16,000,000, the consequent default, followed by the sharp note of Secretary Hughes and the charges by Chinese representatives that J. P. Morgan & Co. sought to make the payment of interest on the Hu Kuang bonds contingent upon the granting of the loan, have forced this issue strikingly upon the attention of the public.

The charge by spokesmen for China that J. P. Morgan & Co. demanded the payment of interest on the Hu Kuang bonds of German issue, and the sweeping denial by Thomas W. Lamont of this allegation, instead of bringing the controversy to an end has fanned it into a considerable flame. The Oriental mind has become deeply aroused over what it interprets as an attempt to impugn Chinese integrity. As a result, as soon as Mr. Lamont joined the issue today by denying the statement that J. P. Morgan & Co. had demanded payment on the Hu Kuang bonds, preparations were made to throw the issue into the conference. Experts began the preparation of a bill of indictment and China's ex-Minister of Finance, familiar with the transaction in all its details, is on his way here with instructions from the Peking Government to present all the facts to the conference if an opportunity offers.

Talk of Congress Inquiry.

That the operation of the consortium plan and the alleged moves on the part of the American group to force payment of the German issue of the Hu Kuang bonds will become the subject of investigation by the Senate was indicated by inquiries made today by two Republican Senators for the details of the operation of the American bankers in China last May. According to reliable information a resolution will be introduced in the Senate shortly after the conference gets under way calling for an inquiry into the matter. It was said that Thomas W. Lamont and George Stevens, who represented the American group, and others who know of the frustrated pl

STREET MILK SALES WILL START TODAY

SOME DELIVERIES TO HOMES

Drivers Say Plan Will Supply Only Two Per Cent. of Public—Copeland Calls New Parley.

The milk distributers' ability to break the strike is expected to be tested today when they attempt to put into effect a system of retail milk wagons in the streets of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Although leaders of the 11,000 striking drivers predicted failure and said that the distributers could not get enough men to handle the project, the distributers announced that they were confident of success, providing adequate police protection was assured. The distributers admitted that they were not considering house-to-house deliveries, because of the danger to employes in entering hallways and buildings. Owing to the withdrawal of police protection practically no milk was distributed yesterday.

Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland in a statement said that the situation was "very unsatisfactory" and not enough milk was reaching the public. He said that he had summoned the distributers to another conference this afternoon and "hoped, with election over, they would come to their senses."

D. S. Horton, secretary of the Sheffield Farms Company, in a statement last night said that beginning today his company would open fifteen additional stores, making a total of seventy-nine open out of 200 they own. These stores were selling both "loose" and bottled milk, he said.

"In the twenty-four-hour period ending at 2 o'clock on Tuesday, the total distribution of Sheffield milk was 62 per cent. of normal," Mr. Horton said, adding: "We will open one Grade A bottling plant on Wednesday and plan to open another on the following day, thereby providing an additional supply of Grade A milk needed for babies.

"Starting with nothing on Nov. 1, we are now distributing more than half of our usual output. The new organization is growing hourly. We are building up a reconstructed force that will enable us to render a more efficient and more courteous service than could have been possible under old conditions. With the continued support of our patrons, we expect by the first of the week to market our normal supply."

Denying that they made from $50 to $65 a week, the drivers in a statement asked that an "impartial and unbiased body of public citizens" be named to make an investigation and determine the facts regarding wages. The drivers also demanded that the New York Milk Conference Board be investigated under the Sherman anti-trust act as a combination in restraint of trade.

No further steps were taken yesterday by the Milk Conference Board to retain the strikers from interference with milk wagons, but it was said that "proceedings will be begun when deemed necessary to enable the workers to continue distribution of milk."

Old Employes Seek Jobs.

I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the Milk Conference Board, said in a statement:

"The larger milk companies have received communications by letter and telephone from many of their old drivers, who indicate that they would return if assured protection and if other men would join them in returning.

"The Borden's Farm Products Company reports that fifty of the old men will be among those driving the huckster wagons put on the streets tomorrow. About two hundred former Borden drivers have been in touch with the branch offices, discussing the advisability of their early return. A similar number have expressed their willingness to return to the Sheffield Farms employ at the propitious time. The inside forces of the larger milk companies have been recruited to almost 100 per cent.

"In Brooklyn tomorrow the Borden Farms Products Company will have 225 wagons distributing milk, a number being employed, of course, in peddling along Bedford Avenue. The distributers will make milk available by placing one wagon at every corner on Broadway from Sixtieth to 181st Street, one wagon at every corner on Lexington Avenue between Fortieth and Eighty-sixth Street, and wagons along Bedford Avenue from North Sixth to Snyder Avenues. Borden's Farm Products Company is making some house-to-house deliveries in Brooklyn and will send huckster wagons into other sections of Brooklyn. The Sheffield Farms Company also will send out a number of additional wagons from which milk will be sold."

Commissioner Copeland said that he believed the distributers soon would be willing to arbitrate the controversy, and added that "from reliable information I have obtained I am of the opinion that it will not be possible for the distributers to resume house-to-house deliveries without taking back their old employes. The new drivers are unfamiliar with the routes. The distributers don't know where to tell them to go and I do not think that they can resume house-to-house deliveries without their old employes."

Dr. Copeland said that plans had been completed to remodel and open the Nathan Straus laboratory in East Thirty-second Street as an emergency pasteurizing station, handling between 40,000 and 50,000 quarts a day—sufficient to take care of hospitals and many babies. As soon as estimates are completed the Commissioner said, the Board of Estimate will be asked to make the necessary appropriation.

Strikers Call Plan Futile.

The milk drivers said that the huckster system would not "take care of more than 2 per cent. of the population in either Manhattan or Brooklyn, and it makes no provision for taking care of the densely populated district south of Fortieth Street in Manhattan; it makes no provision to take care of Long Island, and it makes no provision to take care of South Brooklyn and the dense population in centre Brooklyn and above 181st Street in Manhattan."

Referring to the question of wages the statement said:

"We want to call the attention of the public to the fact that in Chicago milk is sold for 12 cents a quart; the drivers get $41 a week and 6-10 cent for every bottle sold. The same price is paid to the farmer in the State of Illinois that the milk companies are paying the farmers in New York State. Does it not seem that the milk companies are making from 8 to 6 cents a quart too much in New York and paying larger dividends at the expense of the milk consuming public and that the drivers are underpaid?"

Mr. Horton of the Sheffield Farms Company said that if the retail milk routes to be started today proved a success they would be extended to the Bronx and other parts of the city on Thursday. He said that the sales of the Sheffield Company throughout the city on Monday amounted to 300,000 quarts and that the total supply of milk available was 65 per cent. of normal.

No deliveries were attempted yesterday by the milk companies from their main plants to their branch stores, enough having been stored at the smaller depots on Monday to last until today. Many of the smaller stores were not opened yesterday.

Both the Borden's Farm Products Company and the Sheffield Farms Company announced that they might attempt to resume some house-to-house routes in Brooklyn today. The wagons probably will start after 8 A. M. Representatives of both companies reported large receipts of milk and an almost normal sale of "loose" milk to retailers. The storekeepers took the milk away in their own vehicles.

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Colt Albro, who spent the Summer at their country place, Cedar Brook Farm, Webotuck, N. Y., are returning to town today and will be at their home, 130 East Seventy-second Street. Mrs. Albro plans to leave in January for a two months' trip to Hawaii.

Miss Adelaide Kip Rhinelander and Julien St. Charles Shackno will be married this afternoon at St. Thomas's Church. Miss Martha M. Ottley is to take the place of Miss Mary D. Strange as a bridesmaid, who has been obliged to withdraw owing to mourning. About fifteen hundred guests are expected at the reception at the Plaza.

Mrs. Rufus King has returned from Cincinnati and is at the Ambassador for a few weeks before opening her town house, at 43 East Twenty-fifth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer have issued invitations for a reception for Dr. Richard Strauss, at their residence, 2 East Fifty-fourth Street, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 15.

Governor Miller will give a reception in the Rose Room at the Plaza this morning at 11 o'clock for General Baron Alphonse Jacques of the Belgian Army. On the night of Nov. 20 a dinner is to be given by the Alsace-Lorraine Society at the hotel for Marshal Foch.

Mrs. Chamberlain, wife of Major Gen. John Chamberlain, will sail tomorrow with her daughter for Europe, on the transport Candigny, to join General Chamberlain, who has been abroad all Summer.

CLEVELAND GIVES FOCH ITS OVATION TODAY

Marshal Waives Entertainment to Let People Vote and Rests for Day in Herrick Home.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 8.—While six of the seven candidates for Mayor prophesied their election today, Marshal Foch slipped into Cleveland this morning for a complete day's rest before undertaking the strenuous program that has been laid out for him in this city tomorrow.

"It is much more important that the citizens of Cleveland go to the polls than that they should neglect their civic duties to entertain me," the Marshal said when he reached Gates Mill, the suburban home of Parmely Herrick, son of Ambassador Herrick, where the allied Generalissimo will remain until tomorrow.

"My heart is filled with gratitude because of the gallant part Cleveland's sons played in the war," he said in a short statement today. "And I am doubly pleased to be here because it is the home of my old friend Myron T. Herrick."

Tomorrow Marshal Foch will be taken over the hurdles of a reception program that lasts continuously from 9 A. M. until 11 P. M. A half holiday will be declared in the schools.

ARRANGE FOR FOCH VISIT.

Columbia and Princeton Announce Reception Programs.

Plans for the visit of Marshal Foch to Columbia University on Nov. 19, as announced yesterday by President Nicholas Murray Butler, include two outdoor ceremonies, similar to that for Cardinal Mercier, and the conferring of the degree of Doctor of Literature. A message from President Harding will be read.

Following the exercises at the university Marshal Foch will participate in laying of the cornerstone of the American Academy of Arts and Letters Building, in West 156th Street, between Broadway and Riverside Drive. On Saturday night Marshal Foch will be the guest at a dinner of the France-America Society.

After the dinner he will go to the Capitol Theatre to a demonstration in his honor arranged by the American Committee for Devastated France, of which Miss Anne Morgan is Chairman. The French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand will also attend the tribute to the Marshal.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch will be in Princeton from 10 to 12 o'clock next Tuesday, Nov. 15, according to plans announced by Secretary Collins of Princeton University. While here he will attend three meetings, two of which will be open to the public.

Governor Edwards and President Hibben of the university, with a cavalry escort, will welcome the Marshal, who will go first to the President's house, then to Nassau Hall, and then to Alexander Hall, where he will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Immediately after this ceremony he will return to Nassau Hall and deliver a short address and leave for Philadelphia at noon.

Miss Aspinwall Weds Lieut. Allan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Scoville Aspinwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Aspinwall, to Lieutenant Carlisle Vischer Allan, U. S. A., took place this evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents. Dr. Charles Wood of the Church of the Covenant officiated.

The bride was attended by Miss Virginia Sanders of South Bend Ind., as maid of honor. Lieutenant Paul Donnelly, U. S. A., was best man, and the ushers included Lieutenant Robert Gard, Lieutnant Warren Christian Lieutenant Hamilton Young, all of the U. S. A., and Porter Allan, brother of the bridegroom, and Scovill Aspinwall, brother of the bride.

Dessar-Herman Wedding Nov. 24.

The marriage of Miss Rosalind Herman, a daughter of Mrs. Charles Herman of Atlanta, Ga., and Harold A. Dessar of this city is to take place at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning, Nov. 24, at the home of the bride's-elect's mother. Only the immediate family will be present. Mr. Dessar attended Cornell and is now in the cotton goods business. After their wedding the couple will make their home in Atlanta.

Engagements.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thomson of 606 West 116th Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Thomson, to Sidney Jay Hamilton Jr. of this city and Philadelphia. Mr. Hamilton served in the navy during the war.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Blanche Loeb, a daughter of Mrs. Nellie Loeb Stroock of this city, to Robert Markwell of Chicago.

To Aid Ecole Maternelle Francaise.

A fair in aid of the Ecole Maternelle Française will be held Saturday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at the Evanston, West Ninetieth Street and West End Avenue. The Ecole feeds and teaches nearly 100 children a day, and also clothes them. It is under the official patronage of the French Government, represented here by Gaston Liebert, the French Consul General. The juniors of the Horace Mann School have chosen the Ecole for their class protégé, and its members will be active at the fair.

T. C. BENT WILL NOT FIGHT WIFE'S WILL

SECOND HUSBAND TO SHARE

Rest of Property Will Go to Seven Half-Sisters and One Half-Brother.

George H. Engelhard, of Engelhard, Pollak, Pitcher & Stern, 111 Broadway, counsel for Thomas C. Bent, said last night that there would be no contest over the will of Mr. Bent's wife, Mrs. Sarah Josephine Wyckoff Bent, who died a month ago at 1,773 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, leaving an estate valued at $3,000,000. The will, made in 1873, was offered for probate in the Surrogate's Court in the Bronx on Monday. By the terms of the document, Mrs. Bent left all her property, with the exception of a few minor bequests, to her first husband, Albert Wyckoff, who died in 1899.

In 1900 Mrs. Wyckoff married Mr. Bent, who was twenty-four years her junior. There was no codicil naming her later husband and so far no other will has been found.

Pending probate of the will Surrogate George M. S. Schulz appointed temporary administrators, naming Mr. Bent and the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, to conserve the estate.

Before taking this action the Surrogate caused to be sent out notices of the intended procedure to all persons who were thought to have an interest in the estate. No opposition appeared.

Mr. Engelhard said that Mr. Bent would share in the estate of his wife. There is some question whether there was an adopted daughter, it was said. If it is established that there was an adopted daughter, the husband will receive one-third of the estate, otherwise he will get one-half, it was said. The remainder will be shared by seven half-sisters and one half-brother.

Mrs. Bent was known in the neighborhood in which she lived as "the Hetty Green of the Bronx." The personal property of Mrs. Bent was valued at $1,023,624. On deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co. she had $86,000 and with the Irving National Bank $17,500. She had Liberty bonds amounting to $162,000 and jewelry worth $17,040. Real estate held by her included the properties at 210-220 Sixth Avenue, 199 Sixth Avenue, 112 West Fourteenth Street, 1,759-1,779 Washington Avenue and a home on City Island.

Stocks held by her included 800 shares Cuban Sugar, 2,200 American Sugar, 200 American Car, 1,100 Northern Pacific, 750 of one New York Central issue, 55,000 of another, 1,200 United States Steel, 2,200 Union Pacific, 2,060 Erie and 25,000 East River Bridge.

The only other bequests in the will, aside from a gift of some clothing to a friend, Mrs. Moses McKee, now dead, are $5,000 for a mausoleum for herself in Woodlawn Cemetery and the income from a fund of $2,000 for the upkeep of the vault.

SALARY NO BAR TO MINISTRY

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 8.—Taking a different view from that of many church leaders, the Rev. Dr. Daniel Russell of the Rutgers Presbyterian Church, New York, said today that in his opinion low salaries were not keeping men out of the ministry any more than out of the teaching profession. "A man who has a call to the ministry is more engrossed in the spiritual than in worldly considerations, and the question of salary is of less importance to him than is generally supposed," said Dr. Russell.

He arrived today for the meeting of the General Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church, which meets at the same time as the Executive Commission of the General Presbyterian Assembly. The great need of the present day, Dr. Russell said, was for home training and spiritual opportunity in the colleges and preparatory schools. Ways and means of bringing more men to the clergy will be discussed at tomorrow's meeting.

"It is the mothers of the country who have the greatest influence in furnishing godly men to the church," said Dr. Russell. "Home training, which starts a man on his way with knowledge and respect for religion, is of first importance."

Dr. Russell said that the Education Board believed that it is not too early to bring opportunities in the ministry before students while they are still in preparatory courses. Young men in preparatory schools, he said, will not be urged to join the ministry, but it is the desire of the Education Board that it be brought to their attention as a possible career.

ABANDONS EXAMINATIONS.

Wharton Finance School Drops Mid-Year and Final Tests.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Dean Johnson of the Wharton School of Finance announced today that the faculty of that department of the University of Pennsylvania had decided to abolish the usual mid-year and final examinations. Such a step, he said, marks a new era in modern educational methods.

In doing away with the usual examination period, said Dean Johnson, the faculty will save two weeks of each semester. He added that such time could be used more advantageously in continuing class discussions and lectures. By co-ordinating the work in each course day by day it is hoped to remove the necessity for any extensive review of the work at the end of the term.

Arrivals From Europe.

Some of the passengers arriving yesterday on the Scythia from Liverpool were A. H. Allen, A. O. Anderson, Mrs. D. Baird, Captain C. C. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Blossom, S. H. Burns, Miss C. F. Clark, F. G. Colley, Mrs. M. Davey, J. M. Davidson, E. J. Fawke, R. E. Ellis, F. Dyke, Mrs. Rowland Fraser, W. Garretson, D. H. Gibson, R. F. Glazebrook, J. Stanfield Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Nichols, F. P. Warfield, C. E. White, C. H. Griffiths, J. P. Grant, Mrs. J. L. Miller.

Frederik VIII., Copenhagen, had included in her first cabin list Mrs. Ellen Anderson, Bishop Anton Bast, Max Hartwig, Consul J. L. Kallevig, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wentworth Field, Miss E. Russell, Peter Michelsen, Frederick Mertens, Mrs. Sophie C. Schultz, E. H. Bull, Mr. and Mrs. C. Christensen.

Held as Date Suspect.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—The police here have under detention a man giving the name of Puig Serras but who is believed to be a Spaniard named Ortiz, who has been sought in connection with the assassination in Spain last March of Premier Dato.

The man under arrest here is alleged to have had relations with Luis Nicolau, who recently was arrested in Berlin in connection with the assassination of Dato.

MUSIC

Alfredo Casella's Piano Recital.

Mr. Alfredo Casella, who has come to this country as a representative of the most "advanced" school of young Italian composers, presented himself last evening in the Town Hall as a pianist. He had already been heard in this capacity with the Philadelphia Orchestra; last evening he set forth a recital program.

Mr. Casella is a pianist of excellent parts, of musical discernment and wide sympathy. He has paid enough attention to Beethoven's piano sonatas to issue a closely annotated edition of his own; and his attitude toward the one he played, Op. 31, No. 2, in D minor, was sincere, intelligent and sympathetic: the attitude of one desiring to produce the composer's effect without additions of his own. Mr. Casella's technique is ample without being remarkable for brilliancy of power, it is something more than the technique of a composer. He was not wholly successful in producing a fine quality of tone, especially in the more massive passages, but there could but be a certain sympathy with him in this matter.

Mr. Casella played in a quite charming manner four pieces by Domenico Scarlatti, three of which were quite unfamiliar, not belonging to the very small group known to most pianists, out of the several hundred extant by this composer. The first makes an interesting use of an effect of trumpet calls; there is a gay humor in the second that is quite alluring.

His modern groups included five of Debussy's "Preludes," which he gave with an appreciation of their poetical significance, but without all the values of tonal coloring on which the composer calculated; pieces by Albeniz and by his compatriot, Malipiero. His own contribution consisted of a series of "Eleven Children's Pieces," played for the first time in America; ingenious and bizarre, but by no means terrifying; though the children reached by them, if any, would be precociously knowing. He closed with César Franck's "Prelude, Choral and Fugue."

Emil Telmanyi's Violin Recital.

Emil Telmanyi, who made his first appearance as a violinist here a few days ago, appeared again yesterday afternoon in a recital in Aeolian Hall. He showed once more the warm, rich, full tone, the positive and expert technical power, the eager and fiery style, the impetuousity, that were noted at his first appearance, and that make him one of the interesting newcomers of the season in a field where newcomers are many.

Mr. Telmanyi went outside the usual lines in compiling his program. Thus, few violinists ever think now of playing Schubert's "Rondo Brillant" in B minor, op. 70, for violin and piano, though it was once a favorite. There are beauties in it, and traits characteristic of Schubert in its tunefulness and harmonic richness; also, unfortunately, the equally characteristic traits of great length and redundancy. Mr. Telmanyi played with much energy, as he did Bach's sonata in G minor for violin solo, but more breadth of style and repose would better have befitted this work.

Another new composition was a sonata by Carl Nielson, a Danish composer whose works have not penetrated heretofore to this side of the Atlantic. The music, which Mr. Telmanyi played zealously, seemed laborious and unquiet, seeking for a new expression and not finding it, with perhaps the greatest success in the last movement. Another Scandinavian composer, Wilhelm Stenhammar, was represented by a "Romanze Sentimentale," also marked for the "first time in America." Beethoven's Romance in G and Saint-Saëns's "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" completed the program.

"MILLIONAIRE HOBO" SAW EXILED REDS

How Says Haywood Wants Bondsmen Repaid — Goldman and Berkman Are Homesick.

One of the second-cabin passengers who arrived yesterday from Liverpool on the Cunarder Scythia was J. Eads How, known to the men who hate work as the "Millionaire Hobo." He wore a low-priced business suit, soft shirt with collar attached and string tie, a heavy, coarse gray overcoat, and a wide-brimmed black felt hat. His black beard, turning gray, and a large pair of silver-rimmed spectacles gave him a benevolent appearance. His fellow-passengers spoke of his kindness to them on the voyage.

Mr. How said he arranged a hobo hike with 120 others from London to Brighton, last June, to attend the labor convention, which took them two and a half days. The authorities sent seven policemen with the hikers to protect the farmers along the road, but the men took nothing and behaved well, he said.

"After the convention," he continued, "I went to Russia and got in through Riga, and was able to walk about Moscow as I pleased. I met all the celebrities both in and out of jail. Big Bill Haywood told me he was most interested in seeing that the money was raised to pay those who went on his bond, forfeited when he left the United States. Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman both said they wanted to come back here. Berkman was doing something in the printing trade. Every one had to work in Russia."

How added that a movement was on foot in Moscow for a group of Russians to go to Eastern Siberia to develop that country, and he understood that Haywood wished to join the party. Not one factory in five was working when he was in Moscow and the conditions in the famine area along the Volga were terrible, he said. He intends to go to Washington to try to induce the Government to deal more with Russia, which in turn would help American industries. England had sent in a commercial mission when he was there, he said.

Another passenger in the second cabin was Mrs. Rafko Vrama, of Warsaw, Poland, who was said to be 100 years old. She appeared to be quite merry and bright. Four generations of her family headed by the daughter, 70 years old, accompanied her, but they were in the steerage.

Frank H. Screaton, a business man who has been touring Central Europe, said that Austria would be able to weather the storm if she got a little help. Raw materials were needed badly, he added, and the people were waiting for work and willing to do their best.

The Scythia had eighty-seven first, 387 second and 1,017 steerage passengers.

Denies She Represents a Queen.

When Miss Henriette Sava-Golu arrived on the steamship Aquitania a week ago some one with an imagination heralded her as the "herald of a queen," the ruler being Queen Marie of Rumania. At the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday Miss Sava-Golu denied that she was here in the interests of Queen Marie, declaring that she visited the United States only "for travel and observation of American customs and institutions." Miss Sava-Golu said her only association with the Rumanian ruler had been in the capacity of translator of several of the Queen's books.

Report Harding Invites Custer Scout

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—Peter Thompson, a rancher living near Albion, Mont., said to be the only survivor of General Custer's command, has been invited by President Harding to attend the Armistice Day ceremonies in Washington, it was reported today. Thompson, in the pioneer days of the West, was a noted scout and Indian fighter. When Custer's command was annihilated in 1876 he was several miles away on scout duty.

ULSTER AGREEMENT DOUBTED IN LONDON

Sir James Craig conferred today with Unionist leaders and others. He issued a communiqué in the course of the evening in which he said that although he knew the line he had adopted would meet with the unanimous approval of the Loyalists of Ulster, the situation was so grave that he felt the responsibility should be shared by the whole Cabinet.

Michael Collins and Gavan Duffy returned to London from Dublin today.

Sir L. Worthington Evans, Secretary for War, referring to the Irish question in a speech tonight, said that the problem was difficult and that at times it seemed almost impossible, but that the Government was doing its best.

Expect No Action Before Monday.

LONDON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—The belief was expressed in high quarters here tonight that it might be Monday before any important developments occurred in the Irish situation. All parties to the negotiations were busy today in informal discussion, but there will be no specific move before Thursday's meeting between the Premier and the members of the Ulster Cabinet in London. There is a hope that Parliament may be prorogued Thursday, and as Friday is Armistice Day further official conversations concerning Ireland are likely to be adjourned until Monday.

In addition to having informal talks today with Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Secretary Curzon, Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, was busy consulting with influential Parliamentary leaders, seeking their support for the Ulster viewpoint in the Irish controversy.

Mr. Lloyd George presided over a Cabinet Council tonight at which it is understood the terms of the King's speech proroguing Parliament were discussed. The speech is expected to deal mainly with Irish affairs.

Unofficial reports were current today that the event that Thursday's conference between the Premier and the Ulsterites shows the impossibility of an agreement being reached with Ulster the Premier will make "a grave and important announcement" to the House of Commons. This is commonly interpreted as a threat the Premier will resign if Ulster persists in an unreasonable attitude.

The press of Ireland, however, seems almost equally divided in optimistic and pessimistic views.

In official quarters there is no sign of an improvement in the situation and the Ulster Cabinet is expected to give unanimously its reasons for refusing to assent to the concessions.

There will be no resumption of the conference with the Sinn Fein delegates until the difficulty with Ulster has been overcome.

The week-end will be occupied with private conversations, and some easing in the situation is expected from the Marquis of Londonderry, Minister of Education in North Ireland, who is considered to be more in touch with powerful British opinion than any of his colleagues.

An important meeting for consideration of phases of the Irish question was also held in Downing Street this morning, the participants being the majority of the Government's negotiators, including Prime Minister Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and Sir Gordon Hewart. It is believed the meeting mainly concerned itself with the legal steps necessary to fulfill the Government's pledge to Ulster that the Ulster Parliament would be enabled to function properly and be provided with funds.

Action along these lines, it is pointed out, does not seriously affect the general negotiations for an Irish settlement, for under the Government's plan Ulster would be left a local Parliament with more power than the present Parliament has.

Sinn Feiners Mark Time.

Desmond Fitzgerald of the Sinn Fein delegation said this morning, on behalf of himself and his colleagues, that they were taking no part in the talks now in progress between Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, and Mr. Lloyd George, and were merely waiting until the British Prime Minister could put to them a practical proposition recognizing the unity of Ireland.

BELFAST, Nov. 8.—Commenting on the summoning to London of the Ulster Cabinet and Sir James Craig's interviews with Premier Lloyd George, The Northern Whig presents the following typical Belfast view of the present Irish peace situation:

"Dragging Ulster into the picture is not an impulsive act; it is the essence of a careful, cunning plot which Mr. Lloyd George hopes to make successful through the treachery of men calling themselves Unionists. But the plot has not succeeded. We are confident that, through the courage and determination of Ulster, it will not only fail, but its authors will be driven from place and power."

HEAD OF BANK OF JAPAN DEPRECATES MIGRATION

Governor Inouye Says It Is Hopeless to Think of Moving Nippon's Increasing Population.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—The Japanese nation is really unfit for emigrating abroad, declared Governor J. Inouye of the Bank of Japan in discussing the question, "What does Japan want economically?" as related to the Washington armament conference. Governor Inouye's views, given to The Associated Press correspondent in Tokio prior to departure of the Japanese armament delegation to the United States, are considered important as it is his voice that will be heard in Tokio as the wise men of Nippon cable from time to time instructions to their plenipotentiaries on matters financial and economic.

"As historically proved," said Governor Inouye, who is regarded as Japan's greatest authority on finance and economy, "it is almost hopeless to think of removing our increasing population to other countries.

"Our population is increasing by over 600,000 yearly, but foodstuffs cannot be increased in quantities sufficient to meet such a rapidly augmenting population."

"Such being the case, there is no other way for Japan to solve such a vital problem concerning the economic existence of the nation than to find resources in economic activity abroad. It will be quite natural that Japan choose Manchuria, Mongolia and China, with which she has the most intimate relations historically and also geographically. From this economic activity, however, Japan should not be misunderstood as insisting on territorial exclusion.

"Japan's economic activity should be directed not only to acquire an outlet for the products of home industries, though that may suffice other countries, but she must further settle the vital question of the economic existence of the nation. Consequently, there may be difference of degree between the economic activity of Japanese and that of the other nations in Manchuria, Mongolia and China; the situation will easily be understood by all the powers. It is quite unreasonable, if any one, by reason of such difference of degree, should declare that Japan is intending to exclude the other nations."

Oklahoma Bandit Sentenced to Death

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Nov. 8.—Circuit Judge Sorralls today overruled a motion for a new trial for Tom Slaughter, an Oklahoma bandit, who was charged with the murder of a prison guard in an attempt to escape from the Tucker State Farm Sept. 18, and sentenced him to die in the electric chair on Friday, Dec. 16.

EULOGIZE DR. BLACKWELL.

Services for Oldest Woman Minister in All Souls' Church, Elizabeth.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 8.—The life and works of the Rev. Dr. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, oldest woman minister in the United States, who died Saturday last at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. T. Jones, 331 Elmora Avenue, were eulogized this afternoon in All Souls' Unitarian Church, of which she was pastor emeritus, when funeral services were conducted for her. The church was crowded.

Mrs. Blackwell was the last of the pioneer advocates of woman suffrage, prohibition and slavery abolition.

The Rev. E. G. Wiers of Montclair conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. A. H. Cosar, minister of All Souls' Church, and the Rev. Walter Reed Hunt of Orange.

Mr. Weirs declared that Mrs. Blackwell opened the doors of opportunity for all, and especially to her sex. She gave the full efforts of her life toward the advancement of women, he said, and her ideals were an innovation which redounded to the mutual benefit of all. Dr. Blackwell still lived, he said, in the books she wrote, because of the inspiration conveyed by her writings.

Mr. Cosar said that as pastor of the church he frequently looked to her for counsel and her mentality to him was a vast store of inspiration in his work.

The body was then borne to Rosehill Crematory, Linden, where there was incineration. The ashes were taken to Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

Dr. Loomis Le Grand Danforth.

Dr. Loomis Le Grand Danforth, since 1886 Professor of Obstetrics in the New York Homeopathic College, died yesterday morning at his residence, 49 West Fifty-second Street, after an illness of five weeks. He was born in Monticello, N. Y., in 1849, and was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1874. He was at the head of the Maternity Department of Flower Hospital. He had been a church singer for many years at St. Thomas's, the Broadway Tabernacle and the Brick Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member. Services will be held at his home at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Thirty-Fourth Anniversary of the Founding of Brill Brothers

AS I look back thirty-four years ago to that twelfth day of November, when we four brothers opened our little shop at 45 Cortlandt Street, my thoughts dwell, with particular pleasure, on the fact that the principles of fair dealing and the desire to serve, which prompted our every action then, has prevailed not only to this day, but has been immeasurably intensified as the business has grown from its first sixty-eight dollar day to its present vast volume.

To the question which has frequently been asked "Are the Brill Brothers still in the business?" I say "Yes, they are!" The same four men who started at Cortlandt Street thirty-four years ago, are the active heads of the business today.

Each one is desirous of expressing, through me, to our countless customers, a keen sense of gratitude for the support which made possible our progress.

Day's Record Shows Apartments Ransacked and Stores Robbed.

More than $40,000 worth of jewelry in a sample case disappeared with a black taxicab in front of a drug store at Broadway and 103d Street at 7 o'clock last night. Five hours later eight detectives from the West 100th Street Station had nothing more to show for their intensive search for the missing taxi and gems than the facts as stated.

Early yesterday afternoon David Jacoby, for sixteen years a jewelry salesman well known in the city trade, started out from the office of Philip Reiter, manufacturing jeweler at 15 West Forty-fourth Street, with the gems. Jacoby, who went to work for Reiter on Monday, had often carried as much and sometimes more in jewelry than he carried in the black sample case, fashioned like a small club traveling bag.

He walked to Fifth Avenue and hailed a taxi from the throng chugging up the thoroughfare. He paid no particular attention to the driver, he later told the detectives, nor did he remember more about the cab itself than the fact that it was "all black and apparently an independently owned machine."

Stopped to Telephone.

Jacoby visited several dealers in the midtown trade and then directed the driver to 2,601 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, his home. The salesman told the police that he went into the house, carrying the bags with him, came out ten minutes later and told the driver to go down to an address in Maiden Lane. On the way down Broadway, the salesman said, he recalled that he had an important telephone call to make. He hailed the taxicab at 103d Street and ran into the drug store to make the call. In his haste, as he explained to the detectives, he left the bag on the seat of the taxicab.

Not more than five minutes, he said, were taken up in the telephone booth, but when he came out the taxicab was gone. Jacoby ran to the corner of 104th Street and looked east and west and repeated this at 103d Street. He said he saw no trace of the machine in either of the streets, nor did he recognize it when he ran to a stoop and tried to single the car from the traffic going up and down Broadway. Then he hurried back to the telephone booth and communicated with Mr. Reiter, who advised him to report the loss at once to the West 100th Street Station, the manufacturer hurrying there himself. The entire detective staff of the station was hustled out to search for a black taxicab corresponding to Jacoby's description.

Used Light Connection.

A $15,000 burglary in Canal Street and several daring hold-ups were conspicuous among the crimes reported to the police yesterday. It was the belief of the detectives investigating the robbery of $15,000 worth of jewelry from the safe of Grodnitz & Co., on the fifth floor of 336 Canal Street, that the intruders opened the door on the ground floor of the building with a skeleton key, after which they broke down the door leading to the jewelry firm. A hole was drilled beneath the combination of the safe with the aid of electricity obtained from a hanging connection, and the tumblers were manipulated until the door was unlocked.

Through the arrest of Joseph Scales, 42 years old, a negro, of 111 West 137th Street, Detective Sergeants Alles and Doyle yesterday declared they had solved a series of mail box robberies in apartment houses in the Harlem and Washington Heights sections. Scales was arrested at his home before dawn, when the detectives recovered about 500 letters addressed to residents of the upper part of the city. When he was taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station, said the detectives, the negro admitted stealing the letters from apartment house mail boxes. An additional charge of the theft of a trunk containing $1,800 in money and jewelry was lodged against him by Mrs. Carrol Brockington, a negress, of 170 West 141st Street. Mrs. Brockington said that the trunk was shipped to her from the home of her mother in the South, and detectives said they learned that Scales called for the trunk at the Pennsylvania Station and had it shipped to his home.

Beat Chauffeur in Hallway.

Detectives During and Donovan of the East 104th Street Station arraigned James Bello, 25 years old, of 334 East 112th Street in the Harlem Court on a charge of participating in the robbery of clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500 from the apartment of Anthony Pasquaretti at 245 East 112th Street on Sunday last. Magistrate Bernard J. Douras held him in $3,000 bail for examination tomorrow. The detectives declared they found some of the loot in Bello's home.

Henry Lubitz, chauffeur, of 429 East 147th Street, the Bronx, charged Joseph O'Toole of 78 Division Avenue and Thomas O'Brien of 271 Bainbridge Street of attempting to rob him in the hallway of 231 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn. He said the men hired him in Manhattan to drive them to the South Ninth Street address, and when he demanded his fare, they invited him into the hall, where they set on him. His cries aroused tenants in the house, one of whom fired several shots. Policeman Salvinski of the Clymer Street Station caught O'Toole and O'Brien running from the house.

Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court held James Prunty, 27 years old, of 548 West Forty-eighth Street, in $3,000 bail for examination tomorrow on suspicion of participating in the hold-up of John Gross, a taxicab chauffeur, of 206 East Forty-fourth Street. Gross said that he was hailed by a man when he was passing Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street, who directed him to drive him to an address in West Sixty-first Street, between Broadway and Columbus Avenue. When he drew up to the address, he added, another taxicab came beside him, and the chauffeur held up Gross and the passenger with a pistol. After the robber had taken money and jewelry to the amount of several hundred dollars, Gross said, the bandit then drove away with the passenger, who Gross declared was a decoy.

Walked Out With Overcoat.

William B. Smith, proprietor of an employment agency at 213 Sullivan Street; James B. King of 160 Bleecker Street, and Dominick Barone of 108 Barnett Street, the Bronx, were held in $2,000 bail each for the Grand Jury when arraigned before a Magistrate in the Essex Market Court on the complaint of Harry A. Clintsman, a seaman. Clintsman told the Magistrate that Barone and King decoyed him to Sullivan's establishment, where he was beaten and robbed of $31.

"I am absent-minded, Judge," declared Simeon Faerstein, 35 years old, who said he lived at 655 East 176th Street, when arraigned before Magistrate Nolan on a charge of purloining an overcoat in Wanamaker's. John Murray, a store detective, told the Magistrate that Faerstein entered the store yesterday, put on an overcoat valued at $50, and, after carefully surveying himself in a mirror, walked out to the street, where the detective arrested him. He was held in $500 bail for Special Sessions.

Max Schweit, 24 years old, a chauffeur, of 315 East 102d Street, was arrested by Detectives Meyer and Hegney of the Simpson Street station on suspicion of being the driver of a car used by five bandits who early in the morning held up twenty-five patrons in a restaurant at 986 Westchester Avenue. Later detectives arrested Anthony Cancelano, 27 years old, of 220 East Eightieth Street in connection with the hold-up. He was at work in a shoe repair shop at Second Avenue and Eighty-second Street, and denied any knowledge of the robbery. He will be arraigned in the Morrisania Court this morning.

Says He Was Champion Runner.

Charles Aimes, 33 years old, of 152 West 126th Street, and who said he formerly was a champion amateur runner, was held in $5,000 bail for the action of the Grand Jury when arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court on suspicion of having attempted to rob the apartment of Raymond Patterson at 273 West End Avenue on Monday night. He pleaded not guilty.

Taking advantage of the drafting of policemen at dawn for duty at the polls, an unidentified man threw a cobblestone through the window of the Rockwell Clothing Company's store at 1,125 Broadway and stole two overcoats priced at $134. The management of the store put a sign in the window requesting the thief to return and receive a suit of clothing to match the coats.

Charles Everett Ackron, 61 years old, of 109 Bank Street, who, the police alleged, formerly kept a resort in the old Tenderloin district, and Thomas McGuinness, 50 years old, of 761 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, were discharged by Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court when arraigned on suspicion of participating in the robbery of the delicatessen store at 839 Seventh Avenue on Oct. 16 last. The Magistrate ordered detectives who arrested the men to arraign Ackron before a parole officer on a charge of violating his parole in connection with his sentence for another offense.

HOLD-UP MEN ROUTED.

Three Put to Flight by Intended Victims and Youth Arrested.

Thomas Stillman, 19, of 246 West Forty-sixth Street, was arrested last night, following an unsuccessful attempt by three men to hold up a saloon at Seventh Avenue and 145th Street. Stillman and two companions, according to the police, entered the saloon with drawn pistols and attempted to line the thirty patrons up before the bar. Instead of heeding their orders to "put up their hands," they made a dash for the hold-up men, who fled to the street.

At 146th Street and Seventh Avenue Stillman ran into the arms of Policeman Louis Fitzgerald. The other two men escaped. With Policeman William Millar, Fitzgerald commandeered an automobile and started for the police station with Stillman. At 138th Street Millar, who was standing on the running board, fell into the street and fractured his right arm. The patrolman, who was later taken to his home in a taxicab, said that Stillman had pushed him from the car.

Soon after Stillman had been taken to the police station Hop Lee, a Chinese laundryman of 313 West Forty-fifth Street, appeared and identified Stillman as one of three men that entered his shop last Wednesday and at the point of pistols robbed him of $50.

SESSIONS JUDGE'S SON IS HELD FOR FORGERY

Merritt Wyatt Is Accused by McCreery's Manager of Getting $1,000 on Bogus Orders.

Merritt Wyatt, 34 years old, who said he was a son of the late Justice William Wyatt of Special Sessions, was locked up in Police Headquarters yesterday on a charge of forgery made by William Gulliver, a manager employed by McCreery's department store at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

Mr. Gulliver alleged that the prisoner forged orders amounting to about $1,000 on the department store for jewelry and clothing in the name of his first cousin, Donald Newhall of 60 West Forty-eighth Street, and Mr. Newhall's mother, who was a sister of the late jurist. The forgeries were alleged to have occurred between Oct. 13 and 25.

Wyatt denied the charge, but Detective Sergeant Marron, who arrested him, said that some of the property alleged to have been obtained on the forged orders was found in his possession as well as pawn tickets calling for other articles said to have been obtained from the department store where Mr. Newhall and his mother had charge accounts.

Detective Marron also said that Wyatt's picture was in the Rogues' Gallery, numbered B32,216, taken on Aug. 20, 1918, when Wyatt was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory. The detective asserted that Wyatt's police record showed that he was deported from London recently, and that he had been arrested three times in this city, once for violating his parole from the reformatory in connection with the 1913 conviction.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF NEW RENT FRAUD

Husband Held for Extortion After Prospective Tenants Complained of Deposits Withheld.

When Mrs. Thelma Osborne of 557 West 124th Street was arraigned yesterday in Washington Heights Court a new scheme for "raising" money and a new defense was disclosed. According to the complaint, Mrs. Osborne, 32 years old and comely, was charged with appropriating deposit payments on her apartment, which she advertised but never intended to rent.

The detectives who appeared against her told Magistrate George W. Simpson that Mrs. Osborne had obtained several hundred dollars by operating her scheme in these times of apartment shortages. They declared that she advertised liberally and obtained many would-be tenants, for the rents she asked were very moderate.

The defense which Mrs. Osborne offered was that she had been compelled to pocket the deposit money because her husband, William Osborne, had threatened her life unless she "supported him with another woman."

"Yes," admitted Osborne to the Magistrate, "I threatened her. I got into bad company, my business was bad, and I became another man. My wife is a good woman."

The wife was then paroled while Osborne was held in $3,500 bail on a charge of extortion.

Business of Ordering Naval Action Over the Telephone After Midnight—Wilson, Bryan, Daniels and Tumulty on the Wires—White House's Watch on German Intrigues in Mexico

WOODROW WILSON AS I KNOW HIM

By JOSEPH P. TUMULTY

(Eleventh Instalment)

CHAPTER XIX.

ABOUT 2:30 o'clock in the morning of the twenty-first day of April, 1914, the telephone operator at the White House called me at my home, and rousing me from bed informed me that the Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan, desired to speak to me at once upon a very urgent and serious matter. I went to the telephone and was informed by Mr. Bryan that he had just received a wireless from Admiral Mayo, informing him that the German steamship Ypirango, carrying munitions, would arrive at Vera Cruz that morning about 10 o'clock, and that he thought the President ought to be notified and that, in his opinion, drastic measures should at once be taken to prevent the delivery of these munitions to the Custom House at Vera Cruz. While Mr. Bryan and I were talking, Mr. Daniels, the Secretary of the Navy, got on the wire and confirmed all that Mr. Bryan had just told me. Soon the President was on the phone and, in a voice indicating that he had just been aroused from sleep, carried on a conversation with Messrs. Bryan, Daniels and myself: Mr. Bryan reported to him the situation at Vera Cruz and informed him of the receipt of Admiral Mayo's dispatch, in these words: "Mr. President, I am sorry to inform you that I have just received a dispatch from Admiral Mayo that a German ship will arrive at Vera Cruz this morning at 10 o'clock, containing large supplies of munitions and arms for the Mexicans, and I want your judgment as to how we shall handle the situation." Replying to Mr. Bryan, the President said: "Of course, Mr. Bryan, you understand what drastic action in this matter might ultimately mean in our relations with Mexico?" Mr. Bryan said, by way of reply: "I thoroughly appreciate this, Mr. President, and fully considered it before telephoning you." For a second there was a slight pause, and then the President asked Mr. Daniels his opinion in regard to the matter. Mr. Daniels frankly agreed with Mr. Bryan that immediate action should be taken to prevent the German ship from landing its cargo. Without a moment's delay the President said to Mr. Daniels: "Daniels, send this message to Admiral Mayo: 'Take Vera Cruz at once.'"

As I sat at the phone on this fateful morning, away from the hurly-burly world outside, clad only in my pajamas, and listened to this discussion, the tenseness of the whole situation and its grave possibilities of war with all its tragedy gripped me. Here were three men quietly gathered about a phone, pacifists at heart, men who had been criticised and lampooned throughout the whole country as being too proud to fight, now without hesitation of any kind agreeing on a course of action that might result in bringing two nations to war. They were pacifists no longer, but plain, simple men, bent upon discharging the duty they owed their country and utterly disregarding their own personal feelings of antagonism to every phase of war.

After Mr. Bryan and Mr. Daniels had left the telephone, the President said: "Tumulty, are you there? What did you think of my message?" I replied that there was nothing else to do under the circumstances. He then said: "It is too bad, isn't it? But we could not allow that cargo to land. The Mexicans intend using those guns upon our own boys. It is hard to take action of this kind. I have tried to keep out of this Mexican mess, but we are now on the brink of war and there is no alternative."

Discussing this vital matter that morning with the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, I could visualize the possible tragedy of the whole affair. I pictured the flagship of Admiral Mayo, with its fine cargo of sturdy young marines, riding serenely at anchor off Vera Cruz, and those aboard the vessel utterly unmindful of the message that was now on its way through the air, an ominous message which to some of them would be a portent of death. When the President concluded his conversation with me his voice was husky. It indicated to me that he felt the solemnity of the whole delicate business he was now handling, while the people of America, whose spokesman he was, were at this hour quietly sleeping in their beds, unaware and unmindful of the grave import of this message which was already on its way to Vera Cruz.

When I arrived at the White House the next morning I found the newspaper correspondents attached to the Executive offices uninformed of what had happened in the early morning, but when I notified them that the President had ordered Admiral Mayo at 2:30 o'clock in the morning to take Vera Cruz they jumped, as one man, to the door, to flash this significant news to the country and the world.

Enter Carranza.

With Huerta's abdication, Venustiano Carranza took hold, but the Mexican troubles were not at an end. The constant raiding expeditions of Villa across the American border were a source of great irritation and threatened every few days a conflagration. While Villa stood with Carranza as a companion in arms to depose Huerta, the "entente cordiale" was at an end as soon as Huerta passed off the stage. With these expeditions of Villa and his motley crew across the border, our relations with our neighbor to the south were again seriously threatened. With Villa carrying on his raids and Carranza always misunderstanding the purpose and attitude of our Government and spurning its offer of helpful co-operation, difficulties of various sorts arose with each day, until popular opinion became insistent in its demand for vigorous action on the part of the American President. Every ounce of reserve patience of the President was called into action to keep the situation steady. How to do it, with many incidents happening each day to intensify and aggravate an already acute situation, was the problem that met the President at every turn. At this time the President was the loneliest figure in Washington.

"Grotesque uncertain shapes infest the dark
Discordant voices cry and serpents hiss,
No friendly star, no beacon's beckoning ray."

Even the members of his own party in the Senate and House were left without an apology or excuse for the seeming indifference of the President to affairs in Mexico. Day after day from outraged Senators would come vigorous demands for firm action on the part of America, insistent that something radical be done to establish conditions of peace along our Southern borders. From many of them came the unqualified demand for intervention, so that the Mexican question should be once and for all settled.

Avoiding Intervention.

In the Cabinet, the Secretary of War, the vigorous spokesman of the Cabinet group, demanding radical action in the way of intervention, was insisting that we intervene and put an end to the pusillanimous rule of Carranza and "clean up" Mexico. Even I, who had stood with the President during the critical days of the Mexican imbroglio, for a while grew fainthearted in my devotion to the policy of watchful waiting. To me, the attack of Villa on Columbus, and the killing of some of our soldiers while asleep, was the last straw. The continuance of this impossible situation along the border was unthinkable. To force the President's hand, if possible, I expressed my feelings in the following letters to him:

The White House, Washington,

My Dear Governor:

I have been thinking over what we discussed this morning with reference to the Mexican situation.

I am not acting on impulse and without a full realization, I hope, of everything that is involved. I am convinced that we should pursue to the end the declared purpose announced by you last Friday and endorsed by Congress and the people of the United States of "getting Villa." If the de facto Government is going to resist the entrance of our troops, a new situation will be presented. I feel that you ought to advise Congress at the earliest possible moment of what the situation really is in order to secure its support and co-operation in whatever action is needed to accomplish the purpose you have in mind. To retrace our steps now would be not only disastrous to our party and humiliating to the country, but would be destructive of our influence in international affairs and make it forever impossible to deal in any effective way with Mexican affairs.

Your appeal to Congress ought to deal with this matter in an affirmative way, asking for the requisite power which you may feel assured will be granted you in ungrudging fashion.

My apology for writing you is my distress of mind and my deep interest in everything that affects you and your future and, I hope, the country's welfare. I would not be your friend if I did not tell you frankly how I feel. Faithfully, TUMULTY.

The President,
The White House.

The White House, Washington,
June 24, 1916.

Dear Governor:

The Mexican authorities admit that they have taken American soldiers and incarcerated them. The people feel that a demand should be made for their immediate release, and that it should not take the form of an elaborate note. Only firmness and an unflinching insistence upon our part will bring the gentlemen in Mexico City to their senses.

If I were President at this moment, or acting as Secretary of State, my message to Carranza would be the following:

"Release those American soldiers or take the consequences."

This would ring around the world.

Faithfully, TUMULTY.

The President,
The White House.

After reading these letters, the President sent for me one day to visit with him in his study, and to discuss "the present situation in Mexico." As I sat down, he turned to me in the most serious way and said: "Tumulty, you are Irish, and, therefore, full of fight. I know how deeply you feel about this Columbus affair. Of course, it is tragical and deeply regrettable from every standpoint, but in the last analysis I, and not the Cabinet or you, must bear the responsibility for every action that is to be taken. I have to sleep with my conscience in these matters and I shall be held responsible for every drop of blood that may be spent in the enterprise of intervention. I am seriously considering every phase of this difficult matter and I can say frankly to you, and you may inform the Cabinet officers who discuss it with you, that 'there won't be no war with Mexico if I can prevent it,' no matter how loud the gentlemen on the hill yell for it and demand it. It is not a difficult thing for a President to declare war, especially against a weak and defenseless nation like Mexico. In a republic like ours, the man on horseback is always an idol, and were I considering the matter from the standpoint of my own political fortunes, and its influence upon the results of the next election, I should at once grasp this opportunity and invade Mexico, for it would mean the triumph of my Administration. But this has never been in my thoughts for a single moment. The thing that daunts me and holds me back is the aftermath of war, with all its tears and tragedies. I came from the South and I know what war is, for I have seen its wreckage and terrible ruin. It is easy for me as President to declare war. I do not have to fight, and neither do the gentlemen on the hill who now clamor for it. It is some poor farmer's boy, or the son of some poor widow away off in some modest community, or perhaps the scion of a great family, who will have to do the fighting and the dying. I will not resort to war against Mexico until I have exhausted every means to keep out of this mess. I know they will call me a coward and a quitter, but that will not disturb me. Time, the great solvent, will, I am sure, vindicate this policy of humanity and forbearance. Men forget what is back of this struggle in Mexico. It is the age-long struggle of the people to come into their own, and while we look upon the incidents in the foreground, let us not forget the tragic reality in the background which towers above this whole sad picture. The gentlemen who criticise me speak as if America were afraid to fight Mexico. Poor Mexico, with its pitiful men, women and children, fighting to gain a foothold in their own land! They speak of the valor of America. What is true valor? I would be just as much ashamed to be rash as I would to be a coward. Valor is self-respecting. Valor is circumspect. Valor strikes only when it is right to strike. Valor withholds itself from all small implications and entanglements and waits for the great opportunity when the sword will flash as if it carried the light of Heaven upon its blade."

Justifying His Attitude.

As the President spoke his eyes flashed and his lips quivered with the deep emotion he felt. It was the first time he had unburdened himself and laid bare his real feelings toward Mexico. Rising from his chair, he walked toward the window of his study, the very window out of which Lincoln had looked upon the Potomac and the hills of Virginia during the critical days of the Civil War when he was receiving bad news about the defeat of the Northern army. Continuing his talk, he said: "Tumulty, some day the people of America will know why I hesitated to intervene in Mexico. I cannot tell them now, for we are at peace with the great power whose poisonous propaganda is responsible for the present terrible condition of affairs in Mexico. German propagandists are there now, fomenting strife and trouble between our countries. Germany is anxious to have us at war with Mexico, so that our minds and our energies will be taken off the great war across the sea. She wishes an uninterrupted opportunity to carry on her submarine warfare and believes that war with Mexico will keep our hands off her and thus give her liberty of action to do as she pleases on the high seas. It begins to look as if war with Germany is inevitable. If it should come—I pray God it may not—I do not wish America's energies and forces divided, for we will need every ounce of reserve we have to lick Germany. Tumulty, we must try patience a little longer and await the development of the whole plot in Mexico!"

Did not the publication of the famous Zimmerman note show that German intrigue was busy in Mexico?

Berlin, Jan. 19, 1917.

On the first of February we intend to begin submarine warfare unrestricted. In spite of this it is our intention to keep neutral with the United States of America. If this attempt is not successful, we propose an alliance with Mexico on the following basis: That we shall make war together and together make peace. We shall give general financial support and it is understood that Mexico is to reconquer the lost territory in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona. The details are left to you for settlement.

You are instructed to inform the President of Mexico of the above in the greatest confidence as soon as it is certain that there will be an outbreak of war with the United States, and suggest that the President of Mexico, on his own initiative, should communicate with Japan, suggesting adherence at once to this plan; at the same time offer to mediate between Germany and Japan.

Please call to the attention of the President of Mexico that the employment of ruthless submarine warfare now promises to compel England to make peace in a few months.

ZIMMERMAN.

Mexico City.

Blows Thick and Fast.

"They [meaning Germany] sought by violence to destroy our industries and arrest our commerce. They tried to incite Mexico to take up arms against us and to draw Japan into a hostile alliance with her; and that not by indirection, but by direct suggestion from the Foreign Office at Berlin.

As the storm of ridicule and criticism of his policy of watchful waiting beat fiercely upon him, I often wondered if he felt the petty meanness which underlay it or was disturbed or dispirited by it. As the unkind blows fell upon him, thick and fast from every quarter, he gave no evidence to those who were close to him of any irritation or of the deep anger he must have felt at what appeared to be a lack of sympathy on the part of the country toward the idealistic policy in the treatment of Mexican affairs. Never for a single moment was he driven from the course he had mapped out for himself. He had given his heart and soul to a great humane task, and he moved toward its consummation amid a hurricane of protests and criticisms.

There was a time, however, when I thought he betrayed chagrin and disappointment at the obstacles placed in his path in settling the affairs of Mexico. It was in a little speech delivered at the Brooklyn Navy Yard on the occasion of the burial of the soldiers who fell at Vera Cruz. Perhaps in the following words he pictured his own loneliness and utter dejection:

"I never went into battle; I never was under fire; but I fancy there are some things just as hard to do as to go under fire. I fancy that it is just as hard to do your duty when men are sneering at you as when they are shooting at you. When they shoot at you, they can only take your natural life; when they sneer at you, they can wound your living heart, and men who are brave enough, steadfast enough, steady in their principles enough, to go about their duty with regard to their fellowmen, no matter whether there are hisses or cheers, men who can do what Rudyard Kipling in one of his poems wrote, 'Meet with triumph and disaster and treat those two imposters just the same,' are men for a nation to be proud of. Morally speaking, disaster and triumph are imposters. The cheers of the moment are not what a man ought to think about, but the verdict of his conscience and of the conscience of mankind."

TO A FRIEND AT TIME OF MEXICAN CRISIS

WASHINGTON

May 11, 1916

My dear [redacted]

That was a very generous letter you wrote me on the ninth and I thank you for it most sincerely. I find that one has to detach oneself in large measure from the talk going on around one in order to see things steadily and see them whole, and sometimes that is very difficult indeed to do. Besides, one does not always know just how safe it is to do it and to trust one's own judgment; but I always try to think what the verdict would be after the event rather than in the midst of it.

Cordially and sincerely yours.

Woodrow Wilson

INTIMATE NOTES FROM THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

CORNISH, N. H.,
July 3, 1915

My dear Tumulty:

I am heartily obliged to you for your telegrams. It is characteristic of you to keep my mind free by such messages. I am really having a most refreshing and rewarding time and am very thankful to get it. I hope that you are not having depressing weather in Washington and that you are finding it possible to make satisfactory arrangements for the family, so that we can have the pleasure of having you with us at the White House when I get back.

With warmest messages from us all,

Woodrow Wilson

Hon. Joseph P. Tumulty,
Washington, D. C.

4 December, 1915.

THE WHITE HOUSE.

Dear Tumulty,

I feel sure that your judgment will approve of the enclosed. I would be very much obliged if you would give it out to the newspaper men to-day.

W. W.

Dear Tumulty
Now is the expurgated stuff. Do what you please with it.

Judge Fines Railroad $2,500 For Refusing Voting Time Pay

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company was found guilty today of refusing to permit twenty-five employes to absent themselves from work for two hours with pay to vote in the primaries last April.

Judge Righeimer fined the company $100 in each of the twenty-five cases. An appeal will be taken, the company attorney announced, to test the law requiring employers to pay for time employes spend in voting.

TELLS OF PRODUCTION LOSS

A. E. Lefcourt Says Garment Week Work Has Cost $500,000,000.

A. E. Lefcourt, spokesman for the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers Association, said yesterday that since the piece-work system was abolished two years ago and the week work system introduced into the industry, there had been a $500,000,000 decrease in production.

Mr. Lefcourt said the threat of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union to strike on Nov. 14, the date set by the manufacturers for a return to the piece-work system, did not scare the employers.

The average earnings of operatives were from $50 to $55 a week, said Mr. Lefcourt. Prior to 1919 when on the piece-work system they earned between $75 and $125 weekly, he asserted.

Union officials will know by tonight the results of the strike referendum among the 60,000 workers. They are confident the vote will be almost unanimous for a strike on Nov. 14.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS SPLIT ON SURTAXES

EXPECT 40 PER CENT. RATE

ACTION SOON, PENROSE SAYS

But Others Assert Measure Will Not Go to President Under Three Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The breach in the ranks of House Republicans over the acceptance of the Senate maximum income surtax rate of 50 per cent. continued today to widen. House leaders sought to defer the fight, at least until after the rewriting of the bill by the conferees gets under way, but whether negotiations to that end opened with the "insurgents" would be successful remained to be decided.

If the negotiations started today terminate without an agreement, the majority leaders plan to bring in a rule to force the bill to conference without instructions to the managers. In that event the Republican "insurgents" and the Democrats are prepared to make a fight on the rule. Losing in that, they say, they still will be in a position to renew the fight when the House managers ask for instructions.

House leaders are understood to be ready to accept a compromise on the surtax rate at an increase of approximately 8 per cent. over the 32 per cent. maximum fixed in the bill as it passed the House. Majority leaders in the Senate also look forward to a compromise at around 40 per cent.

Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee said today he expected the bill to be ready for the President next week. Other Senators and some House leaders were less optimistic. Estimates as to the time of final Congressional action ranged all the way from ten days to three weeks.

Estimated Revenue Expected.

Treasury experts completed today their estimates as to the revenue which would be yielded by the Senate bill. The total for this fiscal year was placed at $3,242,730,000, as compared with $3,450,000,000 under existing law; that for the next fiscal year at $2,717,280,000 and that for the calendar year 1923 at $2,726,280,000.

While they undoubtedly will make many changes in the measure, the conferees are not expected to materially alter the total of revenue. As the bill now stands there are just three major provisions on which the House and Senate agree. They are: Repeal of the excess profits tax and of the transportation taxes on next Jan. 1, and retention of the present tax on corporation capital stock.

A statement prepared by the experts and made public by Senator Penrose said that the technical and Administrative improvements in the bill were "quite as important as the reductions in specific taxes."

"The improvements in question work in both directions," the statement said. "They close holes through which taxes fairly due have hitherto escaped, and they provide cushions to protest the taxpayer in situations where profit is not really made but only appears to be made.

"Avoidance of the tax through the device of gifts will be greatly reduced.

"Necessary business readjustments or reorganizations which are now blocked by the excessive taxation of purely paper gains can be carried through without premature collection of the tax.

"Farmers, miners and others who realize capital gains, which in a large majority of cases have been accruing through a period of years, will be permitted to close their deals and take their profits without fear of a tax unfairly made prohibitive by taxing as a lump sum, in one year, profits which have been earned over a series of years.

Compulsory Property Conversion.

"The compulsory conversion of property into cash through fire, shipwreck and the like will no longer be held to result in taxable gain when the taxpayer in good faith invests the proceeds of the conversion in similar property and goes on conducting business, as it were, at the old stand.

"American citizens and domestic corporations engaged in business in American possessions will escape double taxation and be able to meet foreign competition on equal terms.

"The important amortization deduction has been limited to claims made in returns for the years 1918 and 1919 in connection with war plant and facilities.

"The law relating to refunds, credits and suits for taxes has been put upon a fairer basis. In general, the taxpayer will have four years in which to make claim for refund and five years in which to bring suits for taxes. The Treasury Department, similarly, will hereafter have only four years in which to change assessments and five years in which to bring suits."

A bill to create a Federal Court of Internal Revenue Appeals, to review tax rulings as customs decisions are reviewed, was introduced today by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, who said there were over 4,400,000 tax appeals last year.

Ex-Soldier Who Impersonated 'Buddy' Released at Leavenworth.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 8.—Harry J. Haley, the Canadian war veteran who, posing as Thomas G. Jones, his American "buddy," who had saved his life under fire at the front, had served five out of six months' imprisonment imposed upon Jones as a deserter, was released from the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth today.

Because of his imposture, the usual railroad fare and small compensation accorded prisoners on their discharge were withheld, by order of the War Department, but a suit of the cheapest civilian clothes made at the barracks had to be given to him, as he had none to exchange for his prison garb.

Haley, who is penniless, is now looking for a job. He is an electrician by trade.

NOTRE DAME ELEVEN CRUSHES RUTGERS

Westerners Outplay Rivals in Every Department Before Crowd of 15,000 at Polo Grounds.

Notre Dame's delegation of football tourists needed only a minute or so to put over enough points to beat Rutgers in the election day game at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. On the first play, following Rutgers's kick-off, one of the Hoosier backs scampered around the end for a 60-yard run and a touchdown. Thereafter it was the same old question for Rutgers—not which team, but how much. Later developments showed the amount of the damage to be 48 to 0.

The game was one of those things that are bound to crop up even in the best of football seasons. It was full of all kinds of football, ranging from long, dazzling runs to fumbling and ineptness that would have put a schoolboy team to shame. From the opening whistle Rutgers found itself up against a team that knew more football, was better coached, had better man power and was superior in every department of play.

Only once in the sixty minutes of play did Foster Sanford's scarlet-clad eleven threaten the Notre Dame goal line, and before the Rutgers cheering section had finished roaring over this flash of power the opportunity had been thrown to the winds by bad generalship. The New Jersey advance occurred near the end of the second quarter, after Notre Dame had run up a total of 27 points. With the ball near midfield, Redmond, halfback, plucked a long forward pass from the air and covered 30 yards before he was brought to earth. Before the Hoosiers could recover from this unexpected thrust the same player went over to the other side of the field and made an almost impossible catch of another aerial fling, this time taking the pigskin to Notre Dame's 5-yard chalk line.

It looked like a touchdown for the lads from the Raritan, but Quarterback Maloney had other ideas about it. Instead of using line smashes to cover the few yards remaining, he elected to fling another of those highly successful passes. But the toss was wide and wild, and it grounded on the other side of the goal line. Notre Dame took the ball on the 20-yard line, and the Rutgers stands groaned, the only thing they could do.

Fifteen Thousand in Stands.

Fifteen thousand football devotees sat through the one-sided tussle and had their enthusiasm tested to the limit. They came mainly to see the much-heralded Notre Dame attack, which was being unveiled in New York for the first time in many years. Notre Dame's was the hand that rocked the cradle of the forward pass, and Knute Rockne, one of the pioneers in the aerial game, showed conclusively that he is as good a teacher of the pass as he was a pupil years ago when he started West Point with the speed and accuracy of his tosses.

The Notre Dame pass and tremendous speed in the backfield were the chief weapons which the Hoosiers used to flatten Rutgers' hopes. The aerial play was built around a double pass, delayed pass and triple pass, the same pattern that Harvard has made its own in the East, and Rutgers was constantly fooled by the skillful preparation used to lead up to the aerial campaign. In the backfield the South Bend eleven, in addition, had in Mohardt, Castner, Dosch and Wynne powerful men with the ball, who showed a world of speed and lunged through the tissue paper defense of Rutgers almost at will.

It was a versatile attack that Coach Rockne turned on against Sanford's team, but how good it really was will never be determined. With the exception of Raub, at right tackle, the Rutgers line was a wide-open affair. It was heavier than the forward line of the Indiana team, but it lost this advantage by an amazing amount of clumsiness and slowness. Sanford's men had the weight and the height and the necessary physical equipment, but they were caught flat-footed by the speed and elusiveness of the Notre Dame backfield men.

Disch Shows Speed.

One of the speediest of the Rockne backs was a boy from Newark—Gus Dosch, national champion over the 440-yard hurdles and as fast a ball-carrier as ever stepped on a football field. Dosch was not sent into the game until the third period was nearing a close, but he immediately dazzled the crowd by tearing off two mighty runs for a total distance of fifty-five yards. Early in the final quarter he again traveled forty-seven yards around Rutgers' right end, and while the Scarlet warriors were trying to recover from the effects of this exhibition of chained lightning, Dosch slipped around left end for twenty yards and Notre Dame's last touchdowns. He was then removed from the game, much to the relief of Sanford's team.

A slender-hipped halfback named Castner was the individual star of this football mixture. He first showed his mettle by romping half the distance of the field for the first Hoosier touchdown. In the fourth period he scored another after a brisk run around the left wing and down the sideline. But these contributions were as nothing compared with the drop-kicking that this slim youngster produced for the benefit of the New York crowd.

Charley Brickley was in the press box watching the proceedings, and even Charley was never more graceful or nonchalant than Castner in booting a drop-kick between the uprights. Castner kicked a field goal from the 43-yard line in the first period, and in the second quarter he kicked a goal from the 46-yard line.

Notre Dame started as if it meant to equal Cornell's record score of 110 points. Castner's touchdown in the first minute was the initial blow for Rutgers, and the Scarlet had not finished reeling before the Indianans unleashed another solar plexus punch. A Rutgers punt slid off the shoe of the kicker and sailed out of bounds at Notre Dame's 40-yard line. On the first play Rutgers was detected in rough work and the fifteen-yard penalty took the ball past midfield and into Rutgers territory. One of those Notre Dame forward passes, from Mohardt to Anderson, netted ten yards, and here, on a delayed pass that pulled the entire right side of the Rutgers line out of position, Wynne slid off his own left tackle, cut sharply to the left and finished his 30-yard run only when he was safely behind the goal posts. Shaw kicked the goal.

Castner's first field goal only a few minutes later boosted the total to 17, where it remained until the quarter ended. Before the second period was many minutes old Castner's second dropkick placed Rutgers twenty points in the rear.

Delayed Pass Gains Again.

After Notre Dame had kicked off to the Raritan aggregation the Rutgers attack failed to get through Rockne's forward, and Raub punted to midfield. Thomas, the visiting quarterback, again resorted to the delayed pass, and Wynne placed the ball on the 30-yard line after a run that covered four chalk lines. Mohardt then dropped back and shot a long forward pass to Kiley, who had cut over to the other side of the line, and the left end, with a clear goal, stepped over the goal line for the third Notre Dame touchdown.

Again in the third quarter the Westerners lost no time after the kick-off before they had crossed Rutgers's line for a fourth score. Notre Dame kicked off and Rutgers, after failing to gain, punted back to Notre Dame's 45-yard line. A Rockne forward pass netted ten yards, and a first down by rushing took the pigskin to within thirty-five yards of Rutgers's goal. Kiley caught a pass from Mohardt for a 12-yard gain, and Wynne repeated the trick for a run that ended only on the 5-yard mark.

Mohardt, switching tactics, tried to circle the end, but was thrown for a 10-yard loss. The Hoosiers then wisely returned to the attack through the air, and with Mohardt throwing and Eddie Anderson receiving, another touchdown resulted, carrying the figures up to 34-0.

Castner, who had been replaced by Coughlin, returned to the game in Wynne's place at the beginning of the fourth quarter, and on the second play of the period plunged through the line for another six points. The touchdown was the fruit of Desch's two runs for forty-five yards and Wynne's dash for ten more to the 5-yard line, where Castner did the rest.

After Notre Dame had kicked off, Rutgers again was forced to punt, the ball going to Notre Dame on the latter's 28-yard line. Here Desch, skirting the end like a badly-scared rabbit, covered forty-seven yards in his flight. He was brought down on the Rutgers 25-yard cross-bar, and, after two line smashes had failed, the Newark hurdler again swooped wide around the flanks for a touchdown.

Hard Tackling by Rutgers.

Despite their inability to stop the Notre Dame speed merchants in slices inside and outside tackle, the Rutgers players showed a knack for vicious tackling that helped to enliven the game. The Raritan athletes missed many tackles and they were generally slow and halting, but once they laid hands on a runner he went to earth with a thud. Coughlin was the worst victim. He was thrown severely at the end of a 30-yard run in the third period and had to be helped from the field. To add a touch of irony, Referee Tufts called the ball back and handed Notre Dame a 5-yard penalty for being off-side.

Several Rutgers worthies also had to be carried off the field of battle, and there were other evidences that the New Jersey team was not in the best of condition. Loppacker, a substitute end, was hurt in a second-period scrimmage and had to be carried off the field in the arms of several other players. After working over him on the sideline, he was finally removed, badly shaken up, to the dressing room.

Only in punting did Rutgers manage to hold its end up against the speedy Westerners. The Jerseyites' forward pass attack was almost entirely futile, except on two occasions, when the ball was carried to the 5-yard line, and the ball was generally thrown into uncovered territory. Benkert and Waite did some effective line plunging, and Raub's work in the line was of a high order.

HARVARD REGULARS REST.

Granted Another Day's Respite From Football Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—Every Harvard varsity football player who started the game against the Tigers at Princeton Saturday was granted another day off from practice this afternoon, and, in addition, Ladd, who substituted for Tierney late in the game, was told to wait until tomorrow before starting work. However, all the other players were out on Soldiers Field brushing up plays in dummy scrimmage.

Work was started in earnest for the Yale game, Bill Blake, the scout, helping to get the scrubs ready to work on the Yale plays. On Friday there probably will be a little drilling in anticipation of the coming of the Brown team, but there will be no let-up in the preparations for the Crimson's final match with the Blue.

Tomorrow all the regulars will be at the field, but Crocker, Tierney and Coburn will not do any work. The others are all right, and Dr. Nichols states that the team will be in a lot better condition for the Yale game than it was for the Princeton game, and also will have the services of both Chapin and Gehrke, the injured backfield men.

Today Percy Haughton visited the field and looked over the attack that Tommy Campbell is preparing for his freshman team, which will play the Yale yearlings at New Haven on Saturday.

FOURTEEN TEAMS ENTERED.

Veteran Cyclists Will Contest in 24-Hour Race at Garden.

Announcement of the fourteen teams which will participate in the first twenty-four hour bicycle race at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 16 and 17 was made yesterday by John M. Chapman, manager of the race. Numerous veterans of the sport have responded to the call for entries in this novel event.

The teams are: Coburn and Rutt, Grenda and Clarke, Spencer and Spencer, McNamara and McBeath, Drobach and Hanley, Madden and Van Kampen, Lawrence and Thomas, Taylor and Smith, Horan and Fitzsimmons, Osterreiter and Weber, Kopsky and Verrias, Bello and Gaffney, Lands and Lang and Walthour and Jaeger.

School Elevens at Ebbets Field.

The football elevens of Brooklyn Prep School and Flushing H. S. will clash at Ebbets Field Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. This game originally was scheduled for Saturday, but has been advanced with the consent of the management of both teams.

Princeton Men Seek Hats Thrown Over Goal Posts

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—The offices of The Daily Princetonian, the undergraduate newspaper of Princeton University, have been turned into a veritable hat exchange as a result of Ralph Gilroy's 65-yard run that won the Harvard football game last Saturday. Thousands of hats of all dimensions and shapes were tossed heedlessly over the crossbars during the snake dance that followed the victorious battle. And in almost a majority of cases the fedoras did not return to their rightful owners, especially if they looked like new. The Princetonian offered its offices as a place of exchange this morning, and men who figured that they got the worst of the bargain in the "hat game" eagerly turned up to rescue their lost possessions.

VIOLET CONQUERS TRINITY, 28 TO 0

N. Y. U. Wins Annual Struggle With Connecticut Eleven—10,000 Watch Contest.

Showing the best brand of football yet displayed this season, New York University's big Violet team defeated Trinity yesterday by the score of 28 to 0. The game was the annual clash between these two colleges, relations having been established in 1895. The two colleges are now tied with five games each. Three tie games are also on the record. The game attracted about ten thousand football enthusiasts.

It was New York's game throughout. The big Violet team, headed by Jack Weinheimer, ably assisted by a snappy backfield, crashed through the Trinity line almost at will. Sehres, at quarterback, showed excellent generalship in mixing an overhead attack, off tackle plays, end runs, and lateral passes. Every forward pass was completed. Where a short pass over the line was generally used by N. Y. U., a long pass, Sehres to Taylor or Adams, also proved successful. Trinity loosened an aerial attack during the latter part of the game.

Just before the end of the third period after a series of forward passes, and some brilliant carrying of the ball by Nordlund, that Trinity backfield star reached the Violet one-yard line. On two downs, Kennedy advanced the ball to the one-foot-mark. On the next two attempts to crash through the Violet wall the Trinity backs could not gain an inch, and lost the ball on the fourth down. Friedlander then kicked out of danger.

The New York team did all of its scoring in the first half. The first touchdown was made after a 75-yard march down the field. Weinheimer carried the ball over from the 2-yard line for the touchdown. He also kicked the goal. Sehres made the second score. Weinheimer kicked goal, making the score 14 to 0. Sehres continued to use the forward pass, and another touchdown was realized, Weinheimer carrying the ball over from the 5-yard line by an off-tackle play. He again kicked the goal. The first period ended with the score of 21 to 0 in favor of New York.

Friedlander made the next touchdown on a clever run from midfield. This was the longest run of the game. Weinheimer again booted the ball over the bar, bringing the score up to 28 to 0.

After the intermission the Connecticut team put up a fine brand of football, fighting the Violet on every play. They tried hard to score, but each time the Violet defense was a little too quick for them. In the third period Trinity made six first downs. The Trinity aerial attack was perfect in this half, netting big gains, but the necessary punch required to push the ball over the line seemed to be lacking. At the end of the third period the Nutmeg Staters advanced to within one foot of N. Y. U.'s goal line.

In the fourth period Trinity advanced from midfield to the 10-yard line but could get no further, losing the ball on downs. Here the whistle blew, ending the fray.

BOYS' HIGH ELEVEN WINS.

Defeats Commercial, 7 to 0—Poor Pass Leads to Score.

A poor pass from centre in the final quarter brought defeat to the Commercial High Schol eleven in its game against Boys' High School yesterday on Commercial Field, Brooklyn, after the two teams had battled through three stubbornly fought periods without a score. Boys' won by the score of 7 to 0. Weiner, the commercial centre, made the poor pass to Benner, right halfback, but the ball rolled to Commercial's one-yard line, where a Boys' High player fell on it.

Midshipmen Prepare for Game With Penn State Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8.—The Naval Academy varsity, which will meet Pennsylvania State at Philadelphia on Saturday, engaged in a lengthy and fairly satisfactory practice this afternoon, a considerable portion of the time being devoted to scrimmages. The team is roused to a high pitch by the realization that the result of Saturday's game may decide the collegiate supremacy of the East. The squad B team, which opposed the varsity this afternoon, had been carefully coached in Penn State offensive tactics by Navy Scouts. The varsity practiced several variations of the forward pass.

King, regular right tackle, a veteran of four seasons, who hurt his leg in the Bethany game, was on the field today in uniform and went through signal work. He took no part in the scrimmage. If he is not able to get in any scrimmage work this week his place will be taken by Wiedorn, who played there today. Wiedorn is about as heavy and strong as King, and has been playing as long, but has not had the experience in big games.

STIFF DRILL FOR ARMY.

West Point Eleven Given 40 Minutes Scrimmage Against Scrubs.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The Army eleven went through a stiff practice today. The work-out was the first the men have had since the Notre Dame game last Saturday. The varsity and scrubs tussled for forty minutes. Wood getting a touchdown for the varsity near the close of the drill.

The varsity line-up had Appleby, a husky tackle, in at Davidson's place today. Davidson was on the field, but not in the drill. French is around again, but he also was not in the scrimmage.

Babe Bryan was tried at guard for Breidster. White has a perceptible limp, which kept him idle. Both Meyers and Glasgow were used in his position at end.

Yale Uses Motion Pictures Of Crews as Coaching Aid

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 8.—The idea of "seeing ourselves as others see us" is the latest method for finding the flaws and learning correct stroking of the Yale crews. Yesterday afternoon crew practice was featured by Head Coach Corderry having ultra-low motion pictures taken of the first and second shells in action, the first time Yale has taken advantage of the "movies" in any athletic training. The films will be shown before a gathering of the crews and criticisms made on the form displayed.

YALE VARSITY IN DRILL WITH SCRUBS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 8.—Yale's football eleven as it will probably face Princeton Saturday was sent against the scrubs today for twenty minutes and was unable to score. The second-string men then supplanted the regulars and they were unable to send a touchdown across until Charley O'Hearn, who had been standing on the side lines, was called upon for emergency duty and took the solitary touchdown of the afternoon across on an end run from the 5-yard line. George Beckett and Russel Murphy had previously run the varsity and had on three occasions carried the ball to the 5-yard mark. Twice the first-string players took the oval to the shadow of the scrub goal during their session with the Bruins, but they were halted, and on fourth down Captain Aldrich tried field goals. He missed both attempts. In the first case, the ball, kicked from the 35-yard line, fell short. In the second, it hit the cross bar and bounded back.

The varsity attack was effective at times during the short playing half in which the regulars were used, but the scrub defense was the most stubborn displayed this Fall. Early in the practice the scrubs, manipulating the Snively-Gilroy forward pass of Princeton extraction, gained heavily, but Aldrich intercepted one of the passes and ran forty yards through a broken field to the scrub's 30-yard line. The scrub defense stiffened and the varsity line attack failed to gain.

Failure to perfect the kicking game and to score field goals today depressed the coaches. They closed the practice by working Aldrich, O'Hearn and Becket in a kicking drill from behind the line of scrimmage. Becket's average was the most satisfactory of the day.

Of the injured players, Ted Blair and Mike Eddy were present in their football togs, but Head Coach Tad Jones said tonight that it is not planned to use either against the Tigers. Another group of injured men included Harry Cross, Emerson Quaile, Al Into and Herbert Herr. This quartet will be available for one playing period. Into started the practice today. Al Norris, Ted Wight and Eli Cutler were not in the practice. Cutler will play no more this season. Wight is suffering from a cold, but will play Saturday. Norris probably will replace Landis as centre against the Tigers.

The largest staff of visiting graduate coaches of the season was present, including Florence Alcott, Ted Tilley and Foster Rockwell, of the Graduate Advisory Committee; former Head Coaches Paul Veeder and Jack Owsley, former Captains Cupid Black, Jesse Spalding and Mart Gates, with Douglas Bomeisler, Howell Van Nostrand, Chester Laroche, Heyleigher Church, Jack Gates, Bob Forbes and John Pendleton.

Plans for the varsity the remainder of the week include short scrimmage tomorrow and signal rehearsal Thursday and Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—Princeton's varsity football eleven had only a light workout this afternoon, in spite of the fact that there are only two more days for home practice before the concluding game of the season with Yale Saturday. The men are uniformly in such good condition that Keene Fitzpatrick figured they would profit more by a signal drill than by a scrimmage.

Stan Keck, Ed Stinson and Al Wittmer of the regulars were given leave of absence today in order to rest. Nat Poe declares that all will face the Elis Saturday. The loss of any one of them would be a severe blow to the Tigers. Stinson was given a vacation because he had attended every single practice all season and was due for a lay-off. Keck and Witter were bruised in the Harvard game, but Poe says they will be on hand tomorrow.

Jack Cleaves and Ralph Gilroy, neither of whom had appeared yesterday, were in uniform today and went through the signal drill with the rest of the varsity. Von Schilling took Keck's place at tackle, Scott was at end instead of Stinson and Lipscomb at centre instead of Wittmer, making the first line-up as follows:

Lourie and Garrity seem to be in the best condition of two years. Previous to the signal drill the varsity, with Von Schilling, Morgan, Lipscomb, Baker and Hooper in the line and the regular backfield, opposed the scrubs in dummy scrimmage. No ends were employed. Most of the time was spent in perfecting a defense against the Yale plays, which the Omelettes have been taught to use with great proficiency.

Jack Strubing, quarterback on the 1919 eleven and Walter Camp's second choice for All-American pilot in that year, returned today to help in the coaching, and immediately took a place on the scrubs, alternating between his old position and halfback. Last year he coached the freshmen. Shad Davis, end on both the 1919 and 1920 teams, called the signals while Strubing was at halfback.

The Princeton squad, consisting probably of about forty men, will leave Friday morning for New Haven, and will drill in the Stadium Friday afternoon. The men will spend Friday night in Derby, returning to the bowl at noon Saturday for the game.

C. C. N. Y. YEARLINGS WIN.

Defeat Morris High in Dual Cross-Country Run by 24 to 35.

The City College freshman cross-country team gained its first victory of the season yesterday, when it defeated the harriers of Morris High School over the P. S. A. L. course at Van Cortlandt Park by a score of 24 to 35. The Lavender hill-and-dalers were well bunched and captured enough early places to win, although Segal, Morris High captain, led the field throughout, finishing about fifty yards ahead of Greenblatt, C. C. N. Y., who took second honors. The winner covered the course in 13 minutes 30 seconds.

CLINTON DEFEATS STUYVESANT 13-0

Hamon Stars in Red and Black Victory as 20,000 Fill Lewisohn Stadium.

A crowd estimated at 20,000, the largest gathering that has ever witnessed a scholastic football game in the local district, saw De Witt Clinton High School's brilliant Red and Black eleven vanquish the strong Stuyvesant High School team yesterday at Lewisohn Stadium, by the score of 13 to 0. The victory was the fifth of the season for the Clintonians in as many games. The setback was the first Stuyvesant has suffered this season in six clashes. As a result of this contest De Witt Clinton retains its position as favorite in the struggle for the Manhattan-Bronx championship title. The Red and Black team will engage Commerce on Nov. 19. Commerce, in the meantime, must play Stuyvesant Friday afternoon.

In the Clinton victory Milton Hamon, fullback, was the principal figure. He scored two Red and Black touchdowns and, with Quarterback Ted Waterbury, formed a combination which Stuyvesant could not overcome. They were leaders in almost every play undertaken by Clinton and contributed consistent gains to the cause.

The line-up:

Levine's Brilliant Run for Touchdown Beats Morris High, 13-7.

A spectacular 28-yard dash for a touchdown by Moe Levine, after he had recovered a fumble, gave the High School of Commerce football eleven a victory yesterday over the Morris High School team in a keenly fought battle on the Catholic Protectory grounds, Van Nest. The score was 13 to 7.

FLYING SCOUT IS FIRST AT PIMLICO

Gelding Captures the $10,000 Manly Memorial Steeplechase by Fifteen Lengths.

SEA SKIPPER IS SECOND

Houdini, Badly Cut, Finishes Third —Sweepment, the Favorite, Falls at Last Jump.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 8.—Repeating his splendid race in the Chevy Chase, the principal steeplechase at Laurel, enabled Flying Scout to capture the sixth running of the $10,000 Manly Memorial today at Pimlico. This seven-year-old son of Oxford-Clasher won with ridiculous ease, being at least fifteen lengths in front of Sea Skipper, which led Houdini, his stable mate, by ten lengths. Fourth place fell to J. S. Cosden's Bullseye, a head preventing him from finishing higher up.

Two accidents, one to Mrs. George W. Loft's Sweepment, the favorite, which fell over the only obstacle that stood between him and the goal, and the other to Houdini, who made a poor landing at the last brush on the far side the last time around, robbed the contest of a more spectacular finish. It is doubtful, however, if either could have beaten the winner. Houdini would have had the better chance, because he and Sweepment took that fence together.

The race was at two and a half miles, and Flying Scout took the pace from Keltie until they had reached the water jump the second time around. Then the former easily passed the tiring pacemaker and soon gained a commanding lead over his opposition. Going into the back stretch Sweepment, which was piloted by Charlie Mergler; Houdini, the mainstay of the J. E. Widener entry, which was ridden by Haynes, and Sea Skipper, the Widener starter, with Smoot in the saddle, began to lengthen their strides.

Houdini Is Cut.

This trio cut down Flying Scout's advantage by several lengths, but the gray gelding was running easily. The admirers of the Widener pair received a shock when Houdini stumbled after getting over the obstacle below the half-mile pole and was badly cut.

This left Sweepment alone to dispose of Flying Scout, but he fell. The Widener pair were next over the jump and both almost ran into the prostrate horse and rider. Sea Skipper didn't have any trouble landing second honors, but Haynes, realizing that Houdini had been injured, eased him up and almost was nipped at the finnish by Bullseye.

Flying Scout is owned by George Saportas and J. Temple Gwathney. They race in the name of the Malvern Hill Farm. The men who own the winner will dissolve partnership on Thursday and the Chevy Chase and Manly Memorial victor will be put on the auction block.

Flying Scout was overlooked in the betting, paying a trifle more than 9 to 1. First place was worth $7,830; second, $2,000; third, $1,000, and fourth, $500.

Good Times Proves Class.

J. S. Cosden's Good Times again proved himself a gelding of considerable class by winning the third event, which brought out youngsters to run six furlongs. He had to work his way up on the outside, but he finished with good courage and handily beat Relay, with Picnic third.

Motor Cop is going back, and this is another that will be sold in the paddock on Thursday. Although he made the early pace in the fourth contest, which was at three-quarters of a mile, he had his colors lowered by both Knight of the Heather, the winner, and Carmandale, which was always second.

WRESTLING RULES DEFINED.

Toe and Scissors Holds and Headlock Usable Under Restrictions.

Contrary to general belief the toe hold, scissors hold and head lock have not been absolutely barred from local wrestling bouts under the rules of the State Athletic Commission. Chairman William Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission cleared up this confused point in a discussion of the rules with George Bothner, veteran wrestler and wrestling referee, it was announced yesterday. Chairman Muldoon, according to Bothner, pointed out that the only hold strictly barred is the strangle hold, which has been prohibited for years in all parts of the country where wrestling is conducted. The toe hold, scissors and head lock are barred only when, in the judgment of a referee officiating, the clutches are applied for purely punishing effect. When the holds are applied as decisive elements in producing a fall, in the opinion of the referee, they are legal and permissible.

"Chairman Muldoon explained to me how these holds should be used," said Bothner yesterday. "We all had the impression that these popular holds with the top-notch wrestlers were not to be used, and it looked as though the game would undergo a setback, owing to the decision, but such is not the case. All three holds can be used until the referee thinks they are being employed for the purpose of weakening an opponent. When a man applies one of the holds to an opponent, he must go through with it and try for a fall, and not hold it any length of time for the purpose alone of torturing his opponent. This use of the three holds in question will not be tolerated."

The conditions mentioned will receive their first real demonstration Monday night in the bout at Madison Square Garden between Marin Plestina and John Pesek. Referee Bothner will officiate.

Whippet Handily Wins All His Races at Westbury, L. I.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., Nov. 8.—Society turned out in large numbers here today to see the first Whippet races of the Whippet Association of Long Island, held at the Meadowbrook Club. Gilligan's Tommy, owned by James Gilligan of Lawrence, Mass., upheld his supremacy. The New England owned racer won handily in all his races, cutting down big handicaps, and was clocked in 12 3-5 seconds for 200 yards. He deefated that sterling racer from Baltimore, Barberryhill Flyer, owned by Bayard Warren. It was Barberryhill Flyer's first defeat.

Gilligan's dog has never been defeated. In England he cleaned the boards, and with no dogs left for him to beat, was sent to America and has continued his victories.

In the Nassau County stake race, Bayard Warren, with Barberry Dawn, won by inches from Miss C. G. Weat's Medford Flying Fawn and Medford Lucky Strike. The trio were very close at the finish. The handicap that was allowed the Baltimore racers practically won for him.

WIN BEST BALL TOURNEY.

Scindley and Conroy Come Through in Fox Hills Golf Event.

The semi-final and final rounds of the Fox Hills Golf Club's 1921 best ball tourney were played yesterday over the club course. The team of Scindley and Conroy carried off the championship by scoring two clean-cut victories. In the semifinals they defeated Folette and Allen by 4 and 2, and then went on to conquer McManus and Pomeroy, the other semifinal victors, by a score of 3 and 1. McManus and Pomeroy reached the finals by defeating the team of Dee Bond and Hunt, 4 and 3.

GUGLIELMINI WINS BOUT OF BANTAMS

Pastime A. C. Boxer Gains Referee's Decision Over Cohan in Garden Event.

Louis Guglielmini, the aggressive little Pastime A. C. bantamweight, defeated Wilbur Cohan, St. Christopher Club, his colored rival, last night in a special bout in conjunction with the Metropolitan A. A. U. open amateur boxing tournament before a crowd of about 4,000 at Madison Square Garden. The wearer of the Brazilian Cross carried off the decision of the veteran referee, Eddie Forbes, after three interesting rounds. The judges disagreed, but Referee Forbes promptly awarded the battle to Guglielmini. This was eminently fair, but the decision for some unaccountable reason did not satisfy the entire house. The battle gave Guglielmini the advantage in the series between the boxers. He has won three victories in five bouts.

Guglielmini clearly was entitled to the decision. He was the aggressor, landed the greater number of clean blows and his punches carried the greater force. Cohan was clever in a strictly defensive way and ne countered skillfully with left hook or right cross to the face or jaw repeatedly as Guglielmini carried the fighting. The colored lad, however, missed many punches and was guilty of holding repeatedly when the lads came to close quarters, a department of milling in which Guglielmini clearly had the advantage. The first round was about even, but in the second and third rounds Guglielmini accumulated enough points to entitle him to the verdict.

The contest was an added attraction to a program of bouts which were brimful of action. Knockouts were the rule during the evening in the regular class contests, but there were also three-round decision battles with spectacular moments. One of the most exciting of these came in the middleweight class. The principals were Fred Walter and Dick Peet, both unattached. These two middleweights went through three slambang rounds, both experiencing the sensation of being floored in the first two rounds. In the closing round both were arm-weary and almost exhausted from their exertions. Walter, however, managed to maintain an offensive and received the judges' award.

The finals will be held this evening. The summaries:

Will Furnish Action in Three Bouts Tonight at Pioneer S. C.

A card of thirty-four rounds of boxing, in which heavyweights will furnish the action in three battles, is scheduled for this evening at the Pioneer Sporting Club on East Twenty-fourth Street. Al Roberts, sturdy Staten Island heavyweight, and Herbert Crossley, an English boxer, will clash in the principal bout, scheduled for twelve rounds. Another twelve-round contest will bring together Mike Burke, Greenwich Village heavyweight, and Eddie Josephs of Staten Island.

Penn Cannot Finance Visit Of Australian Relay Team

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Australia wants to send a team of runners to the relay races on Franklin Field here next April, but the University of Pennsylvania has regretfully cabled the antipodeans that conditions for next year make it more or less impossible to finance the scheme. The offer came from the University of Sydney, which wants to meet America's best in a distance medley relay on Pennsylvania's famous track.

Because of the expense attached to a proposed trip to England, it was stated, Pennsylvania could not undertake to guarantee expenses to an Australian team, because of the great distance the runners would have to come. Pennsylvania athletic officials, however, hope to have Australia represented in some future meet.

COLUMBIA TO TRAIN A 150-POUND CREW

Decides to Develop Lightweight Eight for Intercollegiate Competitions.

Columbia has decided to join the ranks of the colleges which have organized 150-pound crews for intercollegiate competition. This step, which the Blue and White declined to take last year, was decided upon at a meeting last week of the new Rowing Committee, headed by Morton G. Bogue, long prominent in Columbia's rowing affairs. The announcement of the decision was made yesterday by R. W. Watt, Graduate Manager of Athletics, who said that the new plan had received the approval of the athletic authorities.

The first intercollegiate race for 150-pound college crews was held two years ago in the American Henley regatta at Philadelphia, after many Eastern colleges had formed these lightweight eights and sent them through a regular course of training. The success of the innovation was such that several varsity oarsmen were produced, the most notable example being Mitchell, Penn's crew captain last season, who rowed in the first 150-pound crew held at the American Henley. Crew coaches have welcomed the idea because it provides a place for oarsmen too light for the first and second varsities.

A modest schedule will be arranged for Columbia's bantamweight crew. It is possible that one of M. I. T.'s lighter eights will be met, and it is also likely that the 150-pound Columbians will be entered in the American Henley, where they will meet crews from nearly every big university in the East that goes in for rowing.

The entire crew situation at Columbia was discussed by the Rowing Committee, which decided that new efforts would have to be made to stir up interest on the campus. Greater attention is to be paid to the coaching of the junior varsity and freshman eights, and they will have intensive workouts corresponding to those for the varsity. Prominent oarsmen of other years will co-operate with Coach Jim Rice in this additional work.

The schedule has been cast on tentative lines that follow those of last year. Two races are considered certainties—the dual meeting with Yale, which will be held this year on the Harlem River, and the Childs Cup race, scheduled this season for Lake Carnegie, Princeton. Included, of course, is the Poughkeepsie regatta, in which the customary three Columbia eights will be entered. Another race for the varsity is being considered, and the freshmen will row in the usual number of races, including the test at Poughkeepsie. The Yale race comes under a two-year agreement made last season, according to which the Elis come to Columbia's home waters next Spring, probably some time in April.

BRUSSEL IN GOOD STROKE.

Has High Run of 5 in Victory Over Mills in State Cue Play.

Ira J. Brussel last night defeated John Mills by a score of 30 to 20 in the New York State amateur three-cushion tournament, being played under the auspices of the N. A. A. B. P., at the National Recreation Billiard Academy in Brooklyn. Brussel, who was in excellent stroke throughout the match, had a high run of five, which is just one short of the tournament record to date.

In the other evening match S. B. Burdett found little difficulty in disposing of Peter Farace by a score of 30 to 14 in forty-nine innings. This was the shortest game of the tournament so far, Burdett scoring consistently in the majority of his trips to the table. Burdett had a high cluster of four, while Farace was never able to amass more than two billiards in the same inning.

The afternoon match was a long drawn out affair between Farace and M. A. Hanratty, the former finally managing to register a 30 to 27 victory after eighty innings of play. Both men played raggedly and both missed many comparatively easy shots. Each had a high run of two.

WILLIAMS IS HIGH GUN.

Takes Scratch Prize in Trapshooting Event at Staten Island.

J. Williams was the winner of the high scratch prize at the traps of the Robin Hood Gun Club at Concord, Staten Island, yesterday afternoon. He scored ninety-four out of a possible 100 targets. The winner of the handicap honors was R. Sinclair, whose actual score was 86, and his handicap of 15, gave him a total of 100. E. Locatelli, with a score of 90 and a handicap of 8, was second on the handicap list, and W. Gibbons, with 86 targets and a handicap of 10, was third. The A. T. A. Trophy went to L. Piercy, who hit 91 targets and had a handicap of 4.

RANNEY IS LEADER IN N. Y. A. C. SHOOT

Wins High Scratch Prize With 99 Out of 100 in Holiday Trap Event.

A. E. Ranney, who has been doing excellent shooting throughout the year, was the winner of the high scratch prize in the holiday shoot of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. He took the trophy with the splendid run of 99 out of a possible 100 targets. T. H. Lewis was close on the heels of the winner, winning second prize with a card of 98.

There also were two handicap prizes. No less than ten gunners tied for these cups. On the shoot-off, first cup went to F. M. Hodkinson. The second cup went to B. L. Duke.

The weather conditions were almost ideal for good shooting at Travers Island. The light was about right, and as there was practically no wind the entire field of thirty-six gunners returned excellent scores.

The scores:

QUAKER SOCCERS WIN EASY VICTORY

Philadelphia Football Club Defeats New York at Oval by Score of 8 to 1.

Quaker soccers gained the verdict in the inter-city game played yesterday at New York Oval between the elevens representing the New York Football Club and the Philadelphia Football Club. The score was 8 goals to 1. The team work of the famous Bethlehem steelworkers was never seen to better advantage, their machine working to perfection throughout. Four goals were shot in each half. New York's only tally came through a penalty early in the second period.

After twenty-five minutes of play, Forrest was the first to snap the ball into New York's net. Brittain quickly followed. Then Campbell, from a corner kick, placed the Quakers three up. Near half time, Fleming negotiated a penalty and Philadelphia led by 4 to 0. Duggan of New York in turn netted a penalty kick early in the second half.

Forrest and Morrison increased the visitors' total by a goal apiece, making it 6 to 1. The prettiest goal of the game was the seventh by Brittain, who cleverly dodged both backs and then beat the goalkeeper. Fleming came down with the eighth, but was forced to pass to Lorimer, who scored for Philadelphia.

| PHILADELPHIA (8). | | NEW YORK (1). |
|---|---|---|
| Wilson | R. B. | Page |
| Ferguson | L. B. | Van den Eynden |
| Murray | R. H. | T. Stark |
| Porter | C. H. | Philp |
| Lorimer | L. H. | Herd |
| Morrison | O. R. | Duggan |
| Forrest | I. R. | McDonald |
| Brittain | C. | Rooney |
| Campbell | I. L. | Hardy |
| Fleming | O. L. | Cooper |

THE PLAY

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

Another Bad Man at the Comedy.

Jimmie Taylor ..... Raymond Van Sickle
Blue Quail ..... Margaret Knight
Padre Francolon ..... Forrest Robinson
Maria ..... Helen Menken
Sanger ..... Charles Kraus
Rab Mobley ..... Conway Tearle
Sheriff Gilson ..... William Harcourt

Relapsing from his recent endeavors to be a bit blithe and frolicsome, George Scarborough has fallen far enough to turn out a hot, violent and smoky melodrama, which, to the accompaniment of roaring crowds and tooting horns in the streets, was exposed to view last evening at the Comedy Theatre. It is a highly theatrical piece, written in the most hifalutin language the playgoer has had a chance to hear this season. They call it "The Mad Dog." Its interpretation puts a fearful strain on that uncommonly fluent actress Helen Menken, and it summons back from the movies the errant Conway Tearle, whose voice has not been lifted in these parts for several seasons.

His present job is to play the bad man in "The Mad Dog"—as bad a man as Mr. Scarborough could invent, a regular Robert W. Serviceable bad man. You meet him first when, dirty and foul and unshaven, he lurches into the twilit peace of the old San Pablo Mission down in Arizona near the Mexican border. It is none other than wild Rab Morley, broken loose a week back from the State prison in Colorado, where they had stowed him away for life for murdering the woman who had been doing him wrong. Now, hungry and thirsty and wounded, he is near enough to the border to crawl there before the dawn of another day.

But, alone and unprotected in the mission, he finds the wide-eyed, innocent Maria, ward of the benevolent padre. Up surge old memories of "The Great Divide" and "Marie-Odile," and even before the mad dog drags the girl from the altar where she is praying the old playgoer knows what he is in for.

Thereafter the hunted Mobley makes good his escape to Mexico. But he comes back. Back into the danger zone, back to the mission before the next day's sun is fairly up, he reels his way, bringing with him the gun with which he now wants the girl to shoot him. He explains his return in terms of something within him, whipping him, whipping him, whipping him. The author rather intimates that Fate and Nature were guiding him. You yourself might give way to the base suspicion that he had been brought back in order that the play should proceed without costly and troublesome change of scenery, were it not for the program note, which says: "Nature loves not to be questioned why she did this or that—she has her ends—and knows that she does well." To which might be added the friendly warning that it were also better to sit through "The Mad Dog" without questioning Mr. Scarborough's motives any too closely, either.

Well, Nature and Mr. Scarborough, working hand in hand, bring the girl and the quite melted bad man together in the final scene. The last you see of them they are walking off hand in hand along the trail that leads in the general direction of Mexico. You are even assured as to their exact destination. Somewhere (across the border) they will seek "some high hill, where there is serenity and nearness to stars."

A bit wild, then, but majestic to the last is "The Mad Dog" and acted accordingly by a lavishly appointed company which works away with tremendous earnestness on a stage as handsomely and carefully mounted as though this were the great American play for which we have all been looking.

7 NEW PLAYS NEXT WEEK.

"Marie Antoinette" and "The Great Broxopp" In List.

Four more November theatrical productions were announced yesterday for New York. These will be "The Great Broxopp," by A. A. Milne, at the Punch and Judy Theatre next Tuesday night; Grace George in "Marie Antoinette," at the Playhouse a week from Saturday; William Gillette in "The Dream Maker," at the Empire on Monday, Nov. 21, and "The Wife With the Smile," at the Garrick on Nov. 28.

"The Great Broxopp" and "Marie Antoinette" bring the number of next week's premières to seven, the others being "The Title," by Arnold Bennett, at the Belmont on Monday; "The Verge," by Susan Glaspell, at the Provincetown on Monday; Louis Mann in "In the Mountains," Monday at the Apollo; a new Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic on Monday, and "The Man's Name," at the Republic on Tuesday. In addition the Sothern-Marlowe "Taming of the Shrew" will be revived at the Century.

"The Dream Maker," in which Mr. Gillette will come to the Empire on Nov. 21, is the work of Mr. Gillette, based on a story by Howard E. Morton. "The Wife With the Smile," which the Theatre Guild will offer on Nov. 28, is a translation of "La Souriante Madame Beudet," by Denya Amiel and André Obey. It is reported that Arnold Daly will play the leading rrôle.

HUBERMAN GIVES SURPRISE.

The "Distinguished Violinist" of Beethoven Association's Concert.

Bronislaw Huberman was the "surprise" in the Beethoven Association's winning ticket of artists at its first subscription concert of the season in Aeolian Hall last night. The hall was sold out even to standing room when Harold Bauer, the society's President, opened this third annual series, not with Beethoven, but instead the D minor sonata, Op. 108, of Brahms.

Mr. Bauer's fellow-volunteer, Mr. Huberman, had been hitherto concealed in an announcement that "a distinguished violinist" would appear. Both received hearty applause, as they did again when, with Hans Kindler, cellist, they closed the evening in Beethoven's trio, Op. 97, in B flat. Between the two numbers, there were songs for Louis Graveure, chosen from Schubert, Schumann and again Brahms.

Elly Ney Plays All-Chopin Program.

Mme. Elly Ney played an all-Chopin program to a considerable audience at yesterday's Carnegie Hall matinee, the pianist's third appearance here before a more extended American tour. She is an artist inclined to extremes, as in her earlier all-Beethoven début. There was too much Chopin for complete variety, nine numbered groups of his works. Mme. Ney was at her best in the B flat minor sonata, Op. 35, and in its episode of the "Funeral March," that held its familiar outlines amid much exaggeration of fresh individuality.

'Hamlet' for School Children Today.

All tickets to E. H. Sothern's special matinee of "Hamlet" at the Century today, it was announced yesterday, have already been distributed, and no children will be admitted without tickets. The performance is an extra one given solely for children, as Mr. Sothern's schedule at the Century does not call for mid-week matinees. All tickets have been distributed free of charge through the Board of Education.

THE SCREEN

In order to enjoy the foreign screen version of "Hamlet," which opened an engagement at the Lexington Theatre Monday evening, the spectator should first of all get Shakespeare out of his mind as much as possible. The picture is not, and does not pretend to be, an adaptation of the famous tragedy. As every one knows, there was a legend of Hamlet before Shakespeare ever wrote, and there is also a book called "The Mystery of Hamlet," written in comparatively recent years by the late Dr. Edward P. Vining, and it is upon this legend and the book that the photoplay at the Lexington is based. As may be expected, then, although it follows the Shakespearean narrative in many particulars, it also departs from it in many others, the most important of which is likely to prove a startling innovation to many. Dr. Vining sought to explain the character of Hamlet on the ground that the Prince was a woman who, for reasons of State, had been raised as a man, and it is this theory that the photoplay accepts and seeks to make plausible.

Now the spectator who goes to see this motion picture "Hamlet" with his mind not too much set against this unusual theory and who can also refrain from anticipating various details of action by his knowledge of Shakespeare, has an evening or an afternoon of rare screen entertainment before him. For the Nielsen-Gade "Hamlet" is an extraordinary work. It does not need to apologize to any production that has come from a foreign or domestic studio since the invention of motion pictures. It holds a secure place in the class with the best.

First of all, it is a human story. Even those who approach anything labeled classic or highbrow with apprehension are likely to find it as thrilling, as gripping, as their favorite melodrama—or so it surely seems, for it is hard to imagine any one not held by its intenser scenes at least. And there are many fine points about it, little bits of byplay, touches of action, flashes of significant pantomime and pictorial expressiveness that the discerning will delight in.

One cannot speak of the work of Miss Asta Nielsen without enthusiasm. There will be discussion as to her physical charms. Some undoubtedly will call her beautiful, while others, preferring a different type of wife or sweetheart or sister, will say she is merely striking in appearance. But what does all this matter? The woman can act. She acts. That's the thing. She does not just pose before the camera, nor does she rant and tear around violently. She impersonates a character, she makes it live and have a meaning, a hundred meanings. Her mouth is not simply something to paint a cupid's bow on. It is an organ to express the thoughts and feelings of the woman within. And her other features are not merely facial adornments to be adorned, but human parts that reveal a human being. Miss Nielsen has grace, too, and the control of her body that permits her to use it to beautify her character and make its movements and postures significant.

But still Miss Nielsen is not the whole picture. The other rôles are exceedingly well done and the settings, even when the photography is not what this country would have given them the benefit of, are expressive. They have a depth seldom seen in American pictures and immeasurably heighten every dramatic crisis of the story. The composition of the scenes throughout, with relatively few exceptions, is such as to give each its greatest strength. Mr. Gade, the director, also deserves his honors for the production.

The most serious fault with the American version of the picture is that it is overtitled. Scenes which can stimulate the imagination are made explicit by words. Also occasional quotations from Shakespeare not only do not fit, but keep in mind the play which the spectator should put out of his mind to enjoy the motion picture fully.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Shuberts have taken over "The Pink Slip," which A. H. Woods produced out of town, and will present it in New York next month. Bert Williams will again head the cast.

Florenz Ziegfeld is getting together a second "Sally" company, to be headed by Mary Eaton. It is probable that it will play in New York simultaneously with the original organization.

"Bulldog Drummond" opened last night in Buffalo.

The Graf Trio, Tyrolean entertainers, have come to this country to be headed by the Hippodrome. They will begin their engagement next week.

Al Jolson, in "Bombo," will give an extra matinee on Friday. There will be no matinee today.

THE PAGEANT OF FRANCE

Portraying France's contribution to "AMERICA'S MAKING" in striking tableaux and vivid living pictures. In three parts, it depicts intellectual and artistic France; her relation to America's early history and her contribution to present day America in the sciences, industries, arts, letters and the theatre.

Leon Rothier of the Metropolitan Opera House as Roget de Lisle will sing the "Marseillaise."

Part II. America—Indians—Huguenots—trappers—Marquette—La Salle—Champlain—open an empire to civilization—Washington, Lafayette, Rochambeau in the American struggle for independence.

Part III. The Industries—Mechanics—culinary arts—beautiful textiles—silks—exotic perfumes—Milady's Boudoir—$500,000 Jewelry from Cartier.

Part IV. French Costumes—Past—Marie Stuart—Marie de Medicis—Madame de Pompadour—the Empress Josephine—present day evening gowns—a symphony of new creations by New York's greatest couturieres—Bergdorf and Goodman, Fauquharson and Wheelock, J. M. Gidding Co., Hickson, Inc., L. P. Hollander Co., Joseph Company, Lucile, Ltd., Thurn—based on the colors of the Grand Prix Ball of Paris.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Pressure is abnormally high along the north border from New England westward to the Pacific Coast and over the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region, and it is low over the Central Mississippi Valley and the Canadian Maritime Provinces.

The disturbance over the Central Mississippi Valley has been attended by snows in the region of the Great Lakes, the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and by local rains in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. Heavy snows fell in South Michigan, extreme Northern Illinois, Southern Wisconsin and Eastern Iowa.

The temperature has fallen decidedly over the Plains States, the Rocky Mountain region and the Upper Mississippi Valley. Colder weather is also reported from the New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Pacific Mails

Postmaster Morgan announces that mails of the following dates—Perth, Oct. 5; Sydney, Oct. 13; Auckland, Oct. 18; Suva, Oct. 22, and Honolulu, Oct. 29—which arrived per steamer Niagara, were dispatched east from Seattle on Nov. 5 and are due in New York tomorrow afternoon.

Post Office Notices

Resumption of Parcel Post Service to Rumania—Effective at once unregistered parcel post packages will be accepted for dispatch via New York to Rumania up to a weight limit of 22 pounds. Rumania advises that a delivery fee of 75 centimes (gold) is charged on parcels up to a weight limit of 11 pounds and 1 franc and 16 centimes (gold) for parcels up to a weight limit of 22 pounds, which charges must be borne by the addressees.

Mail, Ordinary and Registered, for Russia—Letters, post cards, printed matter, commercial papers and samples of merchandise, ordinary and registered, will be accepted for Russia in Europe (including Ukraine, Georgia and Azerbaijan) and Russia in Asia, subject to the Postal Union postage rates, conditions and classification. Articles prohibited in the regular (letter) mails are as follows: Arms, documents injurious to the Soviet Republic, cocaine, morphium, opium, hashish and other narcotics. The importation of field glasses, patent and made-up medicines and instruments and material for special professions is subject to special restrictions. The regulation of the Soviet Government provide that except by special permit no individual may receive letter packets containing goods of any kind which are not for personal use, nor may more than two postal packets, whether letters or parcels, containing goods, be received by one individual in one month, without a special permit.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

No Business Yesterday on Financial Exchanges—German Mark Goes Lower in London.

All New York markets were closed for election day holiday yesterday and financial exchanges elsewhere in the country. Business was done as usual in the Chicago grain market, where wheat prices made further recovery; the December delivery going 2¼ cents above Monday's closing, to a price 7⅝ cents per bushel above Friday's low mark of 98 cents. Such abrupt reactions are familiar incidents of speculative markets, after a traditional "dead-line" has been reached in a prolonged movement, whether upward or downward.

Foreign markets contributed some interest to the financial news. German marks were reported as selling in London yesterday at the rate of 1,225 to the pound sterling as against 1,062½ in Monday's London market. On the basis of the closing rate for sterling on Wall Street Monday, yesterday's London quotation for the mark would be equivalent to a New York price of 32⅛ one-hundredths of a cent, the lowest yet reached. Our closing price of Monday was 34½ one-hundredths; the previous low level was 33 one-hundredths. Silver recovered ⅝ penny per ounce in London.

CHINESE BANKERS SEE BRIGHT FUTURE

Dr. Chiang Says Financiers and Merchants Oppose Peking Government.

Chinese bankers and business men who have the larger interests of their country at heart look upon the failure of the Chinese Government at Peking to meet foreign loans and the consequent impairment of Chinese credit as a calamity not unmixed with certain encouraging features, in the opinion of Dr. Monlin Chiang, dean of administration of the National University of Peking. With David C. T. Yui he is here representing all the chambers of commerce of both North and South China, and also educational institutions as an unofficial adviser to the Chinese delegation and a representative of the business interests.

Dr. Chiang's views are the result of the political situation in China, in which, he says, the bankers and business men have only recently become interested because of the necessity of bringing about a united China that will be able to expand industrially and commercially. It is hoped to accomplish this, he said, through financial control of the Government by the domestic bankers.

"The Government at Peking is in desperate need of money," he said. "They have tried to borrow and have failed. They have gone to the Chinese bankers and asked for money, and the bankers have said 'not yet.' The bankers and business men, who in all parts of China feel alike on this question, and who have at heart the greater good of China, know that in time the Peking Government will be forced to meet their terms."

"So you rather welcome the resulting impairment of Chinese credit?" he was asked.

"I would not say we welcome it," said Dr. Chiang, "but we feel that it perhaps gives the people of China the opportunity to reorganize their Government and bring about nationa lunity."

"China will pay her debts," he added. "She always pays her debts, but there will be no payment until the internal political situation in China is settled satisfactorily, and no loans will be made until that time. We do not want loans for political purposes. Heretofore loans have been obtained and the money has gone to the support of armies and the maintenance of influences which have disrupted China. That must stop."

A general program for the reorganization of the Government has been worked out, on the basis of which an attempt will be made to treat with Peking when the time comes, but Dr. Chiang did not feel at liberty to discuss its details. Financial control by the bankers and business men and a new personnel of Government offices are the two principal points of the program, he said.

So carefully have the Chinese bankers perfected their plans in preparation for forcing the hand of the Peking Government that they have removed practically all the assets of the banks in the sphere of influence of Peking to other centres. Much of the gold and securities in those banks has been taken to Shanghai and Tientsin, in anticipation of an attempt by Peking to seize funds when they are finally refused by local bankers. New taxes can be levied by Peking successfully, he said, because they are kept by the governors of provinces in the north for the maintenance of their own troops. With the failure of new sources of money and the demands of the army for payment, Dr. Chiang expects to see the Government reduced to the point where the business men of China will be able to dictate terms. They are tired of rule by military cliques and politicians and want to take matters into their own hands.

His views cast new light upon the recent note of Secretary Hughes to the Chinese Government advising that China meet its financial obligations. Dr. Chiang said that the Chinese bankers had been in communication with American bankers who made loans to China, explaining the position of the Chinese bankers and business men. The result he said had been satisfactory, and he felt that the American bankers understood the position of Chinese financial men.

It was inferred, although he would not say so, that the note might be taken as a rebuke to the Peking Government, rather than to the Chinese people and business men.

"China looks to America and Great Britain to check the influence of Japan in China," he said, "and there is a feeling that if Japanese control of finances is removed the unity of China and the re-establishment of China as a nation of good faith will be accomplished much quicker."

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Paris Bourse Irregular — London Quiet.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Trading was again quiet on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols unchanged at 48½; British 5 per cent. war loan ⅛ lower at 87⅞; 4½ per cent. war loan unchanged at 81.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Prices moved irregularly on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 10 centimes lower at 53 francs 80 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan unchanged at 80 francs 20 centimes. Exchange on London 90 centimes higher at 54 francs 80 centimes per sovereign; American dollars 13 francs 76½ centimes, against 13 francs 53½ centimes Monday.

MONEY.

London Market.

Money on the London market unchanged at 2½ per cent.; short bills ⅛ per cent. higher at 3⅜ per cent.; three months unchanged at 3 13-16@3¾ per cent.

Gold bullion on the London market 1 penny per ounce lower at 104s 3d. Taking the British Mint's standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation for gold would represent a quotation would represent a price of 122⅝ for gold at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold this year was 136⅜ on Jan. 3; the highest of the period 149⅞ on Feb. 6, 1920.

What Should I Buy?

There are about 1084 bonds and 768 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange alone. In addition there are literally thousands of foreign and domestic issues that have a market in this country.

It is no wonder, therefore, that the average investor finds the selection of the right investment a most difficult problem.

If you will ask us what you should buy, we will submit definite recommendations of Municipal, Railroad, Public Utility or Industrial bonds.

State of West Virginia

Sinking Fund 3½% Gold Bonds

Dated January 1, 1919 Due January 1, 1939

Principal and semi-annual interest (January 1 and July 1) payable in gold at the fiscal agency of the State in the City of New York, or at the State Treasurer's office in Charleston. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, and registered bonds interchangeable.

The State is required by an act of the Legislature approved April 1, 1919, to retire annually from January 1, 1919, to January 1, 1939, at least one-twentieth of the authorized issue of $13,500,000 ($675,000 per year) by redemption at 100 and interest or by purchase in the open market at not more than 100 and interest.

Under the above provision the State has already purchased its quota for the years 1919 to 1921, inclusive.

Because of the mandatory requirement to purchase such an amount each year, we believe this issue to be unusually attractive.

$10,000,000 BONDS ARE OFFERED TODAY

New Issues Include $5,000,000 by State of North Carolina, Bearing 5 Per Cent.

EXEMPT FROM TAXATION

$2,500,000 Farm Loan Bonds Also Put on the Market — Bristol (Conn.) Issue Is $1,300,000.

Offerings aggregating more than $10,000,000 are being made by investment bankers today. They include bonds of the State of North Carolina and the State of West Virginia and a new issue of farm loan bonds of the First Joint Stock Land Bank of Chicago.

The First National Bank of New York, B. J. Van Ingen & Co., Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., Hornblower & Weeks, Eldredge & Co., Redmond & Co. and Stacy & Braun are offering $5,000,000 State of North Carolina forty-year 5 per cent. bonds, dated July 1, 1921, and due July 1, 1961. The principal and semi-annual interest are payable Jan. 1 and July 1 at the First National Bank of New York. The bonds are in denomination of $1,000 in coupon form, registerable as to principal or both principal and interest, and are a legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York and other States. They are offered at 102⅞ and interest, to yield 4.85 per cent.

The bonds are direct and general obligations of the State of North Carolina, for the payment of which the full taxing power of the State is pledged. It is stated that $4,500,000 will be used for highway, construction and $500,000 for public buildings. The rate of debt is less than 1 per cent. of the assessed valuation. The issue is exempt from all Federal income taxes and from all State, county and city taxation of the State of North Carolina.

Eastman, Dillon & Co. are offering a block of State of West Virginia sinking fund 3½ per cent. gold bonds, dated January 1, 1919, and due Jan. 1, 1939, at 86.5 and interest. The bonds are a legal investment for savings banks in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. They are exempt from all taxation by the State of West Virginia and are free from all Federal income taxes.

Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. are offering a new issue of $2,500,000 First Joint Stock Land Bank of Chicago 5½ per cent. Farm Loan bonds at 102½, yielding 5.16 per cent. to 1931, and 5½ per cent. thereafter. These bonds, dated Nov. 1, 1921, and due Nov. 1, 1951, are redeemable at par and interest on Nov. 1, 1931, or any interest date thereafter. They are a direct obligation of the Joint Land Bank of Chicago and secured by United States Government bonds or first mortgages upon improved farms at not exceeding 50 per cent. of the appraised value of the farm lands, and 20 per cent. of the appraised permanent insured improvements thereon.

The farms on which the mortgages are held are all located in the States of Illinois and Iowa. In addition, the bonds are protected by the paid-in capital stock of the bank and the accumulated surplus and reserves. They are exempt from Federal, State, Municipal and local taxation.

A syndicate, headed by Watkins & Co., with Redmond & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., are offering a new issue of $1,300,000 general improvement 5 per cent. mortgage bonds of the City of Bristol, Conn. The bonds are in denominations of $1,000, due serially, $25,000 from 1922 to 1951, inclusive, and $600,000 due in 1952. The bonds are offered to yield from 5 to 4.70 per cent. and are legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York, Connecticut and other States.

Principal and interest payable in New York at the office or agency of the Company. Redeemable as a whole, or in part for the Sinking Fund, at any time after May 1, 1922, on 30 days' notice at 110 and interest. The Company agrees to refund the present Pennsylvania four-mill tax to holders resident in Pennsylvania who have paid such tax.

Application will be made in due course to list on the New York Stock Exchange

CENTRAL UNION TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

The Trust Indenture provides for the retirement of the entire issue either through operation of a Cumulative Sinking Fund to purchase up to 110 and interest or to call at that price, or by payment at maturity at 110 and interest

The Debenture Bonds are the direct obligation of the company and constitute its sole funded debt apart from a closed First Mortgage of $30,000,000 due May 1, 1941, five per cent of the face amount of which shall be retired each year at 120 and interest by the operation of a Sinking Fund. These Debenture Bonds were sold by the company in May, 1921, and the proceeds applied to payment of current obligations.

ASSETS

The balance sheet of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company as at September 30, 1921, as prepared by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. shows cash, United States Treasury Certificates and Bankers Acceptances of $23,722,485, and total liabilities, other than capital and reserves, of only $6,762,737. The net figures include:

| | |
|---|---|
| Net Tangible Assets, less all Reserves | $136,999,044 |
| Net Current Assets | 60,442,538 |
| Net Property Account, less Depreciation | 53,166,517 |

EARNINGS

Net sales and net income of the company for the five fiscal years ended October 31, 1920, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. have been as follows:

| | 1920 | 1919 | 1918 | 1917 | 1916 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|

TIDE WATER OIL CO. REPORTS BIG LOSS

Net for First Nine Months of 1921 Was $4,202,507, President Says.

SURPLUS CUT TO $11,079,629

Best Showing Made In Last Quarter —Company Now Benefiting From Advanced Prices.

In a letter to the stockholders of the Tide Water Oil Company yesterday, R. D. Benson, President, reported that the corporation had operated in the first nine months of 1921 at a net loss of $4,202,507. Dividends of $3,178,128 were paid during the period, so that the total charges against the surplus account for the first nine months of the year amounted to $7,380,635. This account has been reduced to $11,079,629.

Losses for the third quarter, however, were lower than for the other two, amounting to $898,896, and Mr. Benson declared that the oil industry would soon be on a normal basis again. The losses by months for the third quarter were as follows: July, $511,393; August, $241,654, and September, $145,847.

In his letter to stockholders, Mr. Benson said: "The advance in the price of crude oil produced by companies owned entirely or in part by your company amounts, for the Tide Water Oil Company's share of the profits, to over $5,000 per day, and the price of refinery products has been proportionately increased. The prices at which our refinery products were inventoried on Sept. 30 are now considerably below the market, which has broadened so that the average daily runs of crude at our refinery have been nearly doubled since the end of the last quarter.

"In order to provide fully for our increased requirements, a sufficient supply of Mexican crude has been contracted for from one of the large companies producing in the Toteco field, the only field in Mexico now producing light crude in large quantity."

FRENCH ARCHITECTS COMING

Ferran and Haffner Will Teach in M. I. T. and Harvard, Respectively.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 9.—The acceptance by two French architects, Albert Ferran and Jean Jacques Haffner, of invitations to come to this country to teach was announced today. Ferran will have charge of design at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he will hold a professorship, while Haffner will be Professor of Design at the School of Architecture at Harvard.

The departments at Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology frequently engage in "conjunctive problems" in architecture, a fact which will give Ferran and Haffner a chance to work together. The two men, both of whom speak English fluently, are close friends. Each has been a winner of the Grand Prix de Rome. Ferran was born in San Francisco, of French parents. His father has become a naturalized American citizen. Haffner is a native of Stuttgart, Germany.

TO BUILD MARYLAND DAMS.

New Yorkers Interested in Power Development on the Susquehanna.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Nov. 8.—The Susquehanna Power Company has under consideration plans for construction of a great dam above Conowingo Bridge, on the Susquehanna. The company has extensive charter rights in Maryland and Virginia. Francis T. Homer of New York City, with other financial interests in that city, is said to be interested in the proposition.

It is understood that the company proposes to build another dam further down the river, and ultimately a third a short distance above Port Deposit. This power will be furnished to towns in Pennsylvania and Delaware. It is reported that the Pennsylvania Company is ready to buy all the current the new company will produce, to be sold to the Gas and Electric Company, which in turn will distribute it in Baltimore.

Big Oil Tank Contract Awarded.

Announcement was made yesterday at the New York office of the Phoenix Iron Works that the corporation had received the contract for fabrication and erection of eleven 80,000-barrel oil storage tanks for Cushing, Okla., and four 55,000-barrel tanks for Healdton, Okla., for the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company. The contract is one of the largest of its kind placed this year.

WHEAT HOLDS FIRM AT HIGHER PRICES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Large purchases of flour are reported to have been made in this territory for Russian relief purposes, but quantities are not given. Minneapolis mills are offering first clears in jute at $4.50 per barrel.

A decidedly more confident feeling prevailed in the wheat market, and, with reports of a better export demand for hard Winters, with a cargo sold at the Gulf to Holland, and a clean-up of the distressed grain at Montreal and the Atlantic seaboard, at no time were prices below the previous day's finish, while the close was 1½@1⅝ cents higher, after a range of 2¼@2⅝ cents for the day.

The strength in No. 1 and No. 2 Northern at Winnipeg, where seaboard exporters and Chicago interests were good buyers of futures, attracted some attention, the cash grain gaining ¼@ cents on the November, which went to 4½ cents over the Chicago December, against 2⅜ cents over Saturday.

Total export sales at the seaboard were not given, although Sweden bought a cargo of rye and bids for that grain track Baltimore, have been advanced 2 cents of late to the basis of 8½ cents over December, and it is understood that the distressed grain has been cleaned up.

Primary arrivals today of 819 000 bushels were the smallest on the crop and compared with 1,288,000 bushels a week ago and 1,432,000 bushels last year. Shipments were 294,000 bushels, against 583 000 bushels a week ago, and 750,000 bushels last year.

Country offerings in Canada are smaller and producers continue to hold on to the No. 1 Northern they have in store at the head of the lakes which is interfering with loading of vessels, and buyers are forced to bid up to secure the grain.

In the Southwest cash wheat prices were 1 and 3 cents higher, with a good demand from mills, although some in Kansas were reported as running on shorter time, due to inability to secure shipping orders. The congestion at the Gulf is being gradually cleared up and sentiment after the close was generally rather bullish, although in many quarters there was a belief that the upturns would not hold, especially should the leading interests cease buying. The technical position has been weakened by the upturn of 7¼ cents from the recent low.

The strength in Liverpool, which was up 9 cents for the December from the low of Nov. 4, was taken as indicating that the worst had been witnessed there and the reported failure of a Milan, Italy, grain firm had no effect.

Corn closed ⅛ cent and oats ¼ cent higher, with the bulk of the trade of a local character. There is a more friendly feeling toward coarse grains and advertisements in Central Illinois newspapers tell the farmers that if they want to hold corn and live stock, to see their local banks, who can borrow from the War Finance Corporation. Country offerings were not large, with a fairly good export demand for corn from the seaboard.

Primary arrivals of corn for the day were 795,000 bushels, against 559,000 bushels a week ago, and 270,000 bushels last year. Shipments, 182,000 bushels; week ago, 385,000 bushels; last year, 268,000 bushels.

Today's Chicago prices were as follows:

OFFERS PLANT TO WORKERS.

Lynn Shoe Company Willing They Should Operate It for Two Years.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Members of the Heel Workers' Union of Lynn are to vote on acceptance of an offer made by the Lynch Shoe Company of that city that the workers take over the $150,000 plant of the company, under a suitable bond, operate it for two years, and at the end of that time return the plant to its owners in as good condition as it is today.

B. F. Green, Treasurer of the company, says the purpose of the offer is to prove to the shoe workers that it is impossible to do business under existing conditions. "I want to be shown and I am willing to pay the price of being shown," says Mr. Green.

From letter of Mr. Irvin W. Day, Vice-President of the Company, we summarize:

BUSINESS The Connecticut Light and Power Company supplies electric light and power to a population of about 300,000 in an important industrial section of Connecticut, including the cities of Waterbury and New Britain and the Naugatuck Valley District.

PROPERTY The Company owns a hydro-electric plant at Stevenson on the Housatonic River with an installed capacity of 25,000 horse-power, another hydro-electric plant of 9,600 horse-power situated at Bull's Bridge on the Housatonic River, several valuable undeveloped water power sites and 86 miles of high tension transmission lines. In addition the Company leases a steam electric plant in Waterbury of 33,000 horse-power and distribution systems in Waterbury, New Britain and twelve other cities and towns. This lease is for 999 years from 1906. The Company's property investment is appraised at $15,701,441, without including net current assets or any valuation of the Company's undeveloped water powers.

EARNINGS For the twelve months ended August 31, 1921, Gross Earnings were $4,006,542, an increase of 10.7% over the same period the year before. Net earnings applicable to Fixed Charges were $1,808,839, an increase of 27.8%. This large increase in net earnings was due primarily to the Company's new hydro-electric plant at Stevenson, which was not put into full operation until March, 1920. Net income after deducting the present annual fixed charges was equal to 2.81 times the dividend requirements on the Preferred Stock.

ASSETS Total net assets as of August 31, 1921, after adjustment to include the proceeds of this financing, amounted to $305.92 per share on present outstanding Preferred Stock.

PROTECTIVE FEATURES The Preferred Stock is protected by carefully drawn provisions safeguarding the interest of the Preferred Stockholders in event of further issue of Preferred Stock or creation of other classes of stock or indebtedness having priority over this issue. For a summary of these provisions we refer to the letter of the Vice-President of the Company.

LEGALITY All legal matters in connection with this issue will be approved by Messrs. Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, of Boston.

GOODYEAR RUBBER SALES $62,421,179

CASH ON HAND $23,722,485

Company Has No Indebtedness to Banks—Ratio of Assets to Liabilities 10 to 1.

Net sales of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company for the seven months ended Sept. 30, 1921, were $62,421,179, according to a report issued to stockholders. Net earnings, available for interest and fixed charges, were $6,838,486. Interest charges amounted to $2,319,604, while other miscellaneous charges and adjustments, mostly losses on liquidation of fixed property and adjustment of inventories in subsidiary companies, aggregated $1,123,028. The net surplus amounted to $3,395,853.

The general balance sheet showed the company's ratio of current assets to current liabilities to be approximately 10 to 1. Its aggregate cash holdings, United States Treasury certificates and bank acceptances, totaled $23,722,485.

Edward G. Wilmer, President of the company, in his remarks to stockholders, said sales of automobile tires during the first nine months of 1921 were in excess of the number of sales the same period last year.

"The volume of mechanical goods including rubber heels," he says, "though abnormally low, is now showing gradual improvement. With a seasonal curtailment in the use and demand for tires, production has been gradually curtailed. Immediate prospects indicate that no further reduction of consequence will be necessary, and an increase shortly after the first of the new year is probable. For a period sales have exceeded production with the result that inventories of finished tires are now substantially smaller than those of last year.

"Goodyear's principal subsidiaries, The California Company, all of whose common stock is owned by Akron, and The Canadian Company, in which Akron has a substantial investment, have written down both inventories and commitments to a current basis, both have paid off all bank indebtedness, both have ample cash on hand to meet current requirements, and both are showing substantial monthly earnings."

L. P. BACH

Famous Piano Manufacturer, says:

"There is sentiment in business, and I pity the man who fails to find it."

Some men consider the idea of looking for sentiment in business as footless as searching for grapes in a bramble bush. But they are the pitiable ones to whom all business is a remorseless contest, and competition very much a tooth-and-nail affair.

Every trade cherishes its especial amenities. Fishmongers banter good-naturedly over their succulent wares. The "Big Men" of downtown New York are not ashamed of the fact that business holds for them a charm even more alluring than golf.

Certainly a man should find in his business bank a sympathetic understanding of his difficulties and his aspirations alike. Our customers have always found this understanding here—and their affection for The Importers and Traders National Bank has become a tradition which we prize very highly.

Questions of Business Judgment

IF YOU knew that you would to-morrow be completely incapacitated for business, would you turn over all your property to your wife and children to manage? Or would you put your property in the hands of an experienced Trustee to safeguard both your interests and the interests of your family?

Is it fair to expect that at your death your wife and children will be able to handle your business affairs successfully? Will it not be fairer to them to make your arrangements now to relieve them of such burdens and risks?

The New York Life Insurance and Trust Company is a Trust Company of Moderate Size which makes a specialty of Personal Accounts and Personal Trusts, with a successful record of more than ninety years in this specialized business.

"—and the cost of all this is so small!"

HE carries a personal checking account of $10,000 with us.

For our services as a depositary and the use of our name in establishing credit, he is charged nothing. We pay him interest on his daily balance.

He consults without cost the specialists of our Bond Department in making investments and keeping them at maximum earning power.

Our Trust Department officers are helping him build his estate and provide for various financial contingencies. He is about to make us executor of his will and trustee of his family's inheritance.

Our Tax Department helps him figure his income and other taxes. When he goes abroad, our Paris Travel Service makes his continental trip easier and pleasanter.

We hold in a Safe Keeping account his securities and insurance policies and perform the duties of a high salaried financial secretary. Yet the cost is nominal, a small percentage of the income received and disbursed.

"Where else could I get so much for so little?" he recently said.

Your personal or business account with The Equitable will give you free the consultant services of a group of financial and business specialists, whose individual services, measured by their experience, skill and reputation, would cost you a good deal.

WESTERN ROADS GIVE NOTICE OF WAGE CUTS

TRAFFIC LEAGUE ACTS

Will Ask Pressing of Railroad Claims on Basis of Lower Rates to Shippers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Managers of the Western group of railroads at a meeting here yesterday decided on the immediate posting of notices of wage reductions of 10 per cent., according to an announcement made today. The roads represented included the Santa Fé, Chicago Great Western, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, Northern Pacific and Great Northern.

In the proposed cuts all departments will be affected, and committees were appointed to draft the notices immediately, so that the roads may go before the Railroad Labor Board and ask an early hearing.

Following the meeting the National Industrial Traffic League announced that meetings would be held tomorrow and Thursday to ask that the railroads press their claims for wage reductions on the basis of rate reductions to shippers. The league represents many of the important shippers of the country.

Resolutions for presentation to roads have already been drawn, and include these three salient points:

That wage reductions and rate reductions take place simultaneously.

Managers of the Eastern railroads will post notices of wage reductions for train service employes amounting to 10 per cent. as soon as they are individually prepared for such action. This decision was made known yesterday following an announcement that the executives of a Western group of carriers had decided on the immediate posting of such notices.

The original plan of the Eastern roads was a simultaneous posting of wage reduction notices, it was stated after a meeting of Eastern rail executives held last week at the invitation of the Bureau of Information of the Eastern lines in Grand Central Terminal. This plan has been held unworkable, it was learned yesterday, because of the totally different circumstances and conditions with which each individual road is confronted. The policy which will now be followed will be for each carrier to make its announcement to its workers as soon as it is ready, although all of the railroads hope "to approximate a certain specific time," it was said.

"The railroads have never changed from their original position as outlined at their meeting in Chicago early in July," said Robert S. Binkerd, assistant to the Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, in explaining yesterday his belief that the Railway Labor Board would not purposely delay consideration of wage petitions. "At this meeting," continued Mr. Binkerd, "the railroads stated they would undertake to ask for a further cutting down of the wage bill, and that the saving resulting therefrom would be immediately translated into reductions in freight rates for the benefit of the public.

"We will, of course, make urgent representations to the Railway Labor Board of their duty for early consideration of this situation, but we do not believe that the Board will desire to take upon itself the responsibility for the delaying of lower rate schedules by postponing consideration of our appeals."

In the statement which the Board made to the Brotherhood Chiefs the day preceding the calling off of the threatened railroad strike it was pointed out that the board proposed, on account of its crowded docket, to complete its decisions on rules and working conditions affecting every class of employe before considering further wage cuts. Railroad executives explained, however, that there are only two items of the old rules and working conditions for train service men which are not adjudicated, and that it was expected the board could finish this work in a month. However, because the Transportation act requires that thirty days' notice be given to the employes in the case of wage cuts, to be followed by conferences, it is not expected that many of the railroads will be able to file the necessary data with the Labor Board before the latter part of January.

The executives have not decided what course of action will be adopted in case of a deliberate postponement of their case.

"We are making our fight for the shipper," said one Eastern manager, "and our case will be presented in such a manner as to demand immediate attention, we believe."

New Jersey—For Sale or To Let.

A SMALL family of refinement and education can secure title to and occupy at once this quaint Colonial home, located on one of the best streets of a celebrated suburban residential section near New York City, where the desires of the neighboring families as to the personality of the buyer must and will receive first consideration, on the payment of $2,850, balance of $5,000 on first mortgage. The plot fronts 100 ft. on the street and the house is surrounded by a beautiful grove of white birches and shading oaks; contains 8 rooms and bath and wide veranda. The elevation is over 500 ft.; it is only a few minutes' walk to railroad express station, on the best commuting road out of New York City, and is offered complete, with nothing extra to buy. There are over 300 commuters from this section now. Bathing, boating, skating, golf, tennis and country clubs are available, together with fine schools, churches and markets. It is a bargain and a wonderful place for a young couple who have regard for proper environment. I will take less for all cash. Your reply will receive personal, confidential and courteous attention. Immediate. P. O. Box 378, City Hall Station, New York City.

SALESMEN.

Are you really looking for an OPPORTUNITY to make good in a big way?

Do you believe that Opportunity comes but ONCE in your life, or do you believe that Opportunity exists everywhere if you will only look for it?

Do you RECOGNIZE Opportunity when you see it, or do you just wish Opportunity would come your way?

If you recognize Opportunity when you see it, and have an honest and earnest desire to make good, we believe that we have just that Opportunity in our organization.

First, we train you to be a salesman, at no cost to you; we put within your grasp the fundamentals of salesmanship as a foundation to work on, and then give you all the co-operation possible to help you to make good. What more COULD we do!

We have contracts to fill 450 executive positions paying yearly salaries with bonuses of $5,200 and up, which can be had only by men like you who come into our sales force and make good. Does that sound interesting? These are facts: 118 men, in the past year, have been promoted from our sales force into positions of this kind, because they recognized Opportunity, gave the job all they had, and made good.

A man coming into our organization is not judged by what he has done, but on the record he makes in our organization, which gives every man an equal chance. You've always wanted just that, haven't you?

So-called "Pull" does not exist in our organization. A man stands on his own feet and promotions are made on a basis of accomplishment.

Does this sound like a square deal to you? If it does, you are the man we are looking for.

FRANK HYDE,
Unit Sales Manager.

Salesmen.

SALESMEN WANTED
FOR EVENING WORK.

Selling Experience Unnecessary.

Working Evenings netted this man $187.50 in Four Weeks.

He is an automobile mechanic during the day, and while he is receiving good wages, he needs more money than his day job will pay him. Couldn't YOU use $187.50 in the next four weeks?

It doesn't make any difference what you are doing through the day, you can at least find one or two hours in the evening to devote to increasing your income.

The Business Builders' Course in Salesmanship, offered to you WITHOUT CHARGE, opens to you an opportunity to change unprofitable hours into time which will make money for you.

You do not have to have a wide acquaintance in New York to succeed in selling securities. The securities offered by the Business Builders make friends for themselves—and YOU. You can build up a solid, worth-while clientele.

The Business Builders are expanding seven going, growing corporations. These corporations not only require Money, but they also require MEN—for merchandising sales and executive positions. Our men are trained for such positions through the sale of securities, on commission basis. A salesman sells the securities of one corporation only, but he is eligible, when he demonstrates his ability, for promotion into any one of the seven.

No matter what you are doing, you owe it to yourself to become acquainted with the Business Builders and the plan by which so many men are earning a good income NOW, and at the same time receiving a splendid training, and developing themselves for a PERMANENT JOB in the future.

Call any time between 9 A. M. and 8 P. M. and we will tell you all about it. Our reception room is on the 12th floor.

BUSINESS BUILDERS, INC.,
12th and 13th Floors,

SALES EXECUTIVES.

The Vacuum Oil Company would like to add to its staff of domestic sales executives a few men of outstanding ability; we want men with proved sales record, who can quickly take an important place in this organization and then grow into an even larger place.

Primary qualifications are: Good education, considerable experience in selling and directing others in selling, some experience in shaping sales policies, age 30-40.

We are looking for exceptional men, not the usual job hunters; please help us by giving us in your first letter a complete statement of your record and your qualifications; please no not call except by appointment.

Personnel Committee,
Vacuum Oil Company,
61 Broadway, New York.

SALESMEN—REAL MEN OF VISION.

Men, this is an opportunity; act today; properly followed, your decision will lead you to financial independence; your first step—in the security department of an established manufacturing concern going at full blast, producing products in a class by themselves, with all countries of the world forming logical markets; second step—on the merchandising end, where several successful men are now badly needed; remuneration at beginning, attractive commission, pleasant surroundings, able men to work with, close co-operation; you will stop reading advertisements and begin making real money if you connect; this proposition appeals to sensible men of vision and decision. Call today, 9 to 5. Ask for Mr. McKibbin, Whelen & O'Dare, Inc., Room 1410, 342 Madison Av.
